"Two important matters were acted upon by the convention of the international Typographical Union—one relating to the purely economic struggle and the other to the advanced political side. The Typographical Union, which is the oldest of the national organizations was the first to sive conciliation. and arbitration a fair and general trial. But it looks as though the experiment has proven a failure—at least that impression is growing among the printiers. The reasons are plain. The employers demand their own way in everything. For instance: In Seattle and Spokane, Wash., where the test cases took place that led to the rupture. ical Union and the Newspaper Pub-lishers' Association upon the arbitra-tion question the bosses started out as though it was a preconceived plan to ninke a farce of conciliation and arbi-tration. In Seattle the union had made a request for an increase in wages and reduction in hours, calm-A monopolist controls the three news-papers, as well as 'public opinion' largely in that city. A preacher was the spokesman for 'the public.' Mr. Preacher was informed that he was expected to find for the newspapers, and he did as he was told. President Driscoll of the Newspaper Publishers' Association was present and received a hearing. In a convenilly prepared statement, which was sent over the Associated Press wires verbatim, he attempted to show that the International Typographical Union, through its officers and local Union, through its omeers and rocal unions, had violated the principles of arbitration. But after bearing the testimony of the national officers and local unions, which was cut and garbied to ault the 'molders of public ninion the delegates by ananimous vote endorsed the position of their representatives and refused to recede an inch. It was freely declared that an inch. It was treet detailed the employers violated every principle of justice and decency, and that if they desired to destroy conclitation and arbitration agreement and were looking for fight they would be accommodated. The whole question is now up to the Newspaper Publishers' Asso-ciation, which seems to have become 'paralysed,' and it is for them to say whether it shall be peace or war. "Another matter of general interest was the International Typographical Union convention's action on the ad-Union convention's action on the advanced political proposition. By a parliamentary trick sprung at a late hour during the night session preceding the day of adjournment an endorsement of the principle of collective ownership was defeated by a vote of two to one, but the following morning, when a resolution came up for the appointment of a committee to consider the question of taxation and its relation to wages, an amendment was attached to wages, an amendment was attached thereto to instruct the committee to investigate and report upon the advisability of nationalizing trusts and monopolies. This amendment, after some sharp and fast debate, was carried by 76 to 18. While the majority of delegates were unquestionably non-Socialists, still there was a strong sentiment in the convention in favor of taking advanced ground. As one of the national officers put it: The bulk of our members know little about Socialism, but I believe the printers ought to be o wages, an amendment was attached

EIGHT-HOUR MOVEMENT IN GREAT BRITIAN.

The British Trade Union Congress at Leicester has adopted the following declaration: "This congress declares that the time has arrived when the hours of labor should be limited to eight per day in all trades and occupations in the very unjust editorial against Socialism a fortuight ago. Within a few days, Comrade Johnson of that city. Company Rivier of Kanses, and Comrade Interest of Comrade Interest o and all municipal elections, and in structs the Purliamentary Committee to introduce a bill into the House of Commons with a view to getting the eight-hour day to become the law of the country."

All the capitalist papers in England, with one accord, raise a cry that the inauguration of an eight-hour movement will certainly destroy British in dustrial prosperity, and such Anglo-maniac organs as the New York "Times" echo the wail. The British voters, like those of the United States, are getting fired of a sort of prosperity all of whose benefits go to the drones of society, while all its burdens fall on the toliers. Unemployment, lowering of wages, increased prices for food, and drastic court decisions against the unions are beginning to move the British workmen from their old stolid in-difference and force them to think. The eight-hour demand, if firmly insisted on, may be expected to result in an agitation and education of the workers such as England has not had for many

The Congress also resolved to make ployers and courts in sympathy with employers. It is considered very im-probable that Parliament will pay any attention to the plea until the workingmen take much more vigorous political action on class lines than they have heretofore done.

Without attempting to controvert the facts presented the employers filed a counter proposition, demanding a reduction in wages and increase of hours of labor. Furthermore, they even had the audacity to ask that certain laws that had been adopted by 40,000 printers in a national referendum be made the subject of arbitration in their local contest. The Seattle Union requested that the questions go to the National Commission, composed of President Lynch, of the union, and President Driscoll, of the publishers. This the local losses refused, whereupon the union took the buil by the borns and enforced its new scale. Previous to this occurrence the printers of Spokane asked for an increase of wages the jug-handled contract was promulgated the workers refused to swallow it and weat on strike, and then a loud howl went up that the International Typographical Union had 'violated every principle of arbitration.' In New York City the newspaper princips of a reduction of hours; they also proved that living rates had increased and that their output was greater than ever. Here also a preacher (a bislipp, by the way) was chosen as the third arbitrator. This gentleman, after considering the testinony, was forced to aristrator. The articles in the capitalist papers are about equally divided between those declaring that the Social Democracy has charged its character, and is now nothing but a Liberal party that will soon die, and those declaring that the Social Democracy is about to precipitate a violent revolution and proposes to overturn every social institution. One faction of the party, led by Sakazoff, denied the existence of the class struggle and were calling for a union of all classes for the purpose of accomplishing some immediate reforms. EFFECT OF QUE GERMAN GAIRS.

The Berlin "Vorwärts" has recently an organization formed to abolish universal suffrage, which gives an inter-esting picture of the panic which the approach of Socialist gain is producing among the capitalists of Germany. A letter which accompanies the circular (the first edition of which is said to have been 1.000,000 copies) calls upon the capitalists of Germany to raise fund for the purpose of fighting equal suffrage. This letter has as its open-"Politics is the art of leading the masses, not whither they would, but where they should go." The circular proposes a sort of graduated suffrage modeled on the Belgian plan, giving additional votes to employers of labor and graduates of universities.

The Emperor has given utterance to the very Delphic observation that "The Social Democracy is a phenomenon whose development must be awaited; it is not necessary at this time to deal with it." Just what this means every one is at liberty to imagine for himself.

We call upon our fellow workingmen of this great city of New York to face squarely and without finching the one squarely and without meaning the one vitally important fact which all the old parties are forever trying to hide—that the interests of our class, as the producers of all wealth, are irreconcillably opposed to the interests of the propertied class which dominates these old parties. Whether labelled Repub-llean, Democratic, or Reform, each of these parties is ananced, and therefore contrilled and officered, by that class which lives by the exploitation of La-bor. The serving of their own sordid ends, the maintainance of their power to demoil the workers, if the sole of jective point of their effort to mecure political power, as it is the objective of the deliauchery of our civic life which attends their rule.

As Social Democrats we proclaim that it is the duty of the workers to use all their political powers for the overthrow of the infamous system of class oppression under which city and nation grouns to-day-a system which gives luxury and ease to the idlers and places them in a position of mastery over the wealth-producers; which condemns the vast majority of the workers to live in squald, disease-breeding tenements that are unfit for human habitation, while giving to the drones of society, paintial man-sions and shameful luxury. Never in the world's history have these inquitous conditions been more glaringly manifest than in this City of Nev all sound principles of statesmanship. civic economy, and morals. To end such conditions and to establish in their stead conditions of economic justice and political integrity is the mission to which the Social Demo

Alone of political parties the Social Democratic Party upholds the true functions of political government and procinims that its end should be nothing less than the establishment of a sane and just economic system in which every resource of the common life shall be free from private owner-"ship and control and in which every child born into the world shall have equal opportunities with every other child. In short, we declare that our aim is the establishment of an Indus trial Democracy, the Co-operative Commonwealth; and while realizing that this can be accomplished only through the political triumph of the workers in state and nation, we desire to bring about a working-class ad-ministration of the city, not a one to avail ourselves of its power to telleve, so far as possible, the hardships of our class under existing economic condi-tions, but also, and primarily, to take all possible steps toward the realiza-tion of our final goal.

In the past we have had adminis-trations of the city's affairs by Re-publicans and Democrats and by fusions of the malcontents of both parties in the interests of so-called "Reform." The admitted corruption and incompetence of each of the party administrations has made possible the success of such coalitions, and incidentally, shown the essential identity of interests which exists lictwesn the old parties. Were their differences vital and fundamental such coalitions would be impossible. And just as would be impossible. And just as their interests are identical, so have been their performances. All alike have voted to members of the pessessing class, to which they themselves belong, valuable public franchises which have added to the powers of monopely and privilege over the citizenty, enabling them if extort many millions each year in wordt, while millions each year in profit, while callonsly indifferent to public needs. The wholesale corruption of our city government is directly traceable to this taproot of private exploitation of pected, as the Social Democratic Party has continually pointed has continually pointed out, in every case of conflict between the common citizens and the privileged class, and in every struggle between the wage workers and the masters of their bread, all the forces of the city have been used to defeat the common citi-nens and the wage-workers, and to nens and the wage-workers, and to promote the interests of the exploiters. For two years past the City of New York has been governed by a "Re-Torm" administration. Never in the history of the city has any administrahistory of the city has any administration 'entered upon its duties with greater opportunities and never was there a more dreary record of failure and incompetence. The one achievement of which they boast is the reduction of taxes upon real estate, something worse than worthless to the working class, whose reats have not been lowered thereby, but, on the contrary, have largely increased. Conditions have not been changed for the better in any important department of the have not been changed for the better in any important department of the city government nor has there been so much as an attempt made to better the conditions of life in the city. The transportation service is even more outrageously ineffecient than before and the workers engaged therein are subject to worse conditions of hibor than ever before. In the crowded teacments the almost exclusively problemation disease, tuberculosis, is ramponant, on account of the unsaultary conditions prevailing there which the speople themselves cannot obscures. Science points out the remedy with unfarting inger, but the "Reform" ad-

to crush with relentless brutality every attempt of the workers to protest against tyranny. When the exections of the Beef Trust forced hunger-mad-dened women and children to revolt they were clubbed into submission by the police, and striking tunnel labor ors were met with the same shameful brutality. Workingmen of New York, let it not be forgotten that while under Tammany, with Devery at the head of the Police Department, the police force was used to break the atrike of the Brooklyn trolley workers, under the "Reform" government, with General Greene at the head of the Police De-Railroad who were merely preparing to strike and could not be accused of any disturbance of the public peace. When, owing to the culpable negli gence of the New York Central Railroad Company, several citizens were killed in its antiquated and dangerous tunnel, it was not the guilty directors but a defenseless and suffering enginear who was prosecuted by the Dis-trict Attorney, whose speciacular cam-paign consisted so largely of an attack upon great corporations and loudly ed sympathy for Labor. In the of children there was no school accom-modation and that the striking workters had voluntarily offered to continue working on the old terms upon all school buildings pending a settlement of the strike, work was stopped and terfered with. But no effort was made to enforce the penalties for delayed work provided for in the contracts.

These things, and the granting of the Pounsylvania tunnel franchise without the inclusion of the labor clauses, prove the hostility of the present administration to all the interests of the workers. Therefore we call upon our fellow workers, regardless of all distinctions of race or creed, to unite with us and rally to the support of the Social Democratic Party, the only party of Labor, which will if elected to power administer the affairm of the city with proper regard to the comfort and well-hefug of the work-ing class. It will use all its powers to improve the sanitary conditions of the city and to provide decent and ade-quate homes for the people. A party of the working class, with no other interests to serve, it will support only such legislation and adopt such meas-ures as will benefit the working class, and will oppose whatever may be pro-posed contrary to their interests.

Especially to our fellow workers is the trade unions would we appeal in this campaign. While recognizing its limitations, the Social Democratic Party has always supported the tradeunion movement in all its struggles be cause it fully recognizes the essential justice of Labor's struggle on the eco-nomic field. We point out to all the organized workers of New York the utter futility of expecting any support from capitalist parties of any stripe. Experience with Republicans, Democrats, and "Reformers" has shown that there is no political alchemy which can change industrial enemies into can change industrial enemies into political friends. Therefore we call upon them to be loyal politically to their-own economic principles and interests by supporting the Social Democratic Party which will, when entrusted with the administration of the city, use all the public powers for the protection and benefit of the workers to their conflicts with the cantinustrialists. in their conflicts with the capitalists.

In addition to the measures indicated above, as proposals aiming at the present relief of the workers and directed toward our final goal, we urge diate measures, to which we piedge every one of our candidates and for which we seek the support of all who desire real freedom and economic

We confess that our sympathies are rather mixed in the matter of the "near East" (as it is the fashion to call it to-day). We sil know what is the main alm of the Macedonian insur-gents, namely, liberation from the Turkish power, and furthermore we know what this liberation would bring in its train. With Western conditions of government would come Western conditions of economic development—the ubliquitous railway extension, new towns with their cosmopolitan life. new mixing enterprises, and on the top of all the factory with its tall chimney. These blessings of modern capitalistic civilization would inevitably follow in the wake of the destruction of the old semi-paternal political dependence. Autonomy would not keep them away for long, even if autonomy were secured, a contingency scarcely to be expected with Russia and Austria on the look-out for Balkan spoil. The Balkan States generally, like Armeals, are inhabited by an almost purely peasant population. Economically, as a rule, these peasants are well-to-do and often even prosperous. The one evil that oppresses them is the Turkish fiscal system, which is capricious, unjust and generally had and corrupt. The Macedonian peasant does not suffer from economic exploitation, but from political and fiscal maladishinistration. If he thinks that exchanging the latter for the former will make him happier, the state of the former will make him happier, the many years, we fear, will bring not many years, we fear, will bring about his distilusionment. The four about his distintinuous and the four great obstacles, to-day, to modern capitalist expansion are China, Persia, Turkey, and Morocco. Were these empires opened up to the market-nunter and the industrial exploiter, there

The employers are trying to compe all the workingmen's organizations of the building trades to submit to "agreements" dictated by bosses which, if adopted and observed, would make it impossible for the unions ever to take any effective united measures to improve their conditions or to resist the aggressions of the employers. The organized employers declare that every union which refuses to accept these agreements shall be destroyed. They propose to reduce the men to submis-sion by keeping them out of work and reducing them, if necessary, to pauper-

Bosses Socking Scales. Of course the bosses want to have their business go on, however, while their old employees are being starved out. So they are misrepresenting the facts in the case through the news-papers all over the country and are advertising for men of the various trades concerned to take the places of the locked-out men. Through employ-ment agencies, as well as through the press, they give a false account of the situation, so that men are likely to come to town and go to work before they discover that they are doing their fellows a wrong and are then often unable to get away for some time for lack of money.

The Steamfitters' Association, in opder to counteract these misrepresentations and to inform men of their trade

At the first place he applied he satisfied all requirements and was assured that he would get the job he wanted, until it came out that he was a New Yorker, whereupon the boss frankly told him that, though he needed men and was sorry to discriminate, he was absolutely compelled, to refuse him employment. "REVISIONISM" TURNED DOWN

By Overwhelming Vete the Belegates Reject the Counsels of Bernstein and Others Whom the Capitalist Fress Has Heralded as Leaders of "Practical" Socialism.

German Social Democratic Parry, which opened at Dreaten, in the "Red Kindom" of Saxony, on Sept. 13, has again most emphatically refuted the ott-repeated statements of the capitalist press that the party in Germany has abandoned its furner strict revo-lutionary position and become merely a party of radical reform. The "revisionists" have, indeed, made a great noise in the world. In their ranks were to be found a number of prolific and ingenious writers, some of whom did not acruple to use the columns of leaders. The reactionary press, moreover, has, of course, seen its opportunity and has sought both to foster dissension in the party and to create false ideas about it among outsiders by giving attention to the activity of the "revisionists" far beyond what their real importance deserved. In the good German fashion, the

How little their efforts have availed in all the four years of their active campaign has been shown by the votes of the delegates at the Dres-den Congress. Under the circum-stances, the overwhelming majorities rebuked and by which it has been de cided to adhere to the old policy of "No compromise" is a most emphatic testimony to the correctness of Marxian principles and tactics when tested by long experience and free discus-

Decisive Votes Taken.

Two decisive votes were taken. On Wednesday, Sent. 16, a resolution was passed in regard to the use of the capitalist press. It is not clear from the dispatches whether this resolution bars persons holding editorial positions on bourgeois papers from party meruber-ship and, if so, just where the line is drawn, or whether it forbids party and Labor in the United States would | members to use the bourgeols press to bring the economic and political crisis criticise the declarations of principle here sooner than anywhere else and predicted that America would lead the world in the establishment of Bo ered a test question against the "revisionists," to several of whose lenders it would apply ir either of these forms. This resolution, an unquali-fied repudiation of the whole "revisioniat" tendency represented by Bern-stein, von Vollmar, Braun, Göhre, and others of whom we have heard so much as the new leaders of the new and "good" species of Socialism, was adopted by a vote of 288 to 11.

Holds to Working-Class Basis. In a word, it may be said that the German Social Democratic Party has reaffirmed, more emphatically than ever before, the proletarian character of the movement, its foundation on the class struggle between wage-work-ers and capitalists, its dependence upon working-class interest, working-class instinct, and working-class intelligence and organization, and its abso-lute rejection of all coalitions with statement of principles or to relax its discipline for the purpose of attracting discipline for the purpose of attracting support from any other class. It wel-comes all men, of whatever class, who support its principles and comply with its discipline; but it relies upon the mass of thinking workingmen and not upon the learned "academics" or "in-tellectuals" for its guidance; if the ctuals" for its guidance; if the

The importance of the Dresden Congress for us in the United States is not that it declares any new policy, for it does not. Its importance is in that, with all the experience of the party in Germany and after all the free and thorough discussion that has gone on there for years upon these questions, our German comrades by an overwhelining majority have decided to follow that very course which they as well as we have followed in the past,

The Borialist Party (the Borial Democratic rty of New York) has possed through its end general election. Its growing power indirected and its appealy victory for-closed by the great increase of its vote shown in these figures:

POLITICAL DEGENERATION AND TTE CURE.

The present situation in the British government or rather, the situation ruption can play but a minor part, ginning of the Boer war and which has now developed to a point where its any well-defined policy or principle to 'two nides, and accordingly applied for anomalous character can no longer be aght for. The Tory party in power is only a trife less impotent and ridiculous than the Liberal party is opposition: Neither party has the intelligence to work out equivocate and temperise and play the political power and moving toward with phrases.

The time is assuredly ripe for a new force in British politics-which can be no other than that of the working class—to come to the front and put some sort of reality in the place of the more and more taking the lead. Under antiquated shams that still stand only. because no one dares to meddle with like Yuba Bill's famous coach on the them. It remains to be seen whether Geiger Grade; it can avoid a smash-up the British working class is capable, after so many generations of capitalist prosperity, with all that the term im- clinging insecurely to the tall of the plies of physical degeneration for a large part of the workers and mental perversion for all, of supplying this work the simile, the small capitalist new destructive and reconstructive force. If the Socialist movement of long for the "good old times" of "legithe United Kingdom can get rid of the two generally incompatible characterlatics of finical "orthodoxy" in discussion and timid "possibilism" in political action which so remarkably coexist in it, it has now an extraordinary | their own tottering financial strength; opportunity to give voice and wisdom individually, too, each cherishes a to the "unlearned discontent" of the doubtful hope that he may be the exworking class.

If the decay of old political forms and traditions is showing itself at has been doing so for some years, especially since the beginning of the more dangerous form. If the British political disease he described as anemia, that of the United States is rather like apoplexy. There, the fear "lest a worse thing befall them" paralyses the political faculties of the ruling class; sere, the mad greed for profit and power "grows by what it feeds on." and supra them on to usurnation. The disproportionate legislative and execuunequal representation of the voters; the almost despotic influence of the Speaker of the House, which, with the increase of legislative business due to the multiplicity of private interests involved, has rendered discussion in that body a farce, deliberation impossible, and "log-rolling" the only effective method of working; and the inordinate growth of the President's power, partly through definite enactment, partly through custom, and still more through the use of patronage-these things make the government of the United States to-day a very different sort of thing from what it was in the days of Jefferson or even in those of Liucoln, though the terms of the Constitution remain practically unchanged. A simiiar tendency to the exorbitant increase of the executive power and the growing incapacity of the more popular legislative branch shows itself in all the states. Simultaneously with this ever stormy and no profit to gain by tendency, both in the national and the state governments, goes the usurpation : by the judiciary of what are really American proletariat-American by

by the direct representatives of the people. The real secret of the decay of democracy, which is so much bewailed by many plous and learned old ladles rofessorial chairs, is not in the increase of corruption. Corruption in politics has grown to frightful proporions and is steadily increasing. But corruption is a symptom of the decay of democracy, not the cause of that duty. decay. Where legislation is in the hands of vigorous public assemblies, direct or representative, which really deliberate and which are divided between parties that actively advocate definite principles or policies, there cor-

But if the Democrats have no recognizable principles, we defy anyone to define those of the other big party. Eight or ten years ago we could recognize a Republican by the principles be professed; but the acrobatic facileness of a McKinley and the obstreperous platitudes of a Room veit have quite obscured its political doctrines, if it has any; vague shibboleths and hifalutin braggadocio are now their sole stock-in-trade. Satisfied with the present course of events and confident of the imbeelity of the power has no need of principles and, under the cover of the President's definite policy or the courage to fol-

The reason is plain to the student of history. The Republican party is dominated by the alliance of high finance and industrial capitalism—the former such control a political organization is only while it can keep increasing the wild noce. The amalier capitalists vehicle, vividly realise the danger, but know not how to avoid it. Not to over class is divided in vind; its members timate" business and staid traditional politics; they dream of the possibility of checking what they consider the ex cesses of capitalism, but shudder at the probable effect of the reaction on ceptional small capitalist who will succeed in rising into the higher ranks finally, many of them realize that a revolt, once started, is hard to curb, the Ministry and the stupid apathy of and fear lest, if they help to overthrow Parliament, it is showing itself at great capitalist rule, the workers, in-Washington and in all our states, and stead of their own "great middle class," may gain the advantage. So the small capitalists, "letting 'I dare Spanish war, in a more active if not a not wait upon 'I would," either grumbingly follow in the wake of Morganized Republicanism or waver of the emasculated Democracy. The one party has no use for principles; the other is afraid of them. In the one; corruptionists are naturally very useful and well paid servants; in the other there is no clean element strong enough to keep them down. Be tive weight of the Senate, with its tween the two, political intelligence ong term, its indirect election, and its and public spirit get scant encourage ment, the old type of popular leaders "Tall usen, non-crowned, who live above the for "In public duty and in private thinklug"-

Here also, the only hope for political regeneration, for a revival of the spirit of '70 and the spirit of '61, to put an end to the vulgar prostitution of the phrases of '76 and '61, is in an awakening of the definat self-confidence of the working class, the only class that has no sordid or anti-social ends to serve, no privileges to lose by freedom howabsolution however screne.

Unless we are much mistaken, the legislative and executive functions, residence, we mean, regardless of nativity or race—is capable of this tank. Capitalism in America has grown too quickly to have moulded the workers rightly to its will, while it has grown greatly enough to show erpretation in annulling laws enacted the workers that it must be and how it must be overthrown. We in the United States have as much need as any in the world to beware of political reaction and public degeneracy; we have better opportunities than any others to stifle reaction and restore health, pub lie life: therefore on us rests, more than on any others, the responsibility for the world's future progress. To say this is not to indulge in Yankee boasting, but to call men to a solemi

A QUESTION OF SOCIALIST BIHICS.

While the congress at Dresden has been discussing the conditions under which a party member may rightly hold a position upon the empitalist press, the same question and another closely connected with it have come up practically in the East Side of New York City.

Several men on the editorial and renortorial staff of one of the bourgeois Jewish dailies have gone on strike. Some comrades maintain that these strikers deserve no symfathy from Socialists, on the ground that they are "intellectual prostitutes." Simultaneously occurs another incident which raises a similar question. A lawyer who is a member of the party has acted as counsel for an employer in getting an injunction against striking employees. The curious thing is that some of those who reffice armpathy to the Socialist writers on a capitalist paper yet find it in their the attack. hearts to defend the Socialist counsel asking for an injunction on behalf of an employer.

It is seldom that we think it within the function of a party paper to express-judgment upon a question of this sort before it has been passed upon by the party itself. In the present case we feel justified in speaking at once.

As to newspaper writers, the whole question is where the line shall be drawn. A Socialist who acts as reporter for a capitalist paper or as news editor or as a writer upon general subjects, unconnected with the Socialist ovement, is surely no more an intellectual prostitute than a Socialist who sets the type for such a paper or sells it on the street. What constitutes a newsphper man an intellectual prostitute is not his writing for pay for a - capitalist paper, but his writing against his convictions. We canno: see how a Borialist could conscientiously hold the position of responsible editor of a non-Socialist daily, because in that position he is compelled to write or to order the publication of articles against Socialism. But in regard to Socialists holding any other position than this, in common fairness and deevery it should be proved that they have actually written against Socialism for pay before they are condemned.

In the case of a lawyer it may be . simust equally hard to draw the exact line. We know that all business invoives dishonesty, fu one sense, as it involves profit. We know that a great part of any lawyer's work-as, for the matter of that, of any other man's work-is somehow connected with and dependent upon profit-making. Still we suppose no one but a fanatic would say that a Socialist may not enter the profession of law. Unfortunately, we live in a capitalist world and must make our living in it. Not even Tolatoy escapes from its conditions.

But when it comes to a Socialist actapplication for an injunction against striking employees, the simple point is that he here appears in a public capacity before the court and, for the sake of his fee, appeals to legal principles-or asks for the use of legal practice-which, as a Socialist he denounces as immoral and anti-social. With what face can we, denouncing the issuance of such injunctions retain | craft journals. him as a perty member? And what confidence will other workingmen have in us if we do so?

It is possible for a lawyer to avoid imists on taking them up, let him get out of the party and nut himself in a position to act purely on his own responsibility. And if he will do neither of these things, then let the party set membership rolls.

A PRACTICAL WORD TO OUR BEADERS.

Hardly a day passes without the editors of The Worker receiving, from anywhere between the Bay of Fundy and the Guif of California, a marked copy of some newspaper of purely local circulation containing an aditorial "refutation of Socialist fallacies," with a request from the local comrade who sends it that The Worker shall next week contain a specific reply to the article marked.

It is exceedingly beinful to the editors of The Worker to receive marked copies or elippings from the capitalist eas all over the country-the more, the better. If The Worker is becoming a better chronicler and champion of the Secialist movement, the improvement is very largely due to this active fore, which counti interest of our this tutes them a great staff of volunteer informants and counsellors. Let us therefore acknowledge in this place the assistance so rundered and hope that it will be continued.

not only to know the local news dially carried on for the presit of King rectly, or indirectly concerning our Leopold and the international gang of movement from all parts of the land, financiers who back him. The blacks but also to know what sort of arguments the local old-party papers are using, so that we may get a general view of the altuation on braich to base a judgment of the held withouts for serving the general cause, it is obriously impossible that The Werker should reply severally to all these many celltorial attacks, which are commonly only a rehash of autiquated theories which the bourgeois ecomomints themselves have shoudened ·long ago. Impossible, for two reasons: First, because the whole space of The Worker would not suffice for us to follow all these suggestions and the paper would be very dreary with repetition If we should try it; second and still more conclusive, because the circulation of The Worker, while large and Several of those men are Socialists, growing, is scattered over the whole country, so that it reaches but a few readers of each of the papers to whose editorials we are asked to reply.

These pretended "refutations," stale and stupid as they commonly are, ought to be answered of course. But the proper persons to write the replies are local comrades in the respective towns where these attacks are published. And the proper vehicle for carrring the reply to the readers of the attack is the very paper that has made

Ben Hanford, in a personal letter to the editor of The Worker, written about three weeks after he started on his present propaganda tour, says: "I find that our comrades miss very many important opportunities. Especially. they do not use the local newspapers as they might-do not use them as much in some things as the proprietors thenwelves would like." We are convinced that he is right and that one of our best means of propagands-prac tically without expense, moreover, which is an important point-is now generally neglected.

In nearly every city of considerable size there is at least one daily newspaper which makes a practice of pub-Eshing letters from its readers. In the ranks of the Socialist Party in such a city there are sure to be entitle two or several comrades who are quite competent to write printable latters in reply to editorials or to other correspondence or in comment on current events. In the smaller places, while our forces are perhaps not so strong, the opening is even better, for the average country editor is almost always "short of copy" and welcomes correspondence that he can print. A few of the great city dailies will carefully shut out letters from Socialists, undoubtedly; but these are exceptions; the many papers which make a practise of running a correspondence column do so because they find it a feature that attracts interest and swells their circulation, and they are often glad rather than displeased at having a good, readable, bostlle letter

THE ODEDEN BULE

There is still another thing that the trade-unionists must learn, and that is the practical application of the Golden ltule between themselves in their struggles against capitalist oppression. Every trade-unionist demands that when he, or rather his union makes a demand of the capitalist for better co ditions, that every other worker abditions, that every other worker ab-stain from accepting anything less than the union demand. More and more, solidarity of the workers be-comes an absolute necessity, and the trade unions are happily highing more stress on this question than ever be-fore. Any worker who retuses to make this sacrifice in the interests of the solidarity of labor is very properly treated with the contempt due a fraitor.—Bernard Bertyn. in Brie treated with the contempt director.—Bernard Berlyn, in Wins ...

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

Socialism looks to the past, the future, and the present. So we may say there are three kinds of Socialism -the Socialism of the unst, the Socialism of the future and the Socialism of the present. A great deal of confusion would be avoided if these distinctions were kept in mind, and a great deal were kept in mind, and a great deal of controversy also.

Socialism, looking to the past, is the scientific interpretation of history.

Marxima rewrites the history of manital as Darwinjam rewrites the history of animals. To be ignorant of "economic determinism," that is, of "the materialistic conception of history," is to be ignorant of what Socialism teaches with resucct to the past.

in teaches with respect to the past.

The Socialism of the future is what most people mean when they speak of Socialism—the future state of society when Socialism has arrived, such as Beliamy pictures in "Looking Backward," for instance.

The Socialist platform deals with this future Socialism, when it demands "the public ownership of all the means of production and distribution

In this good time coming, men will be able to live together as brothers. The Co-operative Commonwealth will be that Socialism which is described as applied Christianity. All that propiets and poets of all ages have foretold and depicted will be fulfilled in this glorious Socialism of the Datase.

The Socialism of the past enables as to understand the present. The Bocialism of the future gives us courage and hope, But it is the Socialism of the present which must win the fight. Upon as who are building up a political party, a mighty instrument of compact hu man interests and wills, iles the great est responsibility. Our scientific knowledge of the past teaches us two things. (1) That all history consists of struggles between social classes, and, hence present society consists of a class struggle too; (2) That the classes have always been moved by their bread and butter interests, hence the same is true to-day.

present Secialism—our Socialist Party.

There is no other way to succeed.

As we hope for future Socialism, we must construct our present Socialism upon the established social laws which Socialism has revealed in its study of the past.

Socialist Party, builded on the mighty class of modern wage-workers, is scientifically certain to achieve that political victory by which alone we can peacefully win that future Socialism which is the hope of the race.—Scattle

THE TWO SLAVERIES COMPARED.

A. M. Simons in the "International the following interesting opinion of the wage system by a defender of chattel slavery in antebelium days. Says the "Review"; "But it remains for one James Shannon in a pamphlet on 'Domestic Slave-ry.' printed in 1855, to set forth a harmony of interest doctrine in relation to chattel slavery that might well excite the admiration of Mark Hanna and the Civic Federation:

""The relation of master and slave is merely that of debtor and creditor extended; namely, to services for life.
" " This relation (chattel-slavery) my weak ailies. I want to ask rid of all the weakness in myself. I want to know what I can depend on in you and in myself. Swear! Do not look in the heavens for save Look in womand. Do not relations of master and hireling. It must not be forgotten or overlooked that the relations of master and alays and concessions. relations of master and slave are cormaster's duties, as the slave belongs to the master for the performance (when able) of a slave's duties. In this respect, each may with equal propriety be said to own the other. Hence, in decreptude or old age, the slave can say "I have all things and abound. I own a master whose sole estate and whose own personal energies are pledged for my support." The slave is, therefore, independent and happy. Not so the poor hireling who is wholly dependent on his daily labor for his daily bread. In sickness or old age, and often at other times, his only prospect is starration, or the repulsive charity of a seitish and often beartless

"In the very nature of things, then, no such identity of interest or aym-pathy of feeling can possibly exist be-tween the master and hired servant, as we have seen to exist between the master and slave. On the contrary, the relation of master and bired ser-vant is purely mercenary, and the in-terests of the two parties antagonistic, rather than identical. Each is impelled continually by selictmess to obtain the greatest possible amount, worther asserted or of hire, for the least pos-

THE DOCTRINE OF "SUCCESS."

Of all the political doctrines sown broadcast by the intellectual retainers of the industrial barons, that of the attainability of individual material success is the worst. It is a doctrine falsely preached, founded on utterly false assumptions, and it serves to give to its volaries a false estimate of life and the conditions of the industrial struggle. It is even at its best, a prilless, rathless creed; and as it is ordinarily preached, it waives ethical considerations of every sort and urgan only the worst world sime, and tacity sauctions the most brutal and repactions existed in the most brutal and repactions are the most br life and the conditions of the indus-

RENEGADE CASSON'S WORK.

The development of the Socialist movement has afforded a field for another sort of intellectual prostitute than the poor since who eats the crumbs of capitalism by writing from dictation on the public press. A demand has arisen for the product of the "genius" who has discovered his error in espousing Socialism and a more efficacious method of relieving the distress of humanity, and within a more speedy method. The capitalists are first to endorse this method of their destruction, if perchance their "destruction" is involved, and their subsidies give widest circulation to the profundity of the apostate.

The latest of these aspirants for notoriety and the bloody silver of capitalism is Herbert N. Casson, once wiltor of a "Socialistic" paper called the "Coming Nation"—not to be confounded with the excellent paper by that name published at Rich Mill, Mo. a sunce-writer in the employ of labor a "friend" Hearst, and a capper for sale of his talents.

Camon's talent consist in his ability to say things in an entersmatic suspery way in sentences susceptible of dis-connection. In this manner is his latest effort contributed; and it is because of the style thereof that his contradictions are liable to pass unques-tioned, to the deceiving of the con-scientions and unsispecting member-ship of trades unions into whose hands it is intended, by all possible means

With all his fulsome praise of organ ized labor and its achievements, Casson cannot refrain from exhibiting his contempt for it. After proposing a list of middle class reforms as the program for its political guidance, he injects this gratituous insult: "If the business and professional men in a city will not take the first steps toward musicipal ownership, the trade unions should lead the way," thus making them the followers and trading stock of the netty adminers.

What he expends on himself and family and donates in gifts of esteem and sympathy to any one is efficient and useful. Articles of luxury and sumptuous service so bestowed are useful. But what is wrested from the workers is wasted as rapine and war waste, as discuployment wastes, as unsanitary surroundings waste, and as "business" wastes,

Such waste must proged as long as workers are compelled to yield their products to exploiters and exchange the little they are allowed to keep on unequal terms. Perfect utility will not exist till workers exchange on equal terms with workers. Now to the question before us.

How do the products of labor get into the bands of non-producers? There are many seccers, big and

The landlord for a place to live on and for access to elementary ma-

The trafficker for the use of th things and for the use of the mediun in which all the tolls are paid. This medium is the unique device of the really made.

The traffickers are an immen borde dealers, carriers, bankers, brok-ers, insurance men-those who sell, ship or speculate—venders of product, passage and information and the money by means of which all ex-changes are made. I might put usurers into a separate tribe, and professional parasities into another; but they are all traffickers, in-separable from the wage system, and heroes of our mercenary days. So let them march along in the third divi-

I am thus insistent because many

Remember the landlord who takes

Remember the landlord who takes tribute for the place, the employer for the plant, the trafficker for the social product. The first exploits the land direct, the second our bodies direct, the third the marks of all our needs direct—and the tetal of all their axploitations is what labor, in addition to his present wages, should receive. WARNING TO NEW READERS.

The party which The Worker supports is known in the nation as the Socialist Party. In New York, on account of certain provisions of the elec-tion laws, it is obliged to call itself the Social Democratic Party; its emblem in New York is the Arm and Torch.

The Socialist Labor Party is an en-tirely separate and hostile organiza-tion, led and controlled by Daniel De Leon. It is important that the distinc-tion be made clear, as a study of the election returns shows that the S. L. P. gets many votes not intended for it, on account of the similarity of names.

The present Socialist Party was formed three years ago by the union of the old Social Democratic Party, organized in 1807, with the majority faction of the old Socialist Labor Party, which had split in the summe cratic Party polled about 97,000 votes in 1900, with Eugene V. Debs and Job Harriman as its national candidates; in 1992 it increased its vote to about 230,000. The Socialist Labor Party polled less than 35,000 in 1900 and about 50,000 in 1902. The leading question of party policy at issue in the split of 1809 was that of the attitude of the party toward the trade unions. The opponents of De Leonism held that the party, as the political organization of the working class, and the unions, as its economic organization, should work fraternally, though independently, in their separate fields. The De Leonites maintained that it was necessary "smash" all existing unions.

Since the split, while the Socialist Party or Social Democratic Party has vigorously attacked capitalism and taught Socialist principles, the Socialist Labor Party, disgracing its once honorable name, has devoted its ef-forts almost exclusively to two objects: First, to hamper the growth of the Socialist Party; second, to attack. undermine, or disrupt the trade unions The difference between our party summed up under four heads: 1. We fight against capitalism all the time, giving to the rival organisation only so much attention as is necessary to prevent misunderstanding, confu-Socialists; the S. L. P. fights us, and treats the propaganda of Socialism as a secondary matter. We support the trade unions, without seeking to interfere in their special work or allowing them to dictate to us in ours; the S. L. P. seeks and works for the destruction of the trade unions with a vigor second only to that with which it attacks us; not content with denunciation, it has even gone into the economic field to form rival unious and scab upon the exist-

by democratic methods, believing that only so can the organization be kept pure and the members trained for their growing responsibility as Socialand dissent from his views is punished by suspension or expulsion. 4. In advocating the cause of Socialism we seek to convince mea by argument and appeals to their intelligent interest as wage-workers and to their feelings of honor or humanity; the 8. L. P. depends upon abusive epithets, lies, and "bluff."

This article is intended as a warning to those who are new to the movement and who naturally suppose from its name that the Socialist Labor Party is a bona fide Socialist organization, or who do not even observe the dis-function between it and the Socialist Party. If any of our readers doubt the fairness of our statements we suggest that they investigate for themselves— attend the meetings and read the pa-pers and pamphlets of both parties and thoughtfully compare them. If any us and we do not want him. desire is that the distinction between the parties should be recognized as it actually exists, and that men who ap prove of the methods of the Socialis Party—as represented, for instance, it The Worker-should not unwittingly cast their votes or their influence on the other side.

Largest and Most Satisfactory Convention in the Party's Mistory-To Be followed by its Most Vigorous State Campaign.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 28.—The largest and most satisfactory state convention in the history of the Socialint Party of Massachusetts was held in Paine Memorial Hall to-day. One hundred and fifty-five delegates were in attendance—among them half a dozen women—and every part of the state was represented. Only Good Feeling Manifested.

The convention was distinguished from those so familiar in the old par-ties by the absence of wire-pulling and log-rolling, by frankness in discussion and harmony of feeling, and by the obvious desire of every delegate, not to get personal advantage or recognition, but to contribute to the common suc-

Among the important resolutions of the correctness of the count in any election district should be regarded as a sufficient reason for demanding a recount, since the law does not give the larry representation among the pre-cinct officers. While it is no exaggeration to my that the organizing work carried on by the national Socialist Party during the past eight months has exceeded that performed in any similar length of time before, yet even this was not all that was needed or desired to be done. It is simple enough to inaugurate a work of this kind; the great difficulty comes in continuing it after it has be-gun. It was quite impossible to sat-isfy all sections requiring or asking for organizers at one and the same time The number of argunizers employed was not sufficient to go around, the territory to be covered too large, and the resources of the national office too lin ited. For these reasons many countries have been disappointed, and it me cases impatience has been manifested at being "neglected," when the national office was doing the best it could. The Quorum and National Committee are more than auxious to comote the organizing work, but they ould not do it under the circum-nuces, however much they desired to.

But the "Appeal to Reason" dona tion, while not altogether solving the problem, makes the way easier. Upon its receipt the National Secretary sub-mitted to the Quorum propositions which he has long had in mind, for extending the organizing activity into territory heretofore untouched. It is estimated that the Standard Oll Company has taken, by contract or by force, the business of 10,000 corporations and merchants in all parts of the Union. As the crowd gathered Comrade Goaxion called attention to the accessity of keeping the sidewalk clear and was beginning to show the necessity of a class organization on the political field, as well as the conomic field, to a very large and enthusiastic crowd when the Chief of Police, who ap-peared to be under the influence of something stronger than Monougabels water, came up and ordered him to atop in a very brutal manner. He was then taken before an Alderman and the charge of disorderly conduct and blocking the street was entered against him by the Chief. The Squire said the full penalty was $10, but if he would plend guilty he was inclined to be as lenient as possible. Why the Organized Churches Oppose Socialism and Criticize the Trade Unions as They Grow More Radical-A Letter by W. E. Clark, Rejected by the Omaha "Bee".

[No doubt all of our readers have observed the dispatches in the daily press, telling of the assault which certain bishops and pricets of the Catholic for its aim the preparation of the hutain bishops and priests of the Catholic Church have recently made upon the trade unions, particularly the luternational Typographical Union, and of the manly response of the union men, ir respective of church affiliation.

This particular attack, which centered upon the I. T. U. at Omnia, but a part, of course, of the campaign which the organized churches are making against the labor movement all over the world and which grows more bitter in proportion as the labor organizations come to recognize the class struggle and approach the Socialist rosition. If the Catholic priesthood has been more conspicuous in attack it is only because that church is better organized and has more vigor and vitality than the Protestant churches. that "If necessary, the state itself can enter the industrial field as a producer and restore the force of competition to its former supremacy by becoming itself a competitor of the great trusts."

When they do this, we re bound to meet the attack. If they enter the field of politics and labor or ganization in their espacity as clergy men, they must not expect to be able to shield themselves from reply by the As Socialists or as trade religion.' uniquists, we have nothing to do with this or that religion; but we must re-sist and expose any man who makes his ecclesiastical office an agency for Every thoughtful mind necessarily wants to know why these attacks are made against the union, and also against Socialism. When it was given out from the meeting of priests in an Iowa town, that the Catholic Church would make an effort to uproot Social-ism in the United States, it caused a much deeper interest to be taken in the study of Socialism than anything those priests have done in all their lives. IN THE MIND OF EVERY HVOR. IN THE MIND OF EVERY MAN WHO IS BRAVE ENOUGH TO THINK FOR HIMSELF, THERE AROSE A SPIRIT OF RESENT-MENT AND A DETERMINATION TO LOOK INTO THIS THING THAT THE PRIESTS CONDEMNED.

The "Good Old Days" Are Sone.

There was a time when a preacher could prevent the spread of a doctrine he did not like—or, more properly speaking, one his masters, the capitalist class, did not like-by simply commanding the people not to read books on the subject nor to listen to a speaker who taught the thing condemned. With all intelligent people that day has forever passed, it is int- that day has forever mas only the intellectual bankrupts, the undeveloped, the slavish, those of the rack is because they dare not, cowardly souls, who can be held in subjection by the mere command of another man. There was a time when the thumb-screw could be used to force men and women to profess faith in unbelievable | bell, where they will writhe in an things. There was a time when men and women were torn limb from limb at the command of a priest. But that day is past, and because it has gone, the priest resorts to the only power he has left, that of promising eternal damnation to those who disagree with him. To the workingman who joins a union, which he holds more sacred than any other institution, because it ensures him a job by which he can make a miserable living for bimself and family, to that man the price holds out no hope of salvation. The union man must become a traitor to his fellow men or the priest will send him to hell.

Why Clergy Oppose Socialism. Let me as a Socialist say to that fact, so often exposed in recent years, that the church is controlled by capitalist class. And that leads church's distike of Socialism. Let the two be briefly compared.

The aim of the Socialist Party is 'the organization of the working class into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of govern-ment and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of oduction and distribution into ple." This statement itself proves that the Socialist Party is under Tiffis, which towns contain great numbers of factory workers.

man inhabitants of this world—or some of them—for what it calls the future life, or the existence beyond the grave. The church is PROFESSED-LY concerned with the salvation of the human soul, and preparation for eternity; but IN FACT, it is continually interesting itself in the affairs of this life, and invariably ON THE SIDE OF THE RULING CLASS. It makes no difference whether the rulers are good or had men, so long as they are in undisputed control (and protect the church the church upholds and prays for the ruling class. For proof of this recall the Spanish-American war, when the Catholic Church of Spain prayed God to bless the Spanish army, while the Catholic Church of America prayed the same God to bless the American army. From the results, I suppose the Americans got their message in first. And before the war of '61 the Methodist, Baptist, and Pres-byterian churches simultaneously opposed slavery in the North and prayed r it in the South. It is also a torious fact that the Catholic Church for it in the South, supports tyrainly in one country and a republic in another; the Republican party in one state and the Democratic party in another.

We Did Mot Court the Conflict.

Thus it is seen by comparing the position of the church with that of the socialist Party that in one respect they are in open and immediate conflict; while the Socialist Party has for its aim the abolition of the capitalist class, which is the present ruling class, the church uphoids the capitalist class BECAUSE THAT CLASS SUP-

PORTS THE CHURCH.

But let it be understood that the Socialist Party has nothing to say in its platform concerning the church, and that WE NEVER WOULD HAVE HAD ANYTHING TO SAY ABOUT THE CHURCH IF ITS PRIESTS HAD NOT RUSHED TO THE AID OF THE CAPITALIST CLASS, and showed by that act that it was the

Hor Do We Fear the Conflict

The church having chosen to defend the capitalist class, having picked up the gauntlet that the Socialist Party has thrown in the face of the class that robs the worker of his toil, let it look to its own fences. We are making our fight on economic grounds. With us, it is a bread-and-butter ques-tion, and the priest that gets between the working class and its hope for bread, no matter if he does come with the threat of hell, can have no more effect upon Socialism than his predecessors had on science two hundred rears ago.

The Socialist Party has for its object the control of governments by the working class, so that the workers of the world can have the full social value of their toil, and we have no fear of any man or institution that gets in our way. It is purely a question of intellectual development, of intellectual honesty. We are making a clean and open fight, and if the priest chooses to stand outwardly on the ground of preparing the soul for etera-ity while he is secretly aiding the capi-talist class to hold the worker in subjection, so that he can be the more easily gobbed of the product of his toll, let him do so. It simply shows to what slepths of degradation the capito the rack is because they dare not, "The spirit is willing, but the fiesh is weak." And not being able to burn us at the stake, they show their spirit by eternity of fire. Civilization having de our bodies, they threaten to destroy

According to the latest dispatches the military and civil authorities are in open conflict. Some of the prisoners taken have at last been handed over to the courts, but the system of military intimidation still prevails.

General Chase is very frank and truthful in his statement. He is not at Cripple Creek to enforce the laws of a free people. He is not there to meintain nence and civil order. He is there to settle the strike. He is there to crush the workingmen's organica tion, to permeente its leaders, to intimidate its members, to protect the owners of the mines and amelters in entrapping men by fraud and bolding them by force to act as seabs until the strikers shall be starved into submission. 'He is there for this infamous purpose by the order of Republican Governor Penbody, with the tacit approvat of Republican President Mooserelt, with the open approval of almost the whole Republican and Democratic press of the country, to serve the interests of the Republican and Democratic capitalists who live in juxury on the product of the other men's labor by the ownership of the means of production.

There are two ways in which the labor question, the irreconcliable conflet between the interests of capitalwners and wage-workers may be settled.

One in General Chases' way: To crush the wagesfronkers into complete submission by the use of brute force. But that cannot successfully be done in single and isolated instances. If it is to have any chance of success, it must be made a universal system. The organization of workingmen must everywhere be destroyed, the press must be subjected to a despotic censor ship, discussion of the relations of Lahor and Capital must be forbidden, the workingmen must be deprived of the

The other is the Socialist way: To make the means of production which the joint labor of the working class has created and kept in repair, which the joint labor of the working class operates, which are necessary to the existence of society-to make them the property of the whole people for the the state of Colorado that this quest use of all, that all may work and re- Atlanta need a little chain-gang medicuive the full product of their labor This cannot be done successfully in ably get it if they ever show spirit These are the words of Brigadier single and isolated instances. "Everyone expendenced in the art of government realizes the importance of directing the human mind while it is yet in its formative stage, as expressed in the saying. Give me a child until his seventh year and I care not who has him afterward.' If a truthful his tory of industry were taught in the last year of the grammar grade in all pub-lic schools to-day, Socialism would be here in eight years, even if not 'iii 1998.' Eight years added to thirteen the average age of grammar school graduates, would settle capitalism for "It is altogather possible that if our flecislist members of school committees realised the situation, they might, though in the minority, bring about the introduction of, or at leas a demand for, instruction of this kind.

"Is this not worth attention?"

We heartify concur in the suggestion and would aid that, even where we have no members upon the local school boards or committees, parents of school children could often exercise a very good influence by looking into the textbooks used and the methods of instructions in vogue and making appropriate suggestions to the school authorities.

To-day the schools are undoubtedly med to instit into the children's minds ideals of patriotism and public duty and theories of economies and politics which, while true enough for the soclety of haif a century ago, are pernicionaly faise to-day, It must be remembered, however, that this is not altogether a matter of purposeful miseducation, though it is partly so. To a great extent it is due to the passive acceptance by the teachers of traditional beliefs and feelings. It would h ewell worth while for our comrades everywhere to try to educate the teachers on questions of the day.

____ "What in the world is a rich man good for but to shell out his riches to the Church of God and to educational institutions?" was the sentiment expressed by the Rev. Dr. William C. Birting of the Mount Morris Baptist Church in his sermon last Sunday. We would like to ask the Rev. Bitting this counter question; If the rich man is good for nothing but to "shell out." how is he entitled to the millions which he receives; and why should the people pay profits to the rich man who is "good for nothing" but to "shell out" for a lot of kept preachers and professurs who educate the people to believe that the rich man is entitled to the riches turned over to him in the shape of rent, profit, and interest? It is evident that the function of the rich man in, as the Rev. Bitting says, to "shell out" a small part of his uncarned woulth to the preachers and profeatures; and it is also evident, as the Rev. Bitting does NOT say, that the function of the preachers and professors is to see that the rich man continnes to get his uncarned wealth, bays the preacher to the rich man and replies the rich man to the preacher "You tickle me and I'll tickle you, and the people be damaed,"

Our attention is called to the fact that in Atlanta, Ga., where a member of the Socialist Party was arrested this summer and sentenced to a term in the chain-gang for daring to speak for the rights of the working class, the Labor Day celebration was algualized by an oration by Mayor Howell, the man who imposed this infamous sentence in violation of constitution, law, public policy, and common decency. An Atlanta comrade, commenting upon this exhibition, rightly says: "Labor has enough ability to ensure success upon any occasion without falling back upon the functionaries of capitalism. It is time this toad-eating business stopped." Emphatically, it is, It would seem that the trade unionists of enough to resent capitalist aggression by a vicocous strike. Experience is proverbially a hard teacher, but some people learn from no other. And unfortunately the tond-enters of the labor movement are not confined to Atlanta. WE ACCROWLEDGE OUR ENDOR. The Worker has made not a few nistakes and will probably make meny in the future. It hopes never to be too weak to admit such mistakes when it discovers them and to sei them right so far as it is possible to

Last week, in the article entitled "A Question of Socialist Ethics," we made such a mistake. We violated our usual rule of postponing comment upon questions of party discipline untiamed upon by the party itself. When it was too late we discovered that we had acted upon partial and misleading information and had been utterly mis taken in our statement of fact. We do not question the good faith of our informants, but frankly assume the blame for having formed and expressed a judgment without sufficient examination of the evidence.

We stated that a lawyer who is member of the party had acted as counsel for an employer in getting an he was in trouble, and expressed the opinion that a member who did this nust be struck from the membership

H is devoted to an account of the development of Modern Socialism in this country, and contains chapters out the Antebellum Period, The International in the United States, The Period of the Socialist Labor Party, and Present-Day Socialism. The book also contains brief but complete accounts of all radical reform movements in this country with which the Socialist movement has in the course of the development come into ntact, such as the Free Soll, Green-ick, Anarchist, Single Tax, Nationalist, and Ponnilst movements; and niso a chapter on the history of the trade-

THE DEGEREPATION OF JAURES.

We have several times expressed our deen regret that Jaurès, who five of six years ago was an useful and stai-wart a Socialist as any man in Europe, should new he deliberately going over into the "progressive" capitalist camp. It is very sad; for Jaurès is atili quite It is very sad; for Jaurès is still quite young in the movement, and, had he not been in such a desparate hursy to take official place, and to act with the large official place, and to act with the conficial place, and to act with the conficial place, and to act with the conficial place, and to act with the same official place, and to act with the same official place, and to act with the same of the conficial place, and to act with the same of the conficial place and to act with the same of the conficial place. At any rate, that is the effect of his long, labored and wearisome dia tribes against Kantsky in the "Petite République." What is over worse, Janees goes out of his way to minicad his renders on the whole les It is quite certain that the vast major sty of European and American Socialists—as will be shown at Ameterdani next year-do not in the least object to taking part in municipal work or is parliamentary business as Socialists. On the contrary, they are strongly in favor of this, the only practical course at the memoric. But they do most strongly oppose action which causes Socialists to sink their principles in a capitalist "blee," after the manner of Jaurès and Milerand, or to kotow to the Rainer after the Taskies adversaled by Bernstein. All the verbiage, and rhestorical dedgery of Jaurès—and it is not a little—will not obscure that issue. Instead of working for unity, therefore, Jaurès, like Bernstein, is frananting disruption; but the necessionists from Socialism will not be very nemenous, nor, as Jaurès is new going memout. But ther do mos memons, nor, as Jaurès is now going on, very important.—London Justice.

To my mind the greatest danger that we have a class strongle. Met which confronts the Socialist movement at the present time is from the Animals have been hungry and have demagoguery of the "professional pro-leterian." I am led to this belief part-ly by an examination of the previous history of labor and Socialist movements. It has always been some selfstyled "horny-handed aon of tell" who has betrayed and sold out the working class. It has been one of the oldest tricks of capitalist politicians to play upon the blee that the ignorance and coarseness which capitalism had forced upon the working class was a surety of honesty and a reason for re-posing trust. The professional pro-letarian, therefore, always exaggerates just those proleturian features which capitalism has taught him are most desimble. He boasts of his ignorance, is proud of his tack-of knowledge, and meks to trade upon the capitalistic

A striking libestration of this position has been afforded by a series of grifices which have recently appeared in "The Socialist" of Seattle, signed by Comrade A. A. Lewis, The tieles by themselves would be unim-portant, but as typical of a phase of ocialism they are worthy of some consideration. They seem to have been aimed, primarily, at the work of Com-ragle Walter Thomas Mills. Nov. while I will at once agree that there are many things about the work of Comrade Mills with which I am far from pleased, yet nothing that he has ever done is as bad as the gloritiestion of ignorance to be found in these arricles. The burden of Comrade Lawis' writings consists of success at any study of the great body of thought upon which Socialism is built. He wishes to confine us to "right now." He is evidently all unaware that he is here agreeing absolutely with the insists that all such "nomense" as the materialistic interpretation of history, the evolution of industry, etc., shall be left out of "practical politics," but also that all political efforts shall be conbund in the same way to "getting some-

Yet the fact is that but of the ma p things by which Socialists and Socialism have been distinguished from hourgeois superficiality has been in the basic studies which it has made in just these fields at which he sucers. "The Communist Manifesto," Engels' "Oriz-in of the Family," Marx's "Capital," Lafargue's "Evolution of Property." these are the classics of Socialism, and all of them would come under the ban of Comrade Lewis' censorship. We would suggest that a little less ranting and a little more reading on the part of some Socialists would perhans be of sittle to them and to the cause of Soialism. Eugels' "Secialism, Utopian and Scientific," not only goes back late pre-historic times, but concerns likelf with the most, abstract and metaphysical questions. Morgan's "Ancient Boelety" is the one great contribution annue by was so recognized by Mark and Engels, and yet this concerns itself exclusively with pre-historic times, and savage tribus. It is not less but more learning that the Rocalists of this country need. We are still far behind those of almost any country, and particularly of Gerany country, and instrumently of der-points. One of the reasons for the mag-nificent salidity of the German move-ment is to be found in the fact that the Socialist publishing house of "Vor-waerts" sends out large numbers of works on evolution, ethnology, and al-field sciences. It was the knowledge Hed sciences. It was the knowledge of these sciences which made possible a knowledge of the class struggle. It is not simply because a man is hungry ism.

THE NEBRASKA AFFAIR

Anent the metion of National Committeeman Turner of Missouri to dis mins the charges against National Committeemen Mills of Kansan and Committeemen Mills of Kansas and Critchlow of Ohlo, based on the support given by them to the so-called "Socialist Prepaganda Club" of Omaha, the Nebraska State Quorum, which originated the charges, has submitted a full statement of facts to the National Committee, It is declared that before the present state organization of the Socialist Party in Nebraska came into existence. the name of the party had been made use of and a spurious organization formed by politicians in Republican employ. We quote:

"Politically, Nebraska is a doubtful

date, as between the Republican and Democratic parties, and especially since 1888, when fusion was consum-mated between the Democratic party and the Populists, who formed a considerable factor in Nebraska politics Since fusion was accomplished, it has been to the interest of the Republican politicians to encourage any radical novement which might draw votes from the Fusionists. For this reason, the Middle of the road Populists recelved substantial aid and encourage ment from the Republicans in 1896 and afterwards. As a reward for this. 'lem Deaver, the Middle-of-the-road ender, is now enjoying a $7,000-a-year job by grace of the Republican admin "When it became evident that the

of a factor as an ludependent move ent, the Republican leaders turned their attention to organizing the Bo-cinists.' As a result, a Bocinist state convention was held at Lincoln on July 4, 1900, but there being only 84 croom in attendance, 116 less than re-quired by law, they were forced to adourn without putting a ticket in the field. This failure compelled the Mid-dle-of-the-road Populist leaders, Jas. A. Boyce, L. V. Guye, and D. Clom Denver, to come to Omaha to get a 'Socialist' ticket in the field. Here they formed an allimace with Theo. Kharas, Thomas Edwards, Geo. E. Baird, F. H Alexander, C. C. Chambers, and J. B. Randolph. The four last named were the originators of the Socialist Propu zanda Club.' A convention was held on Sont. 26 and a ticket was nominated with Kharas for Governor, Baird for Congress, and Edwards for the Legis-We have in our powersion as proof of the foregoing siliance, the fol-lowing letter written to T. "After the election the gang quarreled. Baird and Edwards, who were both in the pay of the Republican party—the proof of their guilt is also in our possession—united and brought charges against Klaras, proved he had received $119 from the Republican party and expelled him from the or ganization.

"In the meautime, real Socialists were joining the Socialist Party, and it became necessary for the good of the cause to clean house. In 1972, itaird was found guilty of corruption and was expelled from Local Omain. Alexander withdrew while charges were pending. A contest followed he-tween finird. Alexander & Co. and the regular party organization to obtain cossection of the state ticket, which and nominated at Omnha, July 4, 1902. with Geo. E. Bischow for Governor. The State Committee was compelled to take the case into the courts, where a decision was given the Committee and Buird and his collengues were finally shut out of the party.

"During the months following the last state campaign and until March of this year, these expelled member were inactive, except for the quiet work 'on the side' they were doing to cause disentisfaction and disruption in Local Omalia. But after the national mrters of the party was established here, not upon our solicitation or suggestion, but principally through Comrade Mills (who was well aware of the situation in Omains, Baird and Alexander became openly active through the organization of the Omaha Socialist Propaganda Club. and an announcement was abortly afterwards made through the daily press that this crowd had arranged for a series of lectures by Walter Thomas fills. As soon as this engagement was definitely verified by Local Oma-Millio. ha, the Secretary was instructed to notify Comrade Mills of the character of the organization he had engaged cancel the engagement. The result of this request you know through the cordence submitted with the resolu respondence submitted with the resolu-tion of Local Omaha adopted against Courado Mills for his action in encommunian a rival organization to the cialist Party.

Now, we wish to point out that the contest waged in Nebraska last year between the corrupt element, led by Geo. E. Baird, was at the time her Feo. E. Baird, was at the time brought to the attention of the National Com-nittee, of which Comrade Mills was then a member, and the names and character of the men composing that self, was in Omaha during the state campaigh of last year and know per-sonally of the difficulties the State Committee was having in keeping the Sebraska movement from being used for corrupt ends. And yet we find Comrade Mills assisting this very element to defeat our purpose, and Com-rate Critchlow doing the same thing with his Lecture Bureau. Is it any wonder that the Nebraska Quorum has protested, and will continue to protest, against such acts on the nort of med contint Party?

"We wish also to point out that no reason has been given why there should be two organizations of Socialists in Omaha. These men who have organised and supported the Bocialist Propaganda Club have never pre-sented a reason why that club should be in axistence. They cannot truth fully charge that the members of Local aha are inactive, or even that out side speakers are not engaged. comrades of Omaha are uncensingly active. Outdoor meetings are constantly held, sometimes every night and literature sold and distributed in large amounts. Our account with C. H. Kerr & Co. fur literature is, we venture to say, larger comparatively than that of any other organized state. The only time the 'Propaganda ('lub' is heard of, is when a speaker of mational reputation appears its auspices.

"It is cisimad that the Proportant "It is chilmed that the "configuration Club' is composed almost entirely of workingmen. This is probably true, but many of these workingmen do not know the true situation, and join the club through sympathy, and also become those are to down to take. It is cause there are no dues to pay. It is the greater wrong to the Socialist cause that the Socialist workingmen of Omaha should be thus divided through the machinations of corrupt politicians

"In the matter of speakers, Lowi Omaha has had, during the past eighteen morrhs, in addition to its local speakers, among others the following John C. Chase, the Wentworths, Carl D. Thompson, Fredk. G. Strickland, Goo, E. Bigelow, Walter Thomas Mills, Geo. R. Kirkpatrick, Wenonah Stevens Abbott, Maran, H. Dunham, Geo, E. Boomer, J. Stitt Wisson, Wintleld R. Gaylord, Wm. H. Wise, Harry M. McKee, and we have attempted to secure Eugene V. Deba and Mother Jones. He it caunot be said that Local Oundin has not given a hearing to all kinds of speakers. We have never declined to use Comrade Mills' services. Neither have we objected to him or any other Socialist stienker antienring in Nebraska under non-Socialist anopiess. But we have protested against him being advertised and used to lecture as a National Committeeman of the Socialist Party for an organization of non-party members, organized by corrupt politicians into a so-called Socialist Propaganda Club for the avowed purpose of characting the work of and disrupting Local Ounda, We believe this is a contention with which every Socialist will Committee act decisively upon this question, not only because the party organization in Nebraska bant stake or later affect every other organized state. The Nebraska comrades have never favored state autonomy to a great extent, but now that that rule is in the constitution, we asked that it be observed in letter and spirit for own protection. At present the work of the State Quorum is being disorganized through the efforts of those who sup port the 'Propagnica Club', whe'c were it not for this support. Every prominent speaker who enters Omaha strengthens the hands of men who are co-operating with capitalist politicans to control the Socialist Party. Every time a Mills is advertised to speak for it as 'National Committeeman from Kansus,' or a lingerty endorses this club by his presence in Omaha under its mapices, so much higher does the capitalist political bose rate the ser-vices of its birelings who promote the clpb.

"We appeal to you to act now, hecause there appears to be a systematic attempt on foot to thwart the efforts of the Quorum to establish locals and carry on a state propaganda. Some ter from Carl D. Thompson, offering to tour the state under the direction of the Quorum. We replied that the unthough office was trying to make dutes for Comrade Hanford in the state, and that we expected to have the nominess on the state ticket visit the locale and therefore, we could not entertain his position. Notwithstanding this, unpson, although a member of the party in the state, is speaking for locals, ignoring and interfering with the pinns of the Quorum. So far, our three dates have been secured for Hanford, while Thompson is carrying on bla independent campaign.

"The Quorum has been arranging Michigan and Ohio, We have gone to some expanse and labor to arrange these circuits, but Thompson's engage-ments have interfered with this work. When he visited Omaha last week, he spent a whole day in the city never visited state headquarters, but connected entirely with members of the Tropagnida Club, although he was speaking for marty locale in the state.

"The question may be asked: 'Why does the State Committee not have Thompson disciplined, if he is a menber in Nebraska? And have ever party paper and writer and speaker howl us down as 'intelerant' and 'bureaucraticy'

"Reports in the Socialist press also inform us that Walter Thomas Mil's has been speaking, during the past month, for locals in the state, and the without in any way consulting or noti-fying the Quorum. Does this look like the state autonomy of which Mills been such an ardent advocate? Or is it Mills' conception of state autonomy that the National Committee as a whole must not enter a state without the consent of the state organization, while National Committeeman Milk, individually, may do so at pleasure?

"In the matter of Comrade Hagerty, Local Omnia declined his services because he did not come through the National Lecture Bureau, which we believe is the correct method to pur-age in the case of outside speakers. If the national headquarters cannot send speakers into an organized state with our the consent of that state organiza-tion, then the different state com-mittees should reciprocate and only accept outside speakers through national headquarters. Committeeman Critchlow should send Comrade Hagerty here under the auspices of the 'Propaganda Club,' while our protest was still pending before the analysis of wealth production, published in the July number of the "American Federationist" is a tramendous fake. I impact its author, Mr. F. G. R. Gordon, on the following

He falsified figures: He avoided fact;

He disclosed no method save one of favoritism—and the exploiters get all

I will prove every count of this in-First, ich me ony right here, I dis-daim any desire to criticise the editor of The Worker. If Gordon basely or dunderingly manipulated the census figures, it is not the fault of the editor The Worker. The latter, as I are it, dimply agreed with Gordon that some Socialists were making crude state neuts, were securing a quotient by diriding a gross total of wealth produ on in thousands of establishments but alleged average of workmen usands of establishments by school-loy method--(alse Indeed--but not so false as Gordon's. Why? Because the crude statements of the critical Socialists, erroneous as they are in detail, taken as a whole, are orrect in result. In so far as averages of the division, of labor-produced wealth are concerned, while Gordon's averages are ridiculously inaccurate Now take down Volume VII of the Twelfth United States Consus-the rensus of 1900. Turn to pages 78 to 01, inclusive. For to-day make an especial study

The items of all material, used in 512.254 establishments by 5,568,400 wage-carners, are grouped, in a general table, under the following heads:

Partly manufactured ma-Hent of power and heat, 10,980,253

In an inquiry such as we have on hand, the general tables on pages 58 to 67 are the right ones to use, because only legitimate workers for the world of communee are there enrolled. In the tables used by Mr. Gordon, penal. chemonymany and governmental estab-lishments are included. The totals are all a little ligher, but the average of wealth production is less.

This is his first blunder. Though it helps him in his design to reduce "La-bor's Beal Share," it might have been named if he had not committed more

I enter a decided objection when he rtates that $7,348,144,755 represents the cost of only two items, namely, partly manufactured and raw material, mands a further sum of $323. pense, as well as the outlay for mili supplies and rest of power and heeft, is included in the enormous total of $7,545,144,755—the whole cost, as set down in the Twelfth Ossaus, of all material, all supplies, all fuel, all instruction on suppress on tree, as feeding and all payments for power and heat, is all establishments—penal, electrosynary and governmental being included, with the effect of heasting expenses and lowering the individual average of production.

Prom this lowered average of wealth production, Mr. Gerfon, alleged cham-pion of "Labor's Real Share," land de-ducted the cost of furl and freight And, after mistracting for mill sup-

For the banefit of the Labor Press, "THE WORKER" and the "NEW YORKER VOLKSZEITUNB," is being arranged, and will take place April 23 to May 8, 1904; at the BRAND CENTRAL PALACE, Forty-third and Fortyfourth Streets, New York.

By this method the "share" is whittled down to a miserable pit-

He admits that, according to the census, the average yearly wage of the worker is $437.50. Then, interpreting his false figures by a faber method, he concludes that "not less than 75 per cent." of labor's product is received by labor. If that is true, the full average product of each individual worker would he about $580.00 per year, or $1,85 per day. To this monstrons conclusion he forced by his absurd analysis.

His method faiser than his figures? Of what value to anyone, whose object is to discover the full amount of wealth produced by labor and the ctual pe reentage received by it, is any actual percentage received by it, is any analysis that ignores-the-landlord and the trafficker?

Workman and employer. These alone does Mr. Gordon see. The mas-ter who stands before the home and the one who stands before the market escape his vision. Or does he willfully conceal? concent?

He sets the maximum average wage of the toiler against an artificially reduced minimum of profits to the em-ployer, and exhibits a world reversed.

Prof. Thoroid Rogers, author of "Six Centuries of Work and Wages," showed that at the beginning of the fifteenth century, the Accreely eman cipated feudal nerf, working with crude hand tools, in small groups, a vast disadvantage compared to mod-era engines' find 'establishments, received an equivalent in quechasing wer, at present-day prices, of $5.00 per day.

Mr. Gordon informs the astonished world that the great; free (i) American workman, aided by steam, electricity, mammoth machinery and specialized method, is only capable of producing an average of $1.85 per day.

Nonsense from Mr. Gordon is perhaps not so remarkable as the fact that the "Attaclean Federationist" should publish it. Since the Middle Ages, the pro-ductive capacity of the individual has increased, in some cases, a thousand-fold; in more, a hundred-fold; in many, ten-fold. The greatest improvement has been in manufacturing industries. tirant but a four-fold increase and we bould have $12.00 per day

But Mr. Gordon, easting his false-hood in the teeth of fact, says we have gone buckward.
Three fleecers, the employer, the landlord and the trufficher, where the products of labor; and to the victim, the producer, is returned the mite which enables him to continue to prefree and maintain his status as vic-of $437.50 to purchase a portion of the product.

He forgots, or avoids the fact, that the hudford reduces this auth to $350.00; for rent (as the editor of The Worker has indicated) is at least onethirty years' experience as a ren mover shows it to be much more, and I often not more than the full product of my labor, if Mr. Gordon's $1.85 per day conclusion in correct. My rent was always nearly one-fourth of my mrome. Taking periods of disemploy-ment into consideration, it approached one-third. The experiences of my acquaintances have been the same. The daily facts of life prove to me that ren is about one-fourth of the in the workers. But accept one-fifth as the proper figure. The Massachusetts Suresu of Labor Statistics, 1862, after an ex-haustive investigation, fixed upon and man's outlay for rent. It is certainly not below that. oot below that. workman has but $350,00 when the landlord is done with him.

Now comes the third florcer, the Everybody knows that the laborer does not buy at factory prices, or ever rom wholesale houses. Even Mr. Gordon knows that:

I have before me his pamphlet, "Hard Times." In this, discussing the wealth production of 1890, he wrote of the workers in manufacturing and mechanical industry:

"This army of workers produced, or rented, from the raw material a value created, from the raw material a value of $4,081,237,271 monoured by the fac-tory price. If we add to the factory price the numerous expenses to after time three goods, 'pay 'commercia travelers, tegether with rest, interes and profits on same, we shall find it to be more than double the factory price, or $6,250,000,000 as the present value of one years, production. "The workers receive a wage for producing this west wealth that to day is equal to less than $1,050,000,000, or to put it pisisly, the workers geories (1897) for producing one dollar, ONLY TWENTY CENTS." So wrote Air, Gordon, Men the CAPITALS are Lis.

Now, if Mr. Gordon has changed his mind conscientiously, and is now con-vinced that the worker gets 75 cents out of every dollar produced, no one should denounce him for stating his honest couriction. But we have a right

He has no right to fabrily figures. He has no right to ignore facts. He must disclose a method that pays the workman in goods at the same

Therefore, I call upon F. G. R. Gordon to restore to the worker the $23,-251,077 which he twice subtracted for fuel and freight. I want back the su virons one hundred millions which he allows to junketing heads of corpora-tions, who spend their time, not is productio, or in superintending produc

Is this fair? Is just? Is it pot sufficient that Local Omaha should have its campaign against capitalism to conduct, withou being worked against in this manner Where will it all end, and what sort of an organization shall we have in this state, if the National Committee continues to permit such violations of the constitution?

"According to the reports of the National Secretary, some National Committeemen have attempted to ex cuse Comrades Mills and Critchlow, o the ground that Mills was acting as a propagandist in an individual capacity, and that Critchiow is acting as man ager of a lecture bureau. The ques tion then arises, can Mills, as an individual party member, do something Can any party member violate, with impunity, laws which as an official be helped to frame, and is supposed to et force? Is it not the more enquiren mon an official, as a moral example and as actual, real propagands, that the party laws are observed, ac that party members may be instructed and inspired to do likewise? "In the case of Critchlow matter are worse. He has admitted that he

reau only because he is State Secretary of Ohio. He is, therefore, at the present time, State Secretary, National Committeeman and manager of the Central Lecture Bureau. As State Secretary he should attend to matters cor erning his state only, and he has no right, thornly or otherwise, to exceed its limits in attending to party affairs But as manager of the lecture bureat he is violating the law of state autor omy, which he is supposed to uphold as National Committeeman, and sending speakers into other organized states over the protest of the state committees of such states. And when a protest is made against him for violati or the constitutional law as a Nation al Committeeman, he can endorse his actions as manager of a lecture bureau, through being State Secretary, by vot ing on this protest as a National Com-mitteeman. When objections are raised within his own state against his icts as manager of a lecture bureau Critchlow replies that he is State Sec-retary. When objections are made from other states against his acts as State Secretary, he responds that he is manager of a lecture bureau. So Comrade Critchlew (first) maintains state autonomy for Ohio because be State Secretary, (second) violates state autonomy in other states because he is manager of a lecture (third) endorses his acts in both in stances. as National Committeeman. We admit that this is a paradoxical position for one man to fill, but in the last analysis you will see that Com-Critchiow exercises the privilege in his triple capacity, to abrogate laws relating to other states which he at-tempts to hold inviolate in Ohio. This in his triple capacity, to abro is directly opposite to his position of last year, when he protested most veby National Secretary

This rule cal be actual wage-workers. This role has not yet been decided upon, and if it is adopted, the State Quorum argues, it will then be time for the National Committee to decide whether such action by a state is in violation of the national party constitution.

The statement concludes: "The Nebraska Quorum has not it perfored with the work in other states. although comrades elsewhere have not hesitated to interfere with ours, and so-called Socialist papers have per-sistently published misrepresentations of our cause and given space and encouragement to those who are fighting the party organization. We are entitled to the consideration and recognition due an integral part of the national organization. We have our protest upon a prin-ciple which affects every state in the country. We ask every National Comnliteeman, and every party member who reads these words, what other course can we pursue than what we ive in dealing with an organization

"If any local in the party anywhere was itself placed in the position of Local Qualit it would have to follow the same course, or go out of existence, And with the growth of the movenent, it will be to the interest of the apitalist class to have the movemen lyided as has been done in Omaha And no National Committeeman, or local, really a scere in the work, can afford to lay the way open for party fficials, speakers, or representatives o work injury to the party by giving name of Socialists."

This necessitates two things:

First, as this is a political campaign and the principal function of the street meetings is to advertise the fact of the party's existence, you should lose no opportunity to call attention to the party name, its emblem, its place in the third column on the ballot, and the names of at least its leading candi-dates. Do this at the beginning of dates. Do this at the beginning of your speech; do it at the end; and bring it in as often as you can be-

Second, while it is impossible to give a full and clear exposition of Socialism in five minutes, it is possible to state in much less than that time this vital and fundamental idea: If another man has control of the means by which I live, be controls my life; the capitalist class to-day has control of the means by which we, the worklug class, produce wealth and main tain life—the land, mines, railways, factories, and other machinery of production and transportation; we cannot live without working and we cannot work except by the permission of the capitalists; our class is dependent upon them for opportunity to use the means of production-that our class has created, and we have to work at their terms and live only by their consent; we can never become free as a class until we collectively own the things necessary to our work and our life.

This A B C of Socialism seems olivious to us that we often forget that it is not obvious to everyone else, and in elaborating on the statement of our principles and illustrating them or in exposing the character of the old par ties we are likely to pass over it too lightly and to let some of our heavers go away without a clear idea of what the Social Democratic Party stands But if we just get into a man's head that fundamental idea, we have given him the clue by which he can find his own way.

The speaker, then, should return to this basic idea again and again, vary-ing the phrases in which he states it, of course, but never failing to state in plain words this fact which lies at the ottom of every strike, every lockout, very blacklist, every injunction ngainst workingmen, every capitalist evil that we denounce. Don't be afraid to repeat it, for it is the core of do not group it they will get little help

You can add that the Census and the Labor Bureau reforts show that child labor is rapidly increasing and that there are always from one to two million men in the country out-of work and hunting for gauzing on a national scale to use the lockout, the blacklist, and a great system of spies to break the organizations of the working class. In this and in several previous issues of The Worker you will find details.

Its doors are open to every working-man who believes its principles and is willing to do his share for the common cause. Its platform strikes at the mon cause. Its platform strikes at the very root of all capitalist evils; it denies the right of the non-producing capitalist to control industry and extract profit from other mea's labor; it asserts the right and duty of every man to work and the right of the workers to the full product of their labor. It makes no companying with military power above the civil in or-der to break the miners' strike in the Cour d'Alènes in 1860 and Ljepublican abor. The Only Votes that Count.

The capitalists and their politica agenta fear and respect only the votes that are intelligently cast against them. So, long as the old parties are sure of the workingmen's votes, they will treat the workingmen's wisher with contempt as they have done in the past. Let them see that the workgave the decision against the Frevail-ing Rate of Wages Law in the New York Court of Appents in 1901 and ingmen are learning to think for themselves and to oppose their bosses, let them become alarmed by a rapid growth of the Social Democratic vote, and then, even before a single Social Democrat is elected to office, they will bestir themselves to learn the worlingmen's wishes and make concession to them.

The only vote that is not thrown Comptroller Grout and President away is the vote that is cast right. The workinguan who votes for the Fornes were elected two years ago on the "Reform" ticket; they helped give parties that permit lockouts and send militia against strikers does worse than throw his vote away. The only the Pennsylvania Company its tunnel franchise without the labor clauses; and now the Democratic party has nominated them for re-election. votes that will have any effect in im proving the conditions of Labor are hose cast under the Arm and Torch. Devery used the force to break the Brooklyn trolley strike and "Reform" Police Commissioner Green has done the same this year in Queens County.

Finally, we may suggest to the speaker that he should not try to use in a single speach all the material in his hands, not even all that is brought together in this article. A few like trative facts, clearly and emphatically brought out, are better than a great number, inadequately stated and jumbled together. And, to repeat, with very fact you use, show the reaso for it-private ownership of the mean of production, exploitation of labor conflict of class interests; and take every opportunity to state and restate the way out—to vote for Social Democ-racy under the Arm and Torch.

For the Sake of Appearances, Blacklisting is Also Forbidden, but Everyone Knows This Part of the Law Can be Evaded with Impunity.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 24-The House of Representatives to day passed the Anti-Boycott Bill, which provides severe punishment for the publishing of black lists, picketing, or boycotting. The labor unions of the state fought the bill.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 26.-The Scuate to-day passed the House bill prohibiting boycotting, blacklists, bans, or picketing in this state, and providing punishment therefor, bill is considered very strict and bill is considered very strict and was opposed by organized labor.

Text of the New Law.

An Infamous Measure.

It is probable that no other state of the Union has ever adopted so drastic a measure, against the labor movement as this.

It will be observed that, under this infamous law, a union man who sim-ply visits a merchant and asks him not to handle the product of a scab shop or saks people not to buy such products-is declared guilty of a felony 181, be sent to juil for fire months, and the same penalty awaits any body of workingmen who so much as agree among themselves not buy goods from a notorious enemy

The Blacklist Clause.

For the min of appearances, the Legislature has put in a clause against blacktisting. For the sake of appearances, only, we say, for it is evident that this provision is not meant to be enforced and that any employer can violate it with impunity.

In the first place; when an employe finds one of his workmen growing too independent, ceasing to be a decile refuse him a setter of recommendation to other employers. The law, inter-preted and administered by capitalist officials, will not require him to assign a reason for the discharge. Of course, the blosses will not blackiet anyhow; they will simply decline to hire the men who are active in the labor move membered and no doubt our law-makers had it in mind when they hierted this fliusive clause that a United States quart has decided, only last month, that employers have a con-stitutional right to maintain a blacklist. How grateful our Der higher authority to mulitry in advance this blacklist clause that they wanted to put in for appearances' sake, but did not want to have enforced.

Defective Cansorship.

All reference to Socialism was carefully censored out of the above dis-patch to the New York "Times," but the New York "Sua" was less cautions and its dispatches gave the following news as to the real cause of all this

The judges of the Court of Appeals, the highest court in the wiste, are elected for a term of fourteen years. The Judge elected this fall will continue until December 31, 1917, to administer justice or injustice—IT IS FOR YOU TO BAY WHICH.

The Republican and Democratic parties have shown their identity of urpose by uniting in renominating the present incumbent, Denis O'Brien.

The old-party machines have shown their contempt for the rank and file of their own followers by the manner in conventions were called. The State Committees of the two old parties have taken it upon themselves to make the nomination, Remember the record of this Democratic-Republican candidate, and bring it to the attention of every workingman voter.

In February, 1001, the Court of Appeals declared the Prevailing Rate of Wages Law unconstitutional, thus enabling the contractors to cut down the wages of thousands of laborers and mechanics emulored on public work ling, O'Brien, and making the contractors A CLEAR | Charles H. Judge Denis O'Brien, elected as a Democrat and now renominated by both old parties, rendered the decision in favor of the contractors, declaring the law unconstitutional, and two other Democratic Judges and two Republican Judges sustained him.

In this case Democratic Judge Cullen rendered the decision and was abpported by three other Democratic Judges and five Republican Judges, AMONG THE DEMOCRATS WHO HELPED TO OVERTHROW THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW WAS DENIS O'BRIEN.

Now you see why both old-party machines wish to put O'Brien back on the beach for fourteen years. Now. you see why they dured not give the rank and file of their parties a voice in the nomination.

The old-party press is keeping quiet about this question. The old-party bosses expect their scheme to go through without opposition, expect that their joint candidate will be safely elected before the people realize what they have dong.

The only way to defeat Denis O'Brien is to elect Charles H. Matcheft.

The only way to checkmate the plans of the old-party bosses is to vote the Social Democratic ticket.

The efforts of the capitalist presseven of some of the most reputable unpers-to explain away the facts in regard to the growth of Socialism in Europe and at home, which they cannot avoid publishing in their news columus, are sometimes very fuuny. A recent number of the Boston "Transcript" contains a long letter from a the reception given by the Heigian Socialists to a large visiting delegation of Dutch contrades after the bloody supcurrespondent in Brussels, describing pression of the general strike in Holland. After telling of the enthusiasm shown on this occasion by the usually phlegmatic Dutchmen and Beigians, the expressions of international solidarity of the workers, the cheers that greeted the red flag, the writer devotes a whole column to proving to his own satisfaction, at least—that "the secret of Belgian Socialism lies, not in the not, in the two years of his presidency, lofty aims and noble aspirations of the working people, but in their deepruoted love of economy," that the Socialist Party members and voters in Beigium are not genuine Socialists, but only co-operativists. Doubtless it earnest attention"-just as all the is a great comfort to the "Transcript" and its conservative readers to believe this, but somehow it does not tally WITH THE BELLEVI OF the sunprestionable revolutionary Socialists of Germany and Holland, who know Belgian conditions well, nor with the III concealed fears of King Leopold and his wealthy bourgeois supporters, who are at their wits' end for means to check the movement that has already captured a third of the sents in parliament. Perhaps the "Transcript" will tell us next that Carey and Classe are not Socialists.

We shall not be alarmed by the news. WHO ARE THE ORAFTERS?

The Worker has received a reply by John Dilion, Otto Steiner, and W. G. Mattern, members of Local Dayton. O., to the editorial: "A Tempest in a Teapot" in the "Social Democratic Herald," which was called forth by John Sparge's article, "The Grafter Must Go," in The Worker of Aug. 2. Publication has been delayed through the pressure of other matters. The comrades insist that the protest against the impment of exorbitantly high prices to certain fecturers by or-ganisations of the party "is not a tea-pot affair." They say:

But there are points of vantage in a man's experience where some surprising disclosures anent these problems may be made, points of self-discovery, and I make bold to say that speaking on the soap box may hold for you the greatest of all your surprises. The soap box may send you away a resolutely silest man for the rest with Socialism you can dispense with every subject but two, via: yourself and your voice. For this reason it is one characteristic of every depotions, in what country soever you may took it up, that labor organizations, or secret societies, su-called, where the common people may be learning to talk to each other, are always repugnant to church and state. The talking business is their business and they are resolved to keep it be hind their own counters; and this is the very reason why working me should learn to talk behind theirs to preserve to the human race the uses of public speech for mundane matters and to prevent eloquence from being forever rected off into the waste places of theology and the secret chambers of property politics. It took millions to steal the printing press from the people; but it will take more billions than capitalism itself can ever steal to take away speech after the people have mounted the soap box. Tradition still concedes to Americans this right of free speech but only until they have learned to use it; then, every capitalist ridden town, city and state on the continent will ordain the end of free speech, and they have co emi of tree speech, and they have com-menced already. Looking over the whole field of battle the capital-fix class makes no mistake whith-er to send reinforcements and where to cut off supplies. The punksh men to talk the people asleep. The defense and exercise of free speech is to-day the most divine right upon the earth, and Secialism is its fortress. Now let us get more speakers for this

NEW YORK CAMPAIGN FUND.

The Social Democratic Party carries on a great campaign of education to unite the working class at the polis. It needs your help in that work. Throughout the fifty-two weeks the year these materials left tens of thousands of factories on whose books they went into the gross total at factory price, and they reappeared on thu books of tens of thousands of others at a greatly increased price. They took on the trafficker's profit. This could not happen in a co-operative common

The profit of the trafficker on par-

Little purchases are made, say for a small carriage factory, of paint, gine, nails, screws, belts, frons, lumber, etc., often at but a small relate from retail price. Small sloc. clothing and other factories pay corre spondingly, high for necessary materials. Of course, very large works, buying in bulk, get lower rates, but in every case there is a buying and selling cost, and this may easily make the cost of partially manufactured material on an average (n) per cent, higher to the upon the books of the producing fac

No we will allow those bills in their entirety, with this provine: That the workers who created the values above material, fuel, freight and contract by employers, landlords and traffickers is returned to them. They are re-quited. They have no further chain upon our workers in manufacturing and mechanical establishments. When they exchange their certificates of la-low for goods, these goods must not be less, or more, in price that what the'r brothers, who have paid them in full, must pay for the same sort of goods.

Iten't forget that the trafficker is inseparable from the capitalistic system. This system needs markets. Markets imply sellers. He who can sell is a king under the capitalistic system.

ference in wages between these work-ers, instead of being ten to one, might easily become twenty to one. That is exactly the game that is beand is easily ine game that is be-ing played upon the factory workers in all this expense susiness. Expenses are deducted, in statistics, from the factory value of goods, and it is as-sumed that the worker buys at factory price when in reality he pays retail

The full reality is that, as far as in dividual consumption is concerned, all expenses, all, work, all rent and all interest are paid finally in retail rolms. The trafficker, vender, retail rolms. tailer, is everywhere part of the sys-

Therefore, to discover the ratio be tween wages and exploitation, must reduce total net factory value retail value, and pay off the expenses as the worker is paid, and as all are finally paid, in retail values. What is left is the real not increase added by the workers. Compare the collective wage with this and the percentage of exploitation is apparent.

Our task is now to estimate the retail selling price of goods that bear a total net factory value of $9.142,596,004. These goods, in the course of several exchanges, take on the drummers', jobbers', wholesalers' and retailers' profits We must regard all these charges as espitalist exploitation, because such a clumsy and wasteful method of distributing goods to communers is part o the barbarous system. In some cases two and three hundred per cent. is added, even more; in many cases one hundred per cent.; if we place the average cost to consum ers sixty per cent, above the factory estimate, we are none too high. We are rather below the fact.

Consequently the commodities whose factory value is $4,142,040,094 bring at least $14,625,633,696 when peddled out in the retail market. Now we'll settle our bills benestly in the same values with which we pay our workers. After the charges for raw ninterial, fuel, freight and contract work are satisfied, there remains $11, just charge, added to the raw material by 5,308,406 manual workers, who have received $2,222,333,877 in wages. They were directed by 348,550 superintendents, managers and clerks, whose salaries autounted to $305,608,957. Nearly 350 thousand office men What an army! The suin paid to them is consider ably more than twice the specie cost of

Three-fourths of the time of this host of men was wasted in bargaining

Will we allow the mainries in full?

Yes—with the understanding that the time they have wasted shall be deemed. as applied in the proper distribution of goods to consumers under a right sys-tem. The amount of the salaries wid be allowed as paying in full for the unuagement of the production and proper distribution of the goods in question. Administration fees are paid. NOW A SHUT-DOWN.

After a Peroid of Killing Overwork, the Iron and Steel Workers Get a Compulsory Vacation for the Trust Magnat:s' Benefit.

McKEESPORT, Pn., Oct. 6 .-- At 4 o'clock to-day the last turn at the Demmier Tin Plate Works was made, and the mills have been closed for an indefinite period.

A few days ago all the mills, with the exception of Milis 9, 10, and 11, were closed without notice to the men, but it was expected that the other three mills would be kept running. To-day, however, the order came to shut them down also, and the men were notified not to report to-morrow.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 6.-At. a meeting held late to-day of the com-mittee appointed by the blast furnace operators of the Central West a week ago to consider the question of restricting the output of iron to the man ket requirements, it was decided to order a suspension of 25 per cent. of the capacity for the last quarter of the year. The original proposition was to cut it down by 23-1-3 per cent. The Southern blast furnace opera-tors, with headquarters in Birmingham. Ale., with it capacity of over 1,300,000 tons, will co-operate with the Northern furnace operators to prevent an overproduction of Iron, and will suspend operations to about the same extent. There was represented at the last meeting 80 per cent. of the furnace in-terests in the Pittsburg, Mahoning and Shenango Valleys, Cleveland, and Wheeling districts, and all will be bound by the agreement. HOMESTEAD, Pa., Oct. D .- Notice were posted in the 35 and 40-inch mil at the Homestend Steel Works this evening announcing a shut-down of both these mills for an indefinite period. This is the most important department of the Homestead Steel Works and employs more than two thousand men, all of whom are thrown out of work. No notice had previously oen given of the contemplated move. The Bessemer steel department was ago and it is believed that several of the open-hearth furnaces will be

For the past two or three years the iron and steel workers have had to work at the highest possible speed and the longest endurable hours, in order enormous dividends and interest for the Steel Trust magnates. Now they have to take a forced vacation, with-out the full dinner-pail, because the owners of the mills and furnaces see po satisfactory profit in allowing them to work.

This attemption of overwork and workingmen have been voting for on the Republican and Democratic tickets all these years; but many of them after years of grumbling, are begin ning to think and see that when the workers own the means of produc-tion, as Socialists propose, overwork and involuntary idituess and undeserved poverty will all disappear to gether with the arrogant wealth and power of the parasites. The masters are giving us good object lessons in political economy.

FOR JUDGE.

Accepts Nomination for Court of Appeals.

Old Party Judges Find No Difficulty in Twisting Laws and Constitution to Suit Capitalist Interests-Time We Elect a Workingman Judge to Reverse the Process.

To the State Committee of the Social Democratic Party of New York: Comrades:-The confidence repused

n me, as a fitting standard bearer of the Social Democratic Party, in the great State of New York in the political campaign now progressing, com nunds my heartfelt acknowledgments and forces me to express my high appreciation of the honor thus conferred I accept the nomination as a duty imposed, although equally as ready and proud to serve the party and the cause of the working class in the most obenre manner. The office for which I was chosen to stand as candidate, that of Associate Judge of the Court of Appents, is of great importance. As a court of last resort, its decisions seal the fate of the cases brought before it. It is of importance to the great capitalist in-terests that a man should be placed on that beach who is favorable to them.

Under these circumstances, where a naterial interest is the governing impulse, it may easily be seen that the question of politics plays but a very inferior part. It must be evident when the time comes for making nomina tions whose interests will be success ful in naming the candidate for this particular office, and, in fact, for all other offices, for the material interest of the capitalist class always rules.
Questions involving the interests of Capital on one side and Labor on the other, when adjudicated by a judge thus nominated, will certainly be net-tled in favor of the class to which he owen his position. When cl an appeal to this court of last resort necessary on the part of the working ciams as opposed to the interest of the capitalist class, these can be little doubt of the result. The case of the Prevailing Rate of Wages Law, which was passed after years of lobbying on the part of organzed labor, is the most notable instance at the present moment, among many others, of how readily and learnedly a decision may be rendered, declaring a law so important to the interest of the wage workers, and especially to organized labor, unconstitutional and Tire opinion in this case was written one of the present incumbents, dge Denis O'Brien, a member of the Democratic party. Already having served one long term, he is now the candidate of both old parties for an other term of fourteen years.

After having thus rendered harmless to the capitalist class a measure intended to benefit Labor, Judge O'Brien experts to be, and probably will be, placed in office again by the votes of workingmen and union men, for there is no other choice open to cases who determine to vote a Demo-eratic or Republican ticket. Such ac-tion on the part of workingmen is manifestly stupid, and were it not for the fact that there is a second those who determine to vote a Der the fact that there is a rapidly increasing number of workingmen who, actuated by a class-conscious spirit, vote for workingmen candidates, standing upon a platform of far-reaching benefit to workingmen, the giant Labor, aithough encused in a white skin. would stand condemned and despined as the same servile, spiritless, coward-ly, supid brute that filled a black skin in the days gone by; aye, even worse, litical rights by means of which night have thrown the master of his Perhans workingmen fear that a ompetent to fill the position of Judge of the Court of Appenia. Are we so overawed with the importance of these lackles of the capitalist system that we are afraid that we cannot decide as intelligently as those proud and self-hoportant bigwigs who find room to die upon most questions brought them or who may be governed iderations of money or prefer-or do we fear that when it comes to questions between working men and employers, that involve the man will not be able to decide without hesitation in favor of those to whom he is bound by every tie of committeest and of honor?

Constitutions in the hands of the egal representatives of the capitalist class are most elastic and accomm dating things. Remember the Dre-Scott decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, where labor in a black skin was defined as having n rights which a white man (that is, s white capitalist), was bound to respect—a decision which was reversed in the interest of Northern factor lords and the wage-sinve system, after the loss of hundreds of thousands of lives and millions of treasure, a treasare still being coined out of the swea

The Interstate Commerce Law, framed for the purpose of restraining one set of capitalists from exploiting other capitalists, was twisted to serve as an engine of war against the striking werkingmen in the celebrated Pullman strike and in all the im-portant strikes that have occurred show how elastic constitutions are in the hands of those who wish to twist them to serve their purposes. Workingmen, we have been justient and long-suffering observers of coulinity modes of framing, interprelling, and executing laws, and have so well learned our lesson that when workingmen shall have elected a majority o the Court of Appeals, we promise the supporters of the present regime that we will interpret laws and constitutions until not only political freedom but industrial freedom as well, shall be established, that wage slavery shall be unconstitutional, that individua control of the means of production

If elected to this office I will take higher civilization.

Ohio Judge Grants Sweeping Order

HAMILTON, Ohlo, Oct. 13.-Judge Belden to-day granted one of the most sweeping injunctions ever issued by an Ohio court.

It was directed against the Hamilton Typographical Union, the Hamilton Co-operative Trades and Labor Council, and the Nonparell Printing Company, publishers of the county trade organs. The defendants are enjoined from continuing a boycott on the "Republican News" or firms which adver time in it, and ordered that interference of every sort with the company's business must stop.

The court said the Constitution gave any company the right to employ whomsoever it saw fit. The boycott was to force the plain.

In other words, out of every dollar paid in fares, a triffe over 48 cents goes to pay the expenses of running the system (including the exorbitant enlaries of sinecure officers and a thousand other items of disguised profit); some thing less than 9 cents goes to pay for keeping the system in repair and ex-tending it; and over 43 cents goes directly into the hands of the owners of the system, not for any service they, render, but because of the mere fact of their ownership, of their allowing an army of workingmen to do the

How great the improvement of the service that could and would be made may be realised by considering that this would still leave more than treble the amount now applied under private ownership to maintenance and in provement of the system.

He can make & stremuous noise on occasion, of course about "race suicide," for instance; but on occasion, too-ear on such an occasion as a Republican governor sending troops avowedly to "settle" s strike by defying the courts and civil officials and subjecting scores of workingmen to arbitrary arrest and brutal insult-on such an occasion, our picturosque President can "roar as gently as any sucking dove," as befits his position and the gratitude he owes to the Captains of Industry. Coming down to local affairs, it is reassuring to find the same gentle courtesy prevailing among the "Reformers" at our City Hall. The Water Department discovered that the Sugar Trust had been stealing water from the mains for the last six years, to the value, it was computed, of $565,600. A rude, nucultured city official might have been tempted to get a warrant. send a squad of police to the office of the trust, and bring in the whole gang of thieves in the patrol wagon, just like so many common, hadly dressed inwhrenkers. The "Reformers" deserve the highest credit for their good manners, and it is a shame that Mr. Havemeyer and his partners got so nasty about it. It is out enough to induce the gentlemen to give up the job of reforming the city and follow Mr. Coler back among the "bearst men of Wall Street."

"TOO MUCH DISCUSSION."

The New York "Evening Post," in its financial section of October 3. discused the question, "Can wages be reduced?" declaring it to be "a serious problem of the day." Business interests, it deciares, demand a scaling down of wages, and the question is how vigorous a resistance will the unreasonable workingmen make.

The "Post" quotes "an iron producer"-menning a capitalist who owns from works and makes a profit by allowing other people to produce fromas saying:

"There will, without doubt, be unher of people out of employment this winter.

Mr. J. B. Greenhut, a gentleman of arge commercial interests, who has recently returned from a trip abroad during which he visited Russia and especially the region about Odeses and Kishineff, has embodied the result of his observations in a report which he transmitted to Secretary of State Hay. The report is absolutely confirmatory of the details of the Kishinest atroclties as described in the newspapers at the time, and calls attentifact that the majority of the Kish Jews were Social Democrats, declar ing that the blow at the Jews was simed largely at the revolutionary movement, as was pointed out in The Worker and contended by all Socialists at the time. Mr. Greenbut says:

"I had the good fortune, during my travels to come in contact with many liussians, some of whom were eye witnesses of the late difficulties at Kishineff, and others who were fully conversant with the situation all over Russia, among these latter being Mr. Osiah Chayes, a noted banker of Odessa, who is also President of the Stock Exchange in that city, and bears the title of Commercienrath, and through whose bank most of the relief funds lately sent to Bussia were transmitted. Mr. Chayes has been in close touch with all the affairs pertaining to the Jews in Russis, and with Kishineff in particular, which place is only about three hours' distant from Odessa

LONDON, Oct. 8.-The Russian corespondents of the "Times" describe a ourt martial which has just been held at Taganrog on twenty-three Social ists, including a youth of nincteen years old and two young women, who were accused of taking part in the strike riots at Rostoff last year. The trial was not held at Rostoff on account of the strong public sympathy for the accused. An attack on the authorities was feared even at Taganrog, and a strong force of Conneck WILL песемалу.

The Public Prosecutor admitted the illegality, but the evidence was read because of the written order of the Ministers of War, Justice, and the Interior

The witnesses present showed them asires untrustworthy. The Public Prosecutor urged that six of the pris-oners be condemned to death. Most of the prisoners were silent, but Anna Logatcheff made a long speech, dig-

A prisoner named Vassil Tchenko scribed why he joined the Socialists. adding: "I read in a patriotic book that Russian workmen participated in the movement because they were under the influence of Jews, who re ceived English money to organize agi-tation and humiliate Russia. SELF-GOVERNMENT FOR SOCIALISTS.

By W. E. Clark.

We have heard a great deal intely about electing a Bocinlist president in .08, or may be earlier, or a day or two later it is immaterial wistele liaving had some connection with the members of the party, through correspondence and also personal contact in attending conventions and so forth, it is my opinion that we have a Herrulean tunk before us in getting the sembers of our party ready, to manage their own affairs. By the very nature of our movement, every taember must know, not only the purpose of the party, but also how to accomplish but purpose.

Do the majority of the members of the Socialist Party know bow to co duct the campaign against the capital-If not, why not?

I am convinced that a unifority of do not act as though we thoroughly inderstood, to use the vernacular, what we are up against."

In a word, there has been a great leal of agitation and a limited amo deal of agitation and a limited amount of education. In the press and on the platform, we have largely confined ourselves to the very necessary work of what we term propugated. We have endeavored to convince reading and heavers that Socialism is the loope of the world that the contribution of the world, that the capitalist sys-tem must be sholished, and that we must vote the Socialist ticket.

So much is good, but it is not all. It is only the beginning, and the press and speakers have only broken ground for the foundation when they ston with that,

Such propaganda has resulted in rausing many people to become interested in Socialism. The work of helping them to understand he ing them to understand how we are to accomplish the sims and deciarations of the Socialist Party platform has ren to a great extent purposely avoided, and for two main reasons The work of agitation is easy, while that of education is hard; and we lave been afraid of discussi tactics on the be work of agitation.

As to the first reason, agitation is Almost anyone can open his month and talk, take up his pen and write. "Hot air" is a inexhaustible product. But the work of education s slow and difficult. The child begins to develop its Imags before it does its brains. The majority of Socialists have to travel over the same road Like the child that is being pricks n pin, as soon as the agitator, writer, or speaker, has aroused us to a knowlor speaker, has aroused us to a knowled of our condition and we begin to resi-ise that we are being robbed, we let forth a yell. Again, we act like the child in trying to acquaint every dise with our condition

Now this is a very necessary process, but it has to be outlived. The period of milk diet must not be prolonged into years. Above all thin the Socialist must learn to dress h self and know when to vote and how, without being told to do so by any other member of the party.

Capitalist politics thrive best under the direction of a strong personality, for the people have been trained so that almost anyone with a large vocabary can lead them around by the nost Not so with Socialist politics. We are not like sheep being led to alaughter. Every member of the party must know that he or she is the every other member, so far as party management is concerned. And in this very fact is found one of the most difficult problems the Socialist movement will have to solve, that of teaching every member the power and responsibility devolving upo seever becomes a member of the Socalist Party, and also how to accomplish our jurpose as a party. A leader in the Socialist movement would be as dangerous to it as leaders have been to all inovenients. Even in capitalist political, parties, leaders work to their own ends and eventuall disrupt the organization they are leading. From the time the Jews were fuolish enough to let Moses lend ther out of the Nile country until now, that followed. If the Jews had told Moses to go to Chiman by blusself and had stayed in Egypt to right out their own battles, their history might have they looked to a leader worst of it; and so will it he with the locinist movement if the party mer berghin ever entrust to a lender work that oment to be done by the

Both "too old" parties complained of apathy among the voters, but we had to reason to find fault. REPUBLICAN TICKET.

> For Mayor: SETH LOW

For Comptroller: PREDERICK W. HINRICHS.

For President of the Board of EDWARD J. McGUIRE.

The Republican party is the party now in power. It is the party of the Hannas, the Morgans, and the Vanderbilts, the party of the bankers, trust magnates, railroad kings, and other great capitalists. The party has algreat capitalists. The party has always been true to its record—that of loyal devotion to the interests of the situitst class and unvarying hostility Whenever and wherever a strike was to be suppressed. Republican executive officials whether in the presidential, gubernatorial or mayor-alty chair bave_always given prompt and generous assistance. Whenever a law was to be framed in favor of Capital and against the interests of Labor, Republican legislators have always acquitted themselves of their task with admirable skill, and when-ever a "labor law" has by accident or otherwise happened to pass in the legislature, the Republican judiclary has siways faithfully declared it un-constitutional. Where the party is strong in municipal politics, the city tion is in most cases a nest "respectable" and to swallow "Re-form." weak, it is ready to do anything to

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals: DENIS O'BRIEN.

> For Mayor: GEORGE B. McCLELLAN. For Comptroller: EDWARD M. GROUT.

For President of the Board of Aldermer CHARLES V. FORNES.

The Democratic party is the party of the middle class. In national politics it represents the interests of the smaller capitalists,' who are being crowded out from the industrial arena of our country by the overwhelmin power of concentrated capital. Hence its battle cry against the cruel trusts and monopolies, hence its radical phrases during the last two national campaigns, and hence its bitter antagonism to the party representing its more successful competitors-the Re-York the Democratic party is repre sented by Tammany Hall, an organiza tion which has acquired a world-wid notoriety for the corruptness of it methods and its defiant contempt for all civic and political decency. The head of its ticket is George B. McCleiian, well known as the son of his illutrious father, and as a defender of York, however, where the party is Tammany's missieeds and an obedient follower of the commands of The Boss; otherwise Se is but little

The war between the leading parties is only a war of capitalists between themselves, a war over their respective shares in the wealth produced by labor. In their treatment of labor all of these parties are in touch ing harmony and accord with each other. Federal troops were as promptly furnished to subdue the striking milroad workers of Chicago in 1904 by the Democratic President Cleveland, as they were furnished this year to shoot the striking Arisona miners into submission by the Republican President The state militia of Pennsylvania under Democratic command was as active in the defense of capital during the strike of the Homestead steel workers in 1963, as the New York militia under Republican command. during the recent trolley strikes in Albany and Glens Falis, and the Demo cratic police clubs were used against the Brooklyn trolley strikers under Devery as effectively as the Republican clubs were used on the Queens County railroad workers under Gen. Greene. The Democratic Judge Denis O'Brien voted for the deciaring of the eight-hour clause in the Labor Law unconstitutional together with his Republican associates on the Court of Ap peals bench, and that is probably one of the reasons why he is now a candidate for re-election on the tickets of both parties.

Both the Republican and the Democratic Party, in their platforms, support as natural and eternal and right the system of capitalism or private ownership by one class of the means of production created and operated by

Each of these parties pretends to stand for the interests of "all the people," regardless of class-for the interests of the landlord and also of the tenant, for the interest of the employer and also of the employee. Considering that the interests of the employers and landlords come in conflict with those of the employees and tenants every day in the year, it is plainly impossible for one party to represent both. Each of these parties, then, is asking for votes under false pretenses. They claim to represent both classes, in order that they may be put in power by the votes of the working class to serve the interests of the capitalist class. The Social Democratic Party makes no such pretense. It does not claim to stand for the interests of factory-owners or tenement-owners. It frankly stands against their inter ests and for the interests of the class that works in the factories and lives in the tenements, the class that employers and landlords exploit.

Both of these parties are officered and led by capitalists. Prominent Republican and Democratic politicians sit together on the board of directors of the Standard Oli Company, the Steel Trust, and all the other great corporations. In politics they naturally look out for their common interests as

Both of these parties are financed by the capitalists. The Wall Street houses, the great franchise companies, and the trusts supply the campaign funds of both and their successful candidates naturally serve the interests of those whose money and influence have put them into power. The candidates and spokesmen of these parties do not dare to meet the presentatives of the Social Democratic Party in fair discussion of political questions as affecting the interests of Labor. Having no arguments to ad-Vance why workingmen should support them, they depend upon a campaign or fireworks and brass bands, beer and, boodle, instead of a campaign of education and argument, such as the Social Democratic Party carries on. With few exceptions, the candidates of these two parties are capitalists landfords, merchants, bankers, or great stockholders. When occasionally they put a workingman on their tickets to fool the voters, they select a ngman with a capitalist mind" and nominate him, either in a district where he is sure of defeat or for an office where, if elected he can do nothing for the working class,

In municipal campaigns there is absolutely nothing to distinguish these parties one from the other, save their candidates and political t aims, objects, and political views are identical. In the City of New York these two parties and the Citizens' Reform Union are rather badly mixed up in their identity. True to its methods of political dishonesty, Tammany stole two of the principal "Reform" candidates from the "Reform" ticket. Thus the present "Reform" Comptroller and the "Reform" President of the Board of Aldermen grace the ticket of Tammany Hall, while the "Reform" ticket in practically devoid of "Reformers." For the voters of the old-party tickets, this state of political confusion is very embarrassing indeed, but workingmen have no occasion to worry over it. As far as workingmen are concerned, it is altogether indifferent which of these tickets will be Mayor Low and Colonel McClettan are men of the same type and represent the same interests in this campaign. Both are respectable medioc rities, men of wealth, indissolubly linked to the capitalist class by all social and political ties, with no understanding for the needs of labor and with no sympathies for its demands and struggles. Whichever of these candidates is elected, the workingmen of the City of New York will fare equally badly.

CHARLES H. MATCHETT. For Mayor:

CHARLES L. FURMAN. For Comptroller:

MORRIS BROWN. of Cigarmakers' Union No. 144.

For President of the Board of PETER J. FLANAGAN, of Typographical Union No. 6.

The Social Democratic Party is the Party of the United States, This party does not bunt for offices, not trade with its votes; it enters into no bargains with other political parties and does not change its issues from year to year. The Social Democratic I'arty stands for one fixed and great fusue all the time—the emancipation of labor from all forms of capitalist oppression. In local politics the party demands the municipalization of all public works, and adequate provisions for the sanitary housing, the health and comfort of the working class, as well as for the proper education of their children, and for all such other measures of relief for the workers as lie within the powers of the city. In state politics in stands for such legislation as will ensure the increase of wages and the reduction of the safety of their life and limb in the factory, and the general elevating of their physical, mental and moral condition. In national polities the Social Democratic Party strives for the put lic ownership of all means of prodution, transportation and communication. Withal, the aim of the Social Democratic Party in all spheres of activity, Municipal, State and National is one-the abolition of that baneful system which makes the millions of tollers of this republic the slaves of a handful of capitalist exploiters, the system which has divided the popula tion of our country into two distinct classes-the class of the workers succambing"to poverty, ignorance and crime, and the class of the idlers living in luxury and permeated with cor-

The Social Democratic Party de mands that the industries of the na tion be freed from the yoke of the trust magnates and other useless parasites, and be placed in the hands of the actual workers, to the end tha all may work and that all may enjoy the full fruits of their labor.

The Social Democratic Party is the political party of the working class of this country. Its members, officers and cambidates are workingmen; its platform is based upon the demands of the working class, it has no interests other than those of the working class, it is an organization purely of and for working class. The party has been untry; at the last elections it cast 250,000 rotes. This vote your tote, workingmen, and it lies with you whether it shall count by instead of thousands after

If you desire the perpetuation of the sent capitalist misrule, vote for any other party, and it does not matter which, but if you are true to your-selves and to your own class, make your cross within the circle on the top of this column with a bold and firm hand-for the Social Democratic Party and for the emancipation of labor from the oppression of capital.

For Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals: WM. J. MANIERRE.

For President of the Board of WILLIAM DRAPER

The Prohibition party ascribes all social evils of the day to the use of intoxicating drinks, and believes that the enactment of a law prohibiting such drinks will be sufficient to cure hu-manity of all physical, moral, mental, and social illa. The Socialists agree with the Prohibitionists in the con-demnation of whiskey (especially if it is bad whifkey), but they point out the fact that drunkenness, like crime and ignorance, is but one of the results of our faulty social and industrial system. Put the dissolute and dissipating millionaires to honest work, and they will stop debanching themselves and their mistresses with champagne; provide the workingmen with clean, cheerful homes, and the means of in-tellectual culture, and they will stop drinking bad whiskey in filthy and maiodorous saloons. The only way to abolish drunkenness is to abolish the social nystem which breeds it, and the only way to abolish that system is by voting the ticket of the Social Demo-cratic Party, which stands for the overthrow of the iniquitous capitalist

SOCIALIST LABOR TICKET

For Mayor: JAMES T. HUNTER.

For Comptroller: JOHN J. KINNEALLY.

For President of the Board of Aldermen: ELMER E. SNYDER.

The Socialist Labor party represent small faction within the movement in this country. A few years ago the greater part of the or-ganization united with all other true Socialist elements in the United States and formed, the Socialist Party, of which the Social Democratic Party of New York is an Integral part. The insignificant number of men who re-mained behind and continued the ex-istence of the Socialist Labor party are mostly narrow-minded fanatics are mostly narrow-inness tanates and fingapided sid insulatorneed workingmen. While the Socialist Party in the third column on this ballot) is growing rapidly and steadily, the Socialist Labor party is losing ground and disappropriate to one state for the and disappearing in one state after the other. Its vote has fallen below 50,000, while the vote of the Socialist Party has ffigreated to about 250,000. Its most active and earnest members are daily deserting the sinking craft and joining the Socialist Party. The complete disappearance of this party is but a question of a very short time. In this campaign the mission of the Socialist Labor party consists chiefly in the "fillimention" of the Social Democrats and of all organized labor, vote for this party means a vote for the continuance of the one disturbing element in the Normitst movement. All real friends of the movement should avoid this column and vote the ticket of the Social Democratic Party.

is one of the reform parties in our city. The distinction between the Citisens' Union and this party is, that while the former consists of gentle-men-reformers, the Grenter New York Democracy consists of politician-reformers. Reformers of this type are politicians who have lost casts in their regular organisations and cannot get any office from them. These reformers are supremely indifferent to the object of their reform. They are ready to reform Tammany if they can get I place on the Republican ticket, they are ready to reform the Republican machine if they can secure a place on the Tammany ticket, and they stand ready to reform reform itself, if they can secure a pinm on an anti-reform ticket.

The party owes its origin to John C. Sheehan, who at one time substituted Bichard D. Croker in the councils of the Wigwam, when that gentleman was temporarily sojourning abroad. He took his temporary reign too seriously, and when the real boss returned, he made it so bot for Hon. John C. Sheehan, that nothing re-mained for the latter except to go into the reform business. Mr. Sheeban has since been joined by a number of gentlemen of similar political experience, who together compose Greater New York's Greatest Democracy. For the workingmen these reformers have no reforms to offer.

This is also a reform party. In fact it is the reform party, and its reform emanates from no less a personage than William S. Devery. William S. Devery, whose name was synonymous with organized graft while he was a member and later on the Chief of the New York police force, William 8. Devery of Lexow investigation fame, William S. Devery 'who sakl 'at the Pulice Chiefs' Convention in 1901: "Gentlemen, we are here to exchange riews on HOW TO SUPPRESS STRIKES, riots, and all disturbances. As for me, gentleman, I say, Act promptly. Go at it, Don't let 'em spread. Drop everything and attend to R"-William R. Devery who "went at It" as vigorously in clubbing the trol-ley workers of Brooklyn and other defenseless strikers, William, S. Devery, the incarnation of the Tammany re-gime, was himself refused a seat in the Tammany councils. If ever there was an occasion for a great reform movement, this certainly was the occa-sion. And Devery was not slow to inaugurate the movement. A party was speedily organized. Its name, is "In-dependent People's party," its emblem is "The Pump," its platform is "Free Lunch for All," its skilmate object and ideal is to force the recognition of Wil-liam 8. Devery by Tammany Hall. Is it not an object likely to fill the hearts of the tolling masses of this great metropolis with joy and enthusiasm. And yet it is just to the working class Devery is chiefly addressing his apmals, and he has actually succeeded in common himself with the most im-pure elements in the labor movement. In this campaign Deveryism stands for all that is corrupt and degenerate not only in political life, but also in the labor movement.

We have seen New York City this spring and summer in the complete control of our bosses, the capitalists. They have demoralized business and caused a stagnation of industry unparalleled in this community: In the et the working class have always been accused of being the cause of paralyzing industry, but here is a case n evidence which shows who it is that enuses such disastrous conditions.

The employers in the building trades have bouded together and drawn up what they choose to term a plan of arbitration which, they claim, is for the purpose of settling the differences between Capital and Labor and abollabing atrikes.

Charles L. How It Is Worked in the State of Montana.

Miners Saing 'Discharged for Their Political Opinions-Mon Are Kept in Slavery By the Blue Ticket, the Pedigree Gard, and the Company

The Butte "Reveille" gives a striking sketch of the methods of corpora-tion tyranoy in the great amelter city of Montana. Anneonda has a Socialist Mayor and the County Assessor herein ment of the smelter is a Socialist offi cial. There is a struggle between the two great rival copper companies for political control of the state and of both of them against the rising Socialist movement, which they are trying of active Socialists;

This conversation, audible to the little crowd which had gathered at an outgoing train at the Anaconda depot to-day, was the means of divulging to

"The very latest in Standard Oll infamy is the 'blue ticket,' Preliminary the opening of the Washoe works ere, the Standard Oil blacklist, so well known in the oil regions of Pennsylvania, has made its appearance in Anacouda. The 'blue ticket' is what the men call it, and if you find your name on a blue ticket you might as well go home, begin to pack up your belongings and get ready to walk out of town, if you haven's, the money to ride. The introduction of the 'blue ticket' discloses a condition that has never been equalled in the trust-cursed existence of the city. It proves that the infamous 'blue ticket' is but the leginning of another era of tyranny which will incense the independent citizens of the state.

"To describe the 'blue ticket' it is necessary to go back a few months, Soon after the Amalgamated Copper Company, sprang into existence, one of the most conviuring proofs that it was an offshoot of the Signilard Oil Company was the introduction of the 'pedigree slip' and the 'brass tag' in Anaconda works.

Most of the readers of the 'Reveille' are familiar with the 'pedigree ellp' and the 'brass tag.' The former is a form which must be filled out by every applicant for work. In it he most state his age, his nationality, his birthplace, and, in short, supply the on-pany with a complete and satisblographical sketch. 'brase tag' was but a part of the new system of keeping track of the emplayees. It is the same plan which the Standard Oil Company has worked successfully for years in its refineries in the East. If the applicant for work passed the rigid examinations and his credentials satisfied the agents of the company, he was given a brass tag with a number on it. When he went on shift he passed this tag through the little window at the timekeeper's and got a red card, on which was registered with an automatic machine the time of his arrivat. This, now, became his authority to go to work. It served at once as a check, a means of identification and a co yenience for keeping the time of the employee. At the conclusion of the stiff be passed in the red card which was again stamped by the automatic timepiece, and received the brass check in return, which he presented in turn at the beginning of the next shift. Recently many of the men on returning from work found when they passed in their red tickets at the timekeeper's office that they were not given t blue ficket was displayed where the check was usually hung.

"In many instances the men thus summarily discharged were recognized as thoroughly competent and re-liable at their work, and the only cause of their dismissal could be found in the fact that they refused to follow the dictates of the bosses in poli-tics and vote the ticket the Amalga-mated had decided to support,

"It was some time before the men knew the extent of the company's new method of blacklisting. First, several of them tried for work in the other departments of the Amaigamated Company's works in Anacouds. They found that the 'blue ticket' stood against them at the foundry, at the brickyards and on the B., A. & P. rail-

Too late; many of the 'biue ticket' men discovered that they should have been more reticent and recognized in the apparently funccent inquirer one of the company's 'spotters.'

"There is no longer the slightest doubt in the minds of the people of Announda that the works were closed down to weed out all who are politically opposed to the Amaignment Company or who have opinious of their own which they voice on Election Day. Whatever doubt previously existed has been dissipated since the inauguration of the 'blue ticket.'

Men still are required to go to the store to get their pay checks, and the amount of their indebtedness to the store is deducted from the check be

"The independent merchants have made several ineffectual attempts to compete with the 'store,' and for a time it seemed as if the men were go ing to have an opportunity to trade where they desired, but the shut-down, the 'blue ticket' and the return to okitime coercion on the part of the com pany have intimidated the employees

"Assessor Levengood is still standing the fire of the Amaignmated newspapers, which have taken a keen dis like to this officer for his fearless studi on county valuation. "Judge Smith of Lewis and Clarke County, before whom the municipal election contest was tried, decided that the Mayor was duly elected and duly qualified. Still the Amalgamated newspapers are keeping up the fight and are, in every concelvable manner, trying to tie up the new administra-tion-much of their work being done under the guise of legitimate interest.

"These are the methods by which the Amaiganated Company is trying to reform Anacouda and by tyranny and injustice win fights that they cannot win by fair means. But the workingmen do not take kindly to this 'blue ticket' plan, and while it may have the effect of making men more reticent and cautious in expressing their opinions politically, it will defeat its own end on Election Day."

TROUBLE IN PORTO RICO.

Military despotism is again coming to the front in Porto Rico. A few days ago two Socialists were con-demned to imprisonment for "insultdemned to impressiment for manting the flag," because of speeches in which they showed the iniquities that had been committed in the service of capitalism under that flag in the United States and in Puerto Blea. Railroads Laying-off Thousands of Workingmen.

As "Prespecity" Declines, Prefits Must Be Kept Up by Gutting of Payrolla -Army of the Unemployed Will Help Employers Later to Reduce Wages of Those Still at Work.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 17.-Following on the heels of the cut in the force of workmen at the shops of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway all over the country, come the announcement to-day that begin ning Monday there will be a reduction in the working hours of a day from ten to nine hours in all the locomotive and repair shops of the Lake Shore

This means a reduction in wages no only in the big shops in Collinwood but in Chicago, Pittsburg, and other-large cities entered by that line. The Lake Eric and Western, a branch of the Lake Shore, is included in the

The announcement has caused much consternation among the hundreds of workmen in and around Cleveland. The officials of the road say that the ALBANY, Oct. 10 .- Three hundred men in the West Albany shops of the New York Central and Hudson River Italiroad were laid off at noon to-day. This is in accordance with an order affecting the entire Vanderbilt system between New York and Chicago, and means in effect the laying off of 15 per cent. of the abop force all along the Vanderblit lines.

Now those three hundred men will have to hunt for jobs, competing with others still at work or already out, and so hastening the reduction of wages, A large army of unemployed is what the capitalists like to see.

ATTEMPTS AT SUPPRESSION.

Capitalist Authorities Twist the Lau in Effort to Keep Socialists from Spreading the Light.

The fear with which the capitalisi class that stands behind and directs the Republican and Democratic public officers regard the growing Socialist movement is shown by these attempts

The Socialists at Telluride, Colo. have been having trouble with the local authorities for during to hold street meetings. One of the Socialists arrested was A. H. Floaten, recently elected Kational Committeeman of the Socialist Party for Colorado. Com rade Floaten defended his own case from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. before a jury, picked by a prejudiced sheriff. The jury stayed out all night and disagreed, 3 to 3. The Socialists polled 20 per cent. of the vote in the city election last spring and more than that in the county election last fail. The triak have been great propaganda meetings There was scarcely standing room is the court house. Comrade Floaten em phasized the point that he was arrest explained the philosophy and program of the Socialist Party so the jury might judge if a man should be ar-rested because he adhered to those principals. The judge called him down twice for leaving the subject. At the second trial the jury acquitted Floater second trial the jury acquitted Floaten and the other cases were dismissed, except that of J. C. Barnes, which was postponed until December. The ex-pense to the city was about $1,200.

Brown appealed and the case will come before the So-John W. Brown, of Connecticut, was and the case will come before perior Court in January. Adams had a license, but the judge ignored it, and got very angry when Adams showed his authority for sticking signs and said be would continue it. The prosecuting attorney said the fine in such cases was $500, Adams said they might as well make it, $3,000, as he didn't have

At Texarkana, Ark., the mayor tried to prevent National Organizer Goebel holding a meeting, but finally had to adult his right to do so. The police, however, prevented him from selling subscription cards to Socialist papers at the meeting.

Rev. Granville Lowther was arrested on Oct. 9-1 at Great Bend, Kansas for making a Socialist speech on the street. The marshal came along and ordered him to go to the park to speak. He told the marshal he would do so, and explained to the audience that the street belonged to them and that the marshal was their servant, but that, notwithstanding the fact he had a right to speak on the street if be did not obstruct the sidewalk, he would comply with the request of the authorities. He then announced that he would speak at the court bonne that night and requested the crowd to come and bear him. He ceased speaking, but, as he turned to walk away, the officer arrested him. He was then taken to the police court and fined. The city attorney prosecuted the case and Comrade Lowther pleaded in his own defense. That he would be fined was a foregone conclusion. He refused, however, to pay his fine, and was therefore sent to jail, but the comrades regarding the matter, since the fine was paid, cannot be said at present. Wichita the case will be considered by the local comrades, and if any redre is possible the matter will be pushed

MACHINISTS THREATENED.

It is reported that the National Metal Trades Association has started a movement to reduce the wages of stachinists all over the country 10 per cest. If this reduction is accomplished it will affect the wages of 100,000 mm chinists, union and non-pulse, as the Association includes the projectors of shops new employing fully that number of men. Wage agreements with many of the local unions expire Jan. 1, 1904, and preparations are being made by the manufacturers to insist upon a refraction when the negotiations for new agreements begin.

He best thing the machinists can do to forestall and prevent such an alon to forestat and prevent such an ab-tack is to vote the Secialist ticket on Nov. S. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 18-The National Publishing Company of this city, in whose bindery there has recently been an unsuccessful strike and which is employing a large num-ber of binders at less than the union scale, is taking prompt advantage of President Roosevelt's "open shop" de cition. The company is sending type written circulars to its employees, one of which, dated Oct. 7, is as follows: PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DE-

CLARES THE GOVERNMENT BINDERY AN 'OPEN SHOP.'

"He says non-union men shall have the same rights as union workmen Men cannot be forced to join the Book binders' Union and the government cannot separate citizens into classes and any that only those who belong to the union shall be employed.

"President Roosevelt is a man of great ability and a man of great cour ington dare not order a strike in the Government Bindery, and the only thing labor leaders can do is permit union and non-union men to work there together.

The leaders were very foolish to demand that President Roosevelt abould discharge Assistant Foreman Miller simply because he was not a member of the union. They now see that they made a great mistake.

How can there be liberty if a man cannot obtain work when he applies for it without the endormment of some union which may have expelled him from membership because of the personal animosity of a clique of men against him?"

This will show how near the Ameri-Council is to the fact when it tells us, in the circular editorially con npon in The Worker of Oct. 11, that the President's decision has nothing to do with the question of open versus union shops outside of government employment and tries to convey the impression that Roosevelt is a friend of the workingmen. This company—which, by the way, describes itself on its letter-heads as a "Manufacturer of Bibles" and is, of course, composed of very pious and philanthropic gentlemen—is sending out other circulars in which the officers of labor unions are described as unrank and file to go on strike in order that they may get high salaries. Just dreds of members to strike or bow it is tlat these officers expect to get higher entaries when the members are on strike than when they are at work and paying dues, is not explained. But the pious and philanthropic bosses expect the poor dupes who have taken strikem' places at reduced wages to believe

"P. B.-We pity the strikers who were misled and deceived by the offi-clais of the Bookhinders' Union. We now have all the work-people we want in our bindery and empot take on any more image."

trated There.

A Big "Barrei" to Back Republican Matienal Committee's Ukase that Socialism Must Be Checked in Carey's Nems-Grooked Methods and Oveer Personages in Anti-Socialist Campaign. HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 18.-Per haps the hardest political fight that Haverhill has ever seen is now on. As was announced some months ago, the Republican National Committee has sent out the word that Socialism MUST be crushed here in its historic stronghold. Organized capitalists of the nation are giving their support to the reactionary attempt. No mo being spared and no methods are too mean for the capitalist managers to resort to in their frantic effort to stem the tide.

The splendid record made in the Massachusetts Legislature by James F. Carey, Socialist Representative from a Haverhill district, the inspiration which his conduct and that of his colleagues has given to the movement all over the country, and especially the tremendous increase of the Socialist rote throughout Massachusetts in the state, city, and town elections of the last year have brought the owners of the nation to the resolution that, at whatever cost of money or of manlood Carey must be defeated this year. They imagine that if they can muster a plurality against Carry and can boast that Haverhill has repudiated Socialism, they will have dealt the whole movement a mortal blow.

Quiet Blacklisting of Votors.

As one means to this end, the employers have been systematically weeding-out the known Socialists from the shows here. Of course, no one has been discharged for being a Socialist. When a boss wants to get rid of a man, he can always find a good exuse. So, on one pretext or another, large number of the active Socialists have been discharged or "laid off" and never taken back and have been forced o go elsewhere to seek a chance to work and live. Scattered over the state or over the country, they are all good missionaries of Socialism, but the Socialist Party in this locality is deprived of their votes. The question is however, since the use of this dastard ly method is protty generally known, will it not be found that it has made Socialists of enough of the formerly indifferent ones to more than make up the loss? We shall see on Nov. 3,

The Rule-or-Rule Renogades.

In addition to this and to the use of money and influence in many open or underhand ways, the capitalist managers have taken into their employ and he renegades from the Socialist ranks they can lay their hands on—the people who, when in the party, were de-termined to rule or rula, who found the party capable of ruling itself and who have been driven outside the lines to carry on their spitcful work of de-

This paragraph is a gem of the first water. It is also a true index of capitalist politics-rank idiocy with froth upon

HELP FOR HAVERHILL.

The Socialists of Haverbill are now facing the most formidable combine tion, of corruption, siander, intrigue and all the foul forces at the command of capitalism that has ever been con centrated at one point against the So ciaffat movement in America.

The word has gone out from the Be publican hendquarters at Washington that Carey must be defeated, and the organized capitalists of the land and supplying the campaign fund to carry out that decree

THE CANAL QUESTION.

We are asked by several readers to the state of New York should vote for or against the proposed expenditure of $101,000,000 in enlarging the Brie Canal. The party as such has made no decision on this question, but we have little hesitation in advising that our readers votesfor the measure, since it is submitted to them.

We only understand that the enincomment of the canal, even though it | dren of those they have pauperixed? is a public property, is not a great issue for the working class. We quite understand that, so long as the goverument of the state is left in the hands of the enuitalist class through its Republican and Democratic agents, the working class is not going to be freed from wage-sinvery nor its condition materially improved by the cxtension of the public functions.

But we are calling on the working men to use their votes to take the controi of the state out of the bands of the capitalists by voting for a Social Democratic legislature and judges and tocal others on November 3. Consistently with that advice, we advise that they vote to enlarge the canal, to improve by so much the industrial plant of the state and nation and capeinily that part of it which already belongs to the state that we call upon the working class to capture. The fact that Senator Depew of the New York Central is opposed to the proposition is, by itself, a good reason for works ingmen to vote for it.

In some quarters the objections are raised that, in the present state of affairs, the voting of such an approprintion will give unlimited "graft" to enpitalists and politicians, and that the voric will be done by badly paid and overworked laborers and mechanics, to the great profit of the contractors. Certainly it will, if the workingmen, voting for the canal, vote also for one or the other of the two parties; that upport capitalism, with all its randaentions of "graft," large and small. But that is not a reason for voting against public improvements. It is a reason for voting to put the public powers into the hands of the one party of the working class-the Social Demacratic Party, which pledges itself against profits for contractors, against profits for any non-producers, and for the reduction of working hours in upproprian to the increased productive power of labor, for the right and duty of every man to work, and for the payment to the workers of the full value their labor creates. The way to prevent "graft" and vote against the canal, but to vote for the Arm-and Torch.

SOCIALISM IN BELGIUM.

The coming session of the Reigian Pmliament promises to be a stormy one. The Socialists, who hold nearly a third of the seats in the lower house will again take up the fight against the abuses in the Congo State in Contral Africa, of which Kiugai.copold, a member and agent of an intermations gang of financiers, is the head. There is a scheme on fost to transform the Congo State formally into a Beigian crown colony for the purpose of strengthening the hold of its expeliters. The Socialist deputies will fight this, as they fight the whole colonial sysrible oppression to the univer of the field invaded and because it means demornization at home and increased power for the most corrupt elements

In this the Socialist deputies will probably have the support of some others, but they do not intend to stop there. It is expected that they will make a strong attack on the institu tion of royalty. A great popular propagenda on these lines is already ing carried on.

The Brussels correspondent of the New York "Times"—in spite of the de-airs of the whole capitalist press in this country to sarend the idea that Huroman Socialism is merely a moder credit the "extreme" Socialists of the United States—is compelled to admit; in his letter published last Sunday; that the Belgian Socialists are in a thoroughly revolutionary frame of

The dissolution of the Social-Na-tional party in Germany, which was decided upon by a congress held at Gottingen on Aug. 20, marks one more step. in the clearing of the field for the final conflict between the capitalist system and the rising forces of Social-ism. The National Social party was formed some years ago, under the lead erable of some probably well-meaning but unpractical clergymen and theo rists, its avowed object being to coin bine something, of the purpose and spirit of the Social Democratic Party with the bourgeois idea of mitional patriotium: As was predicted by the Social Democrats, it never showed much vitality, because of its lack of commistency and thoroughness of pur-pose. It inclined too much toward the Socialists to please the propertied classes; its surrow patriotism was ditusteful to the wrokingmen who, as they learned to recognise their class interests; learned to regard the work respect of independent thinkers. In the Reichstag election last June it period but 27,334 votes. The leaders poster but 27,000 votes. The report was printed and sent out by Mr. Greenbaum blusself and was published in at least one Socialist Party paper-The Worker. There was no secrecy about it. Greenbaum and his colleagues looked after that. But Casson's startling discovery displays that same infantile and unive ignor-nuce which has distinguished him throughout his wobbly career.

There are twenty polats submitted by Casson as justification of his in-dictment of Socialists for incompetence to govern their own affairs. It is useanswer to Casson's belated siander will be a statement of facts covering the real condition of the national Socinilat Party to-day.

1. There are thirty-five states or-ganized and affiliated with the na-tional organization of the Socialist capitalism and their own slavery.

Now all these facts can be easily verified. The Socialists have nothing to hide. If Mr. Casson had wanted to tell the truth about the Socialist Party months old as an argument against it. He would have made inquiry and would have been honest even with himself. But Mr. Casson has been traveling backwards for several years now, and he gets fartheg and farther from the truth as he travels, until he has now lost sight of it altogether.

Certainly, the Socialists have differences among themselves. Their party would not be too large to hold Casson between the first would not be too large to hold Casson because the first would not be too large to hold Casson because he will not be too large to hold casson because he will not be too large to hold casson because he will not be too large to hold casson because he will not be too large to hold casson because he will not be too large to hold casson because he will not be too large to hold casson because he will not be too large to hold casson because he will not be too large to hold to he will not be too large to hold to he will not be too large to hold to he will not be too large to he will not be too large to he will not be too large to he will not be too lar to they did not: So long as men and women choose to govern themselves, to conduct their own affairs, to exercise democracy, there are bound to be differences of opinion and antagon-isms. Differences could be easily cliniless to caumerate them, and unnecessisms, Differences could be easily clini-sary to refute them in detail. The best rated were everybody to accept one man-t'awon for instance-as flux authority upon all questions. But the Socialists say that no one man is big chough or omninotent enough to lay own laws or to speak as authority for them.

Mr. Casson has said he believes the trade unious are the only hope for the working people, but he cannot show a live trade union, in this country in which there are not differences and strife of some sort. And as for dishouesty, how many Socialists have been found among the walking delegates and business agents of the trade unions who have been convicted of corruption and general dishonesty these books, these speeches you always throughout the country during the past hear of Marx, Lassaile, Liebknecht, or

On coming out, and as they were going toward the hall, they noticed two-Amerilists following them. When they reached River street a group of Aparchists walked up to them and started again to abuse our comrades most shamefully. Comrade Serrati tried to calm them and invited them to reason. To this they answered with threats and blows, and some of them pulled out their weapons. At this functure and while our three comrades were being circled round by this gang of blood-thirsty fauntics, a team of the co-operative store was coming up from behind, and the driver cried to Berrati: "Itun away! They are coming up from behind, all armed, to kill you!" The three then succeeded in getting away from their assailants and ran to the Socialist Block. When they got there the tragedy was over; the hall was deserted save for Com-

This is what had taken place: The meeting was called for 7 p. m. Anarchists in the half to six or seven Socialists. Some of the latter were late and some had been deterred by the threats of the Anarchists. Then the trouble be-gun. Some Anarchist began to inquire into the cause of the delay, abusing the Socialists. Some were usking "Where is your priest?" (referring to Serrati). Some were calling for the sexton to toll the bell, calling the Socialist Block a church, and going on in this manner. Comrade Berns-sconi asked them to be patient, and rive; but they only increased their sar nem and humiliating epithets against the speaker and the Socialists. Comrade Bernasconi then told them that if they had come to make trouble they might go out. This was as though the command for an attack had been given. First one, then two, then

"The continuous process system will be in operation in most of the mills of the United States Steel Corporation within the next two years. The plairon is practically handled by mann of hydraulic machinery from the tim it leaves the furnaces to the time it is converted into fluished steel shapes. In one of the milis where the newes methods are being introduced a repre sentative of the New York Commi cial' was informed that, to produce the same amount of material under old methods, it would require 3,000 men. As their bours of labor reduced by one fourth? Under Socialism it would be so. Under capitalism, No. The mills are owned by men who do not work, who do not have to work, inst because they own the things that other me must have access to in order to work and live. The new methods are put into use; every fourth man is turned out to hunt a new job, to bid against the three lucky ones remaining; th as before, perhaps harder, and creat as large a product as the four by old methods; and the men who own the mills and do not work in them save the wages of the fourth man, increase their profits by so much, and have that fourth man, standing idle and hungry, to take the piace of one of the three if they venture to ask for a share in the benefits of scientific and technical

Aurora Hall, Oct. 14, was a great success. The topic was, "Public Ownership of Gas Works," and the argument for the middle class reform movement in New Haven was made by Alexande Irvine, a clergyman who has been iden-tified with various reform movements for several years. Mr. Irvine made a vigorous address, claiming that he sought the same end as the Socialist, only by a "step at a time." He deplored the lack of "public spirit" in New Haven, because scarcely a dozen tee hearings of the Board of Aldermen where he and others have been lobby Ing for purchase of the gas works. WITH CLEAN HANDS

I have looked about looking for frenders long enough. Now I look offenders long emough. Now I look within. Within I find the arch of-

I have thought I could wash my hands with charity. Or with kindness. Or with polite words. But I can only wash my hands with justice. Justice slone will wash clean that which is solled. Can you wash your hands with a Sunday school? Or a library? Or a college? Washed that way you are washed dirty instead of clean. I see you everywhere streamously trying by artifice to escape the services justice. You try to explain justice away. Perhaps to frighten it away. Perhaps to persuade it away. You try, to deceive the puzzled world. To out wit yourself. To postpone judgment. But all this time the messenger waits. He refuses to be rejected. swer belongs to him. He will not go

I see the messenger wherever I go. Everywhere. He stands about offer-ing you justice. He is at the door of every office and factory. He drives out to your farms. He-descends into your mines. 'He says: Here is a sponge, some coap, and a towel: and here, too, is water. But you say: I do not see your sponge, nor your soap, nor your towel: nor de I see your water. And then the messenger explainst I bring you justice. For the mes-senger knows that no other cleanliness. will make you clean if you refuse yourself this bath of justice. There is od on your hands. Macbeth has murdered sleep. You are in the broad daylight and your palms are solled. You walk in your sleep. But the damped snot will not out. weep. But weeping will not clean your hands. Nothing will clean your hands' but cleanliness. Justice is cleanliness

You swindle the men. Poor men. And the women. Poorer women. And the children. Poorest of all, the children. And then you go to the priest to confess. To the editor. To the statesmen. You confess through some law. Through some creed. some custom. It will not do. The men, the women, the children, still slave. How can you show you are sorry for slavery except by freeing the slave? Are you afraid to wash? Do you prefer to remain dirty? think you will feel content to go on day after day, year after year, with unwashed hands, imagining that some miracle will do for you that which you refuse to do for yourself? Justice will challenge the dirt on your hands.

You think that things may go on forever as they are. But that is a mistake. Our civilization is big. But It is none too big to break. things than it have broken. Bigger tion has two hands that are very dirty. What is civilization doing to get its palms clean? You can get alo out the church. Without the state. But you cannot get along without clean hands. Your washed hands will put roses back on the cheeks of chil dren. They will give fathers and mothers a chance to live. Parents apologize for bringing children into the world. That is because your hands are dirty. Wash your hands. Coll-dren will be welcomed. Children will welcome life.

No one can wash for you. Yo i must wash for yourself. Ten thousand others may clean their hands. But that would not clean your hands. You have got to go through the process yourself. A five per cent. civilization is corrupt. That sort of civilization is the dirty hand. Only a hundred per cent, civilization will do. That sort of civilizati of civilization is to the men who create a hundred per cent. That is justice. Wash your hands. The world is free. What a miracle! You clean your hands. An imprisoned world goes free. The fails disgorge. Everywhere the people-push out into the open air. All are free. It takes so little to do this. Just the washing of hands. After trying to-fool yourself so long and failing try now to be bonest with yourself and ther you will not succeed. You try by all sorts of hard ways to evade justice. Try in the one easy way to conform to justice. Civilization can come but by the one road. Civilization is only cleanliness. It is the clean hand. It is the fearless hand held esly up under the scruttny full day.

is true, Mayor Fagan, who is secking re-election as the Republican catallitate, poses as a workingman, formerly earning $15 a week as an undertaker's assistant. But Mr. Fagan, though of the working class, in not for it. Two instances will clinch this statement. Credit is claimed for Fa-gan's administration in adding $2,500, too to the assessments of tax-dodging corporations, while the tax-rate for individual property owners was reduced. A Socialist administration would utilize this wealth gathered from the cor parations for the welfare of the labor ing class that originally created it. Not so Mr. Fagan. He promised the firemen on two occasions that they would get the raise in wages assured them by the Legislature. But the fire-lighters will have to wait until the Republican organization back of Mayor Fagun gets ready to patronize "that large class"—to quote from a Republican campaign document—"of our citizens who are not directly taxpayers." The second instance in which Mr. Fagan shows his want of sym-pathy for his class concerns the trolley workers. Though pursuing the street car trust, which may will be called the "Disregard of Public Service Cor-poration," with suits in the endeavor to wring from it $100,000 a year in taxes, Mr. Fagan makes no plea for the overworked and underpaid trolley men, who were on the verge of strik-

JERSEY CITY SCHOOLS.

Why Republican and Domocratic Politicians Have Asted Together in Hegiecting Public Education Jersey City, Just as in New York.

Both in Jersey City and in New York the Republicans and Democrati make one another responsible for the inadequate school accommodations and both are right. Both of these parties have neglected this vital organ of our civic life, from which springs so much good or ill for the future generation. Were the numerous parochial and private schools to close their doors the condition would become appalling in its magnitude. Neither Fagan nor Murphy cares a rap about the public school, as both gentlemen are mem-bers of the Catholic church which has demued the public school for its ecular character, and which is ing every effort to secure public funds for its parochial schools. Only this month the Democratic members of the Legislature in special session forced an amendment to a bill which read that every child shall attend the pub-lic schools, to read, "attend any school." So the local press informs us, and daily discussions in the New York "Sun" confirm this statement.

Mayor Pagan was elected on a Re-ublican ticket in one of the strongest Democratic cities in the country, we are told, by the aki of the Catholic vote. Here in Jersey City the hypo-critical love of both parties for the public action is exposed. Wooden sheds, labeled achools, were constructed by a Republican Mayor with the aid of a Democratic administra-

We admire the aggressiveness of the Catholic church. At a recent convention of German Catholics held in this state a delegate proposed that men be sent into the legislature who will appropriate a portion of the public treas ury for parochial schools. Here is a shoral which should appeal to avery workingman. The Catholic church does not appeal to the Protestants to them in their fight for these. Not in the least. If Catholics want a thing they demand it, they struggle for it, they vote for it.

In the past the wage and salary workers have never demanded anyothers to get it for them. Thus it hap peus that their chikiren are either overcrowded in the schools, or given only half-day sessions, or at times totally excluded.

.The Socialist Party is the only inter national organization equal to the Catholic church in discipline and ag-gressiveness, The Socialist Party alone will provide proper school ac commodations for the people, because it is the only party which upbolds the Constitution of the United States to keep church and state separate. We charge that the Protestant churches are responsible for the introduction of religion in the public schools and we "pluk eye," if the evidence of some grant that under such conditions all other religious have the same right, because voters of all religious tribute to the maintenar ce of the pub-

The Socialist Party therefore insists that the public school shall be strictly a neducational institution and that the church is the proper place for religion. In France wherever the Socialists con-trol the municipalities the children are not only furnished with free edu are not only furnished with free edu-cation, but are provided with meals and often with clothing, in order that they may be in physical condition to take advantage of school opportuni-ties. In parts of Germany the chil-dren even receive free dental treatment, on the principle that it is in the which capitalism sacrifices to its own profits. This is proof positive that the Socialist Party is the foremost cham-pion of the public school and every other public service for the public we

If you want such and more publi improvements, vote the Socialist Party ticket. Beware of a false organization styling itself the "Socialist Labor Party." It is made up of men attacking the Socialist Party and the trad-unions. Do not divide your politica forces, workingmen, and thus play into the hands of the capitalist class. Vote for your class interests and those of your children. Vote as you strike against capitalism, by costing a straight ballot for the Socialist Party.

Voters, menif you dare accept such appoliation without shame—hide your faces after election day if you cast your vote for any one save those who are pledged by their honor to abolish the cruel outrage of child labor and enforced igsorance, upheid by all who owe their nomination to the Rapublican and Democratic parties of the capitalist class. Do not seek to shirk your responsibility by saying that such vampires of fathers as permit or require their children to work in the factory under the age prescribed by law are wholly responsible for this crime and its con-tinuation. No! a thousand times po! It is you who know that this crime is perpetrated, who know that such degraded parents exist, who know that their children need your protec-tion more than do your own—you are responsible if you allow the infamy to nake the laws of this nation by sending men to office, really believe that your moral responsibility is ended with your thoughtless casting of a rote for someone deeply interested in his own personal election? Does it not occur to you that the very seeking of an office, as both Republicans and Democrats are seeking, as individuals,

Democrats are seeking, as individuals, the offices for which they are nominated, is demoralizing and destructive to the common welfare?

It is for this reason that we call upon you to vote for a principle, to vote the Socialist Party ticket, because it is the only party that has full and absolute control over its indiand absolute control over its indi-vidual nominees, and therefore with pride and confidence can assert that whatever appears in its platform and declaration of principles must and will be carried out to the letter, notwithstanding the possibility that a rogue or two may occasionally seek and even obtain admission into the party The old parties exist for the benefit of the individuals who lead or control them. The Socialist Party exists for the benefit of the working class, and

Our nominees are each and every one pledged to the Socialist principle and are held by their party respons-the for their deeds.

To sholish the crime of child slavery in this and other states, there is nothing else for you to do than to admit that the Republicans and Democrats have had sufficient opportunities to abolish it and have failed or refused to do so, and that you are there-fore morally compelled to shake them of and vote for the one party which solemnly pledges itself to sweep away this and kindred industrial crimes, and has given you every possible reason to believe in its sincerity.

the United States, on Tuesday next you will be called upon to vote for local and state officers'and legislators and judges to make and apply and administer the laws by which you are to be governed. For the last time before Election Day we call upon you NOT TO THROW YOUR VOTES AWAY.

All the year through you are gaged in conflicts with the capitalist class. You do not own the home where you live; every month, every day, .. you feel the conflict between your interests and the interests of the landlords who levy tribute upon yet for permission to live upon the fabe of the earth. You do not own the means of production with which you work. You are dependent upon other men for permission to use your strength and skill in useful labor. Every day you feel the conflict be tween your interest and the interest of the employers who levy a daily tribute upon you, who allow you to work and live only when they can make a profit upon your labor. You are forced to strike and boycott. They meet you with the lockout and the blacklist. All the year through you are either in open war with your em ployers or standing in arms, ready to fight against their aggressions.

Since on every other day in the year, the interests of the working class and those of the capitalist class are opposed, is it not evidently IM-POSSIBLE that any one party should represent BOTH classes on Election Day?

It is impossible. Each party, each candidate, each public officer, must either stand for the capitalists against the workers or else for the workers against the capitalists.

discovering which party stands for your class, then you will have throws your vote away.

In all your conflicts, have you for the Republican administrations of city, state, and nation on your side or on the side of your masters? AL-WAYS on the masters' side. Always ready, with court decisions, with injunctions, with policemen's clubs and soldiers' bayonets to support Profit against Human Life.

And the Democratic administra tions? JUST THE SAME. You couldn't tell one from the other without the party label.

And the "Reformers," the "Citisens" Unions," the "Non-Partizan" parties the-self-styled respectable "Good Government" people, the "Business Asministrations," and all that lik? Always the same. Always putting BUSINESS INTERESTS ABOVE THE WORKERS WELFARE.

Look back over the past year, the past two years, the past decade, and see if this is not so.

If you vote for a Reform Mayor and that mayor sends police to break strikers' heads-as Mayor Low, among others, has done-was it not YOUR ballot that gave force to the club?

MAKE PROGRESS.

Vote for what is right. A hundred cowards are waiting for you. YOU vote right THIS YEAR and they will vote right pext year.

Suppose you don't elect any Social ists to office. Do you think your Socialist votes are thrown away?

Then every time the Republican win, all Democrata and all the res have wasted their votes, and every time the Democrats win the Repub licans have thrown their votes away If that is the right principle, if every vote for a party that does not win is vote thrown away, IF THE OBJECT OF YOTING IS TO BE ON THE WINNING SIDE, then it is ridiculous to have parties or to have election and vote at all.

But that is not the object of voting. No vote that is cast intelligently is ever thrown away.

Suppose it is sure that the enemy will win. Suppose it is sure that we are to have either Republican capitalist agents or Democratic capitalisi agents or "Reform" agents of capitalism in public office in city and state. Is that a reason why YOU, who do NOT want any sort of capitalistic agents in office, should fail to vote AGAINST them?

THE VOTES THAT THE POLI-TICIAN FEARS AND RESPECTS ARE THE VOTES THAT ARE CAST AGAINST HIM.

So long as he is sure of your vote, the politician in office doesn't care a rap for you. Wherever either the Republican or the Democratic party thinks it has what is commonly called a "cinch," it rules with absolute disregard of the interests of the mass of the voters, with regard only to the interests of its capital backers and its party beelers.

The Socialist vets-in New York i is called Social Democratic-is THE ONLY CHECK UPON THE USE OF THE POLITICAL POWER FOR THE ADVANTAGE OF THE CAPI-TALIST CLASS.

The old-party politicians and the capitalists who supply their campaign funds and their boodle know that the Socialist Party-the Social Democratic Party of New York-stands for the working class against capitalism and all that is connected with it.

Let the Socialist vote be small, the old-party politicians in office will us their power unrestrainedly for the capitalists and against the workers. LET THE VOTE FOR SOCIAL INTELLIGENT MINORITIES It Is Not for Men that We Ask Your Suffrages, but for Principles Founded in Working-Class Interest.

Workingmen of New York, if you wish to put the government of the city and state again into the hands of bankers and landlords and corporation lawyers and trolley magnates—do not vote the Social Democratic ticket.

If you want another lockout and wish the city government again to give its support to the Employers' Asseciation—vote against the Social Democratic Party.

If you wish to have the police used to break strikes, as Van Wyck's man, Devery, used them against the Brooklyn trolley workers and the New York cigar makers and as Low's man, Greene, used them against the tunnel laborers-vote for one of the old par-declared unconstitutional by the Court of Appeals—vote for either of the old parties, for they have both renominated Denis O'Brien on such a record If you like to see thousands of working-class children excluded from school for the benefit of the big taxdodgers and forced into the factory by the poverty of their parents—vote un-der any old embiem except the Arm and Torch.

of Cigarmakers' Union No. 144. For President of the Board of PETER J. FLANAGAN, Workingmen of New York, each of you has the same power at the polls as J. P. Morgan. The only way to throw a vote away is to use it wrong.

The Social Democratic Party does not use the common caut of telling you to "turn the rescale out" and put "good men" in. The candidates of the old parties ought to be voted down, not on the ground that they are all rascals, but on the ground that the principles and policies of both their parties are in the interest of the ex-ploiting class. The Social Democratic candidates ought to get your votes, not merely because they are good men, but because they stand squarely for the workers' interests. We do not ask for personal voice. We want votes for Socialism, not for men. If you wish the legislative, judicial, and executive powers of city, state, and nation used to help you in your struggle for better conditions; if you wish to put an end to the poverty of the workers and the power of the idlers; if you wish your children to have a better life than you have had; if you would secure to the workers the whole value of their product—put a cross under the Arm and Torch in the THIRD COLUMN.

Different sections of the capitalist class may have good reasons to vets for this or for that old-party ticket. The capitalist class as a whole has good reason for maintaining two o good reason for maintaining two old parties, that it may keep you divided on false issues—divided and weak. Their "issues" do not concern your in-terests. There is only one from terests. There is only one issue for you-Labor against Capital. The So-cial Democratic Party makes no pretense to "represent all classes," but stands for Labor against Capital, first, last, and all the time.

The Social Democratic Party is car rying on a very active campaig the Twenty-eighth and Thirtieth sembly Districts of New York City, the two strongest districts in that sec-tion of the city known as Xorkville, where Socialism is gaining every year. Thousands of leasiets have been put in the working class homes of these districts by a thorough house-te-house canvass, and given to the people com-ing down the stairs from the elevated stations on their way home from work. During the closing week of the cam-paign Aigernon Lee and Courtenay Lemon, our candidates for Assembly are traveling over their respective dis-tricts in two vans and holding a number of meetings every evening. Social Democratic vote in the Thirtieth rose from 518 in 1900 to 939 in 1902, and in the Twenty-eighth from 438 in 1900 to 628 in 1902, and another great increase is expected this year.

The Republican and Democratic candidates in both districts have been challenged to debate. So far no reply has been received to the challenge is-sued by Comrade Lee to his opponents in the Thirtieth. Comrade Lemon's challenge in the Twenty-eighth sets the date of a meeting at which the Democratic and Republican candi-dates are invited to appear, as fol-

Party, which is composed of actual workingmen, and financed and con-trolled by its working class membership, is the only political representative of the working class; that only by uniting in this political party of its own class for the purpose of capturing the powers of government can Labor offer effective resistance to the op-pression of Capital; that only Socialism can emancipate the working class from their present condition of dependence, want, and wage-slavery that only Socialist Assemblymen and Aldermen can advance the interests of the working class; and, therefore, that every workingman should vote the ticket of the Social Democratic Party. "You are hereby challenged to debate these propositions with our can-didate at the meeting mentioned above. Lee's Challenge.

To Mesars. G. A. Littauer and Joseph Lash, Democratic and Republican Candidates for Assembly from the Thirtieth District. Gentlemen:-With the approval of the district organization of the Social Democratic Party, of which I have the honor to be a candidate. I hereby challenge you to appear with me in joint debate before the voters to dis-cuss the issues of the campaign.

"I charge that the parties which you represent stand for the interests of the capitalist class, the class that owns the land, mines, railways, factories, and tenements and exploits the people who do the useful work, "In support of this charge, I cite

these facts: Both your parties have united in re-nominating for the Court of Appeals Judge Benis O'Brien, who declared the Prevailing Rate of Wages Law and the Eight Hour Law uncon-attutional. Comptroller Grout and President Fornes, elected two years ago as Republican-Reformers and now re-nominated as. Democrats, heiped Mayor Low and a combination of Republican and Democratic Aldermen in granting the Pennsylvania Company Tunnel Franchise WITHOUT ANY CLAUSE FOR THE PROTECTION

Devery, under Democratic Mayor Van Wyek, USED THE POLICE to break the Brooklyn trolley strike and the New York cigarmakers' strike, 60 Commissioner Greene, under Reform Mayer Low, used the police to break the subway laborers' strike and to intimidate the Queens County Railroad workers. Comptroller Grout, now a Democrat, and District Attorney Jerome, still a Fusionist, had power, when the Building Trades Employers' Association locked out the workingmen, the one to make the contractors pay penalties for failure to finish the ALLOWED THE LOCKOUT BOSS-ES TO HAVE THEIR OWN WAY. In 1991, after four years of Tammany rule, 5,000 children were excluded from school and 58,000 put in part-time classes, for lack of schoolhouses; to-day, after two years of Reform, $7,000 are in part-time classes. Neither of your parties when in power has TRIED to enforce the Ten Hour Law for the protection of street and ele-vated railway employees—Democratic Capitalists Belmont and Whitney and Crimmins and Republican Capitalists

Platt and Depew and Beform Capitalist Cutting know why. "Both your parties endorse the economic system whereby one class owns the means of production and, without doing useful work, draws profits from the labor of the other operates them and PRODUCES ALL WEALTH-the system which gives luxury and power to the drones and dooms the producers to poverty and subjection; your parties are officered campaign funds; naturally. the officials elected by your parties to local, state, or national, must serve capitalist interests. "The Social Democratic Party is opposed to this whole capitalist system. It demands the collective ownership of the means of production which the working class collectively creates and operates-for everyone the right and duty to work, and TO THE WORK-ERS THE WHOLE VALUE OF THEIR PRODUCT. On every politi-cal question, the Social Democratic Party stands for the interests of the working class AGAINST the capital-ist class and against BOTH your parties. It depends on the working class for financial support and appeals solely to the working class for support at the polls.

"Our campaign is one of education and organization, not a campaign of brass bands and fireworks, beer and Loodle. DARE YOU MEET US ON THIS BASIS, to advance arguments, if you have any, why the workingmen straight ticket of the Social Democratic Party?

"I would remind you that last year you, ignored a similar challenge and that the Social Democratic Party in-creased its vote in this district by ERGHTY-PIVE PER CENT. THE SOCIALIST VOTE. The Socialist Party (the Social Democrati Party of New York) has peased through it second general election. Its growing powe is indicated and its speedy victory for shadowed by the great increase of its vot-as abown in those Egurce:

THE REPUBLING OF THE PROPER

The conditions under which the working people of New York City live is vividly illustrated by Tanoment House Commissioner De Forest's stat ment that to-day, after two years of "Reform," there are still no less than $50,000 "dark rooms"-that is, rooms without windows opening to an alt shaft or court or even to other recent so opening-and over 2,500 cellar living rooms, rented in violation of law, besides several thousand tunemen bakeries and several thousand ter ment houses without fire cocapes.

No rich man would keep his dog in one of those dark rooms or cellars. But the capitalists who control both the old parties and the hybrid "lite form" coalition have not the slightes scruple about drawing their incomes from the rental from such dens and from the profits of the factories and where they pay such lov waren that a large part of the working class have no choice but to live in these disease-breading fire-trap houses.

workshops and the tenements and the manufons do not care a man for the law, so long as they are not punished ingmen keep on voting capitalist politicians into office, they will take precious good care that Commissioner De Forest is not given the runus binds enforce the law and that their time "non-partizan" judges spend their time busing injuhetions against strikers, not sentencing law-breaking landlords.

And at the best, what does "ter ment-house reform" on the capitalistphilanthropist plan amount to? What does it accomplish? Suppose Mr. De Forest- and be it understood, we do not question Mr. De Forest's sincerity or good will, but only the wisdom of the plan be follows-suppose he succeeds in preventing the erection of any more tenements of the worst type and even in causing the destruction of some of the worst of the old ones, tenements it may be said-reversing the Kentuckian's dictum about whisky -that there are no good tenements. but some are worse than others. Well the landlords have tenements not quite so had built in the places of the old ones: these cost more: erro, sava the capitalist owner, they are worth more, and he charges a higher reptal for th same amount of space; and the growth of the nonnistion, with the necessity for the mass of the workers to be pear their places of employment, compels them to pay what the owner asks This is what we have seen happening before our eyes during the last two years. While taxes on real estate hav been reduced by our "business aduninistration," rents have gone steadily up. How do the tenants manage to bay more rent? It's a hard question to answer; but people manage many things when they have to. They eat

fewer outings at the beack in summer and perhaps pawn some of the little household belongings and can never redeem them; or they take in a lodger or two and so the more evercrowd the overcrowded rooms and the poor nother neglects her children works her fingers to the bone to keep things going; or the old man works a little harder, puts in a little more overtime and nears his grave so much the faster, and the boys and girls are sent to work on the street or in the store or office or shop.

And the inndiord who owns a 'good" tenement looks over his rentgood landlord, seeing I get even bigger returns on my money than bad ones do!" .And the workingman pays with his sweat, the workingwoman pays tenements give their childhood to pay. A Socialist logislature and city sci-

This is the only way in which the problem of the housing of the people can be approached with any hope of reacht to the workers. The "Heformers" will not do it, any more than the frank pid-party politicians. Only a party of Socialist workingmen dare attempt it.

THE BANKERS ALARS.

The sensation of the annual meeting of the American Bankers' Association at San Francisco last week was when Willis S. Paine, President of the Consolidated National Bank of New York, said:

"I repeat that SOCIALISM IS A COMING DANGER. I predict it will be THE ISM' OF THE FUTURE. IT the prediction is well founded the present ism' smong those who listen of my words should be parriotism-not the patriotism that contexts itself with the explosion of fireworks on independence Day, but the surriotism that may induce the members of the body I am new addressing to stand in line to register and again to stand in line and vote and to induce others pledge themselves to adopt remedia legislation."

The "remedial legislation" that Ranker Paine neged his fellow bankers to support consisted in the relieving of saving banks from taxation and certain changes in the law in regard at is not given the funds to enable to responsibility of savings banks di-Banker Paine expects to check the growth of Socialism, destined otherwho to be THIS "sun" of the future."

Socialism is coming. It is the great overshadowing danger to the master class, the world over. And just as it fills the masters with apprehension, so It is the great and growing hope of the warkers, of the subject, of the oppressed and the exploited of every land, inspiring them with patien and with courage to think and act for the emancipation of their class from poverty and of humanity from the corand denoralising role of

great a forward step this grand movement has made in this country that we call ours in the past year. That next Tuesday's returns will justify our slaims and increase the heakers' alarms, we need not for a moment doubt. Whether the advance be ten per cent, or fifty or a hundred, does not so much matter. The thing for us to bear in mind is this, that, whether we will or no, the final struggle between the profit ideal and the taken out of school a little earlier and human ideal, between the interests represented by the bankers and the interests felt by the toilers, is close at hand. It will not be a mild one. It will be a conflict to task all our enerrolls and save "How nice it is to be a gies, all our talents, all our courage and manhood, all our intelligence,

The aristocracy of wealth that speaks through Mark Hanna and through the Bankers' Association will with her tears, the children of the not lightly give up its supremacy. It will resort to every method, lawful or unlawful, moral or immoral, to ministration would cut the Gordian cajolery, to sophistry, to corruption, to frand, and even to force if it dare.

The very excesses to which the capi talist class will be driven in its at would strike at the root. Undoubtedly, tempt to stem the tide of progress will while capitalism lasts, mone of these react against it, will stimulate thought subsidiary problems, such as that of among the workers and especially will infiame them with indignation.

On us who are already Socialists, or us who siresdy see the general lines, in a single city or even a single state. The bankers see the full gravity of the situation. It is well that we also should see it and guide ourselves accordingly.

WATCH THE COUNT AND RE-PORT THE VOICE.

Two things we would impress upor our readers.

First, it is necessary, not only to vote for Socialism and get others to do so, but to see that our votes are counted.

Last year it is certain that in this city of New York we lost hundreds of votes and in the state several thousaud, through not having watchers a every polling place to see that our votes were recorded. No doubt it is the same all over the country. Where we did have watchess, they checked many attempts to count and report Socialist votes as "scattering" or to divide them up among the old parties If we have no one to watch the count, the Republican and Democratic election officers can very easily decide among themselves what to do with our votes.

Second, we want the vote repurse promptly. Every reader of The Worker wishes to get in the testes of November 8 and 15 as full and as definite news of the Socialist vote as possible. Every reader of The Worker can help in eatlefying this desire for all the others. See to ft that in each town or city there is someone whose duty it will be, just as soon as trustworthy returns are at hand, to report them, together with a statement of the votes for the same office to the same territory at the last election, to this

The Worker will go to press ner week as usual on Wednesday. Reports should reach this office by Wedneeday neen or as much earlier as possible, by mail or by telegraph.

BIT OF SENTIMENT THAT MAS A PRACTICAL VALUE.

The action of the Board of Direct es of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum ciation, last week, in caucelling a contract unadvisedly made to let the ball for a Democratic mass meeting and establishing a rule that the build ing shall not be used for political meetings of any but the Social Democratic Party, seems to us to merit the highest commendation.

To some it may seem a sentimental iden that this building, dedicated as a "Temple of Labor," would be profaned by being let for hire to the uses of the capitalist politicians. Maybe it is sentimental. Maybe it is not business-like. But we are of the opinion that the Socialist movement and the labor organizations will be the better and stronger for this sort of sentimes talism, that there are many things which are not business-like which are yet of very practical value to the cause of the workers.

It is always a question of where to draw the line, of course. Every ques tion of right or wrong, perhaps, me be a question of just where to draw the line. But in a movement like ours, its money, whose struggle is in the helding of the highest ideals along with the clearest views of cold and hard facts, whose one great asset is its unimpeachable good faith, its ab solute devotion to principle—in such s sesent it is always better to tak the chance of crying on the side of too great strictness than to ren the risk of aflowing our principles an

ounsels of practicability. Our friends of the Labor Lyceus teneciation have adhered to the ideal which is the racy reason for their or gamination's existence, and have ad-hered to it at considerable cost. The omrades should see that they are upheld and that all is done to help them in making their justitution a etocess upon these high lines.

Pressure of campaign matter compels us to postpone for a week the presentation of some further correspondence in regard to the question raised by Dr. Pyle of Toledo in our issue of two weeks ago, with comment thereon. ' For the present, we need only say that we think our expressions at that time erred rather on the side of "broadness" than on that of too strict adherence to discipline.

"Dixie" is a monthly published in Atlanta, Ga., "devoted to the manufacturing interests of the South." The editor, Mr. T. H. Martin, apenking for the factory owners of the South, declares that "the negro is a blessing to the South" and that "there is no spirit of autagonism between our people and the negro." This is interesting, coming from such a liquite;"but still more interesting is the reason with which it is supported. The reason is simple: The presence of the sugroes in large numbers in the South and the projudies existing between the white workers and the black workers there coustitutes what Mr. Martin considers an insuperable obstacle to aggressive labor organization. Occasionally, he says, an agitator "finds his way across the line. But the problem of organization, of the nort he desires, is a staggering proposition. If he organises the whites, the perro standa ready to turn the wheels of industry, not so well as the white man would do it, but well enough to keen the ball rolling. If the ngero be organized-but the thought of such a thing is ridienious. The negro is not serious enough for that." Comment is unnecessary. The argument, coming from the source it does is comforting to the capitalists, Northern and Southern by testdence, who exploit the laborers of North and South. It should be suggestive to all workers, of whatever race, who find themselves cherishing any remains of race prejudice.

The New York "Evening Post" ner hope the strongest supporter of the "Reform" ticket, es is natural in a paper partly owned by Mr. Seth Low, has been forced to alimit that there are fifteen or twenty thousand more children in part-time sessions for lack of school room now than there were a as many a year ago en there were when the "Reformers" came into nower. And then the "Post" has the nerve to inform us (Saturday, Oct. 10) that this is a good thing for the children, that they learn more in a bulfday than in a full day. It is a pity the "Post" would not be comistent. declare that the children would learn still better if they did not so to school at all; and tifvocate the discharge of the teachers and the turning of schoolbouses into factories. . It would cave a great deal in taxes to the class that the "Post" and its friends on the Low ticket represent.

"Hero" Pumton says the United States government must rules the soldiers in the regular army. Quite right Meanwhile the Manufacturers' A ciation and the National Metal Tra Association will reduce the wag pol-nicchanics and inborers doing pusitutive work, thus making things even. Then prosperity will again be assured.

The question of the participation of Socialists in bourgeois governments was discussed, and it was remarked that experience showed that this was rather a source of resolvent. this was rather a source of weakness than the reverse, as not only is the opposition of our party to the government in which such a minister sits paralyzed without his being able to do proportionately more, but also we lose the services of our best agitators, who are put in positions where they are overwhelmed with routine work. LOCAL AND LANDTAG

ELECTIONS IN GERMANY. Another Socialist mayor has been elected in Germany in the person of Ulrich Schmidt at Bietigheim. At the second ballots for district councilmen in Alance, a Socialist editor, Comrade Peirotes, was elected, receiving 1,751 votes in So. Strusburg: his opponent, supported by an alliance of the Center and other parties, had 1.116 votes. In North Muelhausen, Mayor Gegauff, owing to an alliquee of the reactionary parties, was elected with 2,665 votes; a Socialist editor, Comrade Martin, had 2,186 votes.

Incomplete reports of the recent election of members to the Landing of Sachse-Meinlugen show that seven Social Democrata, two National Liberala. one Badical, two Agrarians, and three independents were successful. In the outgoing legislature, also, we had seven members.

The elections for the Landtag or legislature of the Kingdom of Saxony maintain the record made there in the Reichstag election of last June, when of the twenty-three representatives elected from Saxony to the parliament of the Empire, twenty-two were Social Democrats. Whereas direct election and equal manhood suffrage prevalls in the choice of Reichstag members, the members of the Saxon Landing are chosen by electors who, in turn, are elected under a property qualification—the voters being divided into three classes according to wealth and each class choosing the same number of electors. Under such circumstances, it was with no hope of scating any of its candidates in the Landtog, but solely in order to make an emphatic protest against the electoral system and to demonstrate that the Saxon Landing does not represent the Saxon people, that; the Social Democratic Party entered the contest. The results are highly satisfactory. This year's election covered only one-third of the districts, the Landtag being renewed by thirds, as is our federal Senate. In every one of these districts in which there is a large industrial population our party won the whole or nearly the whole of the electorshins for the third or poorest class; in the .wo urban and three-rural districts of Dresden, the third-class electors chosen are, without exception, Social Democrats, as also in the first district of Leinzig, the first of Chemnits, and others. ANOTHER VIEW OF INDUSTRIAL 18M. By William Mitchell Bo-wack. New York. E. P. Dutton & Oo. 1966. Price, $2 net

If Mr. Bownek had "boiled down his book from four hundred pages to one hundred before sending it to press, it would have been more readable and yet might have retained all that it has of value and, accordingly, it would have served its purpose much better.

Its purpose, as nearly as we can divine it, is to break away from the old methods of treating political economy-to which the author studies the adjectives "unreal" and "doctrinaire" on top of the familiar "lifeless" and "soulless"-and to substitute for the analysis of principles a descriptive synthesis of concrete facts. In this he is not alone. Since the logical development by Karl Mary of the systematic exposition of economic principles built up by Smith, Ricardo, and their followers has turned economic science into a powerful weapon against the class interests in whose service it first arose-or, rather, since this work of Mark and his collaborators has becurious tendency, especially among those very capitalist apologists (par-ticularly in England), who used to deffy "the eternal laws of trade," now to declare that those laws have no ex-istence, that there is and can be no such thing as a science of economics, to substitute a vague, time-serving selectic empiricism for the rigid and soulless" logic that they once held so dear. That the descriptive synthesis is useful we are eager to admit; but that it can be a substitute for, that it can be more than an illustrative supplement to, the analysis of princip we emphatically deny. And we find Mr. Bowack's work by no means among the best even in this over rated new school.

A real living picture of "industrial sm," of the capitalist system as it is of the forces at work, the materials upon which and conditions under which they work, and the results they bring forth, is much to be desired. This is what Mr. Howack has essayed But we do not find his fiving picture sufficiently lively or graphic to hold the attention.

Moreover, Mr. Bowack is as thoroughly bourgeois in his concrete way as the old economists were in their ab-stract way—and as far from the realities of life. To them, the production of values was what the catechian calls "the chief end of man"; to him it is the production of steel rails and ingote, bales of cotton, barrels of flour or sugar or off, or "goods" of some other sort. He seems to view industry as the sim of life, not as the menus to living. He regards the better feed-ing and housing of the poor as a very important matter—but why? Because they can work harder and manufac-ture more things if they are better housed and fed. He even waxes poetle over the "immense increase in the eco-nomic resources of the country" which brould ensue "if by more healtny and intelligent uphringing and efficient education and technical instruction you can anticipate the period of omic efficiency by two years" and make the boys into full-fledged workingmen at sixteen instead of eighteen? Child labor is for him an evil only because persons who work too hard in their childhood will not be able to

Despite his aversion to "doctrinaire methods, our author now and then induiges in sweeping generalizations from the field of biology, as when to support a proposition for colonising savage countries with transported con-victs and imported coolles, he says: "We know that Nature abbors a gan in her synthesis. She hates patch work. A ruined or impaired economic unit has to be rebuilt from the founds refute the generalization and the in-ference by citations from the evolutionists, showing how in nature, the very qualities which render a true "unfit" in one stage often become those that fit it for survival in an other. But Mr. Bownek's opposition done of our electors are unserted on technical grounds. The three-class taw, adopted as a bulwark against the "microbic grubs" and "insect grubs" solving him from any suspicion of knowing biology.

> hardly worth while to dwell at length on the shortcomings of the book. We to a quarter the size: for the author has hit on some good observations-as of business relations through the use of the post, the telegraph, and the telephone (page 19); his bold, if too swe fluence of clericalism (page 316); his frank repudiation of the common cant every laborer has a chance to become a "captain of industry" (page Si); or his recognition that all labor in, at least to some extent, "skilled" and "intellectual" (page 259). But these are not enough to redeem the rest.

Ben Hanford Compelled to Close Tour.

Ben Hanford will clone his Western Hen linitory will close his visited four after filling the cagagements made in Nebraska for Nov. 1, and 2. Comrade Hanford is compelled to take this step solely as account of his physical condition. For some time he has struggled along, keeping engagement made for him under great personal difficulties, and his decision to no longer continue the tour was arrived at only after it become apparent that uld not keep on without running himself, besides making it probable that engagements definitely arranged could not be filled without a serious loss to the locals interested. This sudden change of plans is to be the more regretted since Courade Hanford's tour has been very successful. Out of over sixty meetings held only four were pourly attended, and the reports reaching the national office have been most creditable to Comrade Hanford. utiook was that the tour west of successful still. Dates aggregating nearly two hundred were practically assured in Colorado, Arizona, Califor-nia, Oregon, Washington, Montana, and Idaho. In addition, applications for return dates in Ohio, Illinois, In-diana, and Missouri were already on file. Arrangements are now being made which John W. Brown of Connectiwill take up the work where Hanford leaves off and complete the Western tour. Full particulars will be given later. Comrade Hanford will return

At the meeting of the Executive ommittee of Loral New York, Oct. 20, ten applications for membership were received. II, C. Burgwald sent his resignation from the Campa'ga Committee for lack of time to attend meetings and U. Solomon was elected to fill the vacancy. A committee appeared from the 6th and 18th A. D. and requested that a special number of ten thousand copies of the "Volksscitung," for campsign purposes, be issued Oct. 31. The cost of these ten thousand copies will be about $100, of which the "Volksseltung" is willing to give about $50 if the local will pay the same amount. The proposition was referred to the Campaign Committee. The reports of the delegates from the various agitation districts showed that the comrades all over the city are carrying on a vigorous and systematic campaign. Complaints were made that literature cannot be obtained in time. Through this delay some of the districts will not be able to use as many leaflets as they should. Yorkville delegates stated that if they do not receive all their literatuse by Oct. 25 they will refuse to accept it as they will not be able to distribute 2 in time. The financial secretaries of the assembly and agitation districts are again reminded that payments for campaign literature received from the Campaign Secretary should be made to U. Solomon, Organizer of Local New York, as money paid for literature to Courade J. Gerber goes to the Cam-paign Committee instead of Local New

At the meeting of the Campaign Committee of Greater New York on Oct. 21 it was decided to accept the proposition of the "Volkstaitung" to publish a special campaign edition on Saturday, Oct. 21, ten thousand copies of which will be given to the party every copy is placed in the hands of a German workingman, as the lague will contain a number of special articles bearing directly on the campaign in Greater New York. These papers should all be given out on the date of insue. One good way to distribute them is to ask your newsdealer to give one to each of his customers who buys some other German paper. The sum of $50 was appropriated to help defray the expense of this special edition. For the last week of the campaign the committee has arranged a number of indoor meetings at which Comrades Herron, Hayes, Spargo, and Furman will be the principal speakers. Thballot leaflet by Comrade Hillquit is now ready and the cumrades are urged to distribute the 100,000 copies as they will surely show many thinking worktour. Full particulars will be given hater. RAILROAD MONOPOLY AND YOU.

By Benjamin Hanford.

Do you ride on street cars? If you live and work in Greater New York, you do.

You have to. You cannot help it. You cannot get to your work in the morning, nor to your home at night, nor go to a church or a theater, nor to a park on Sunday, without riding on a street car.

How are you treated after you have boarded a car and paid your fare? No need to tell. You are treated like cattle, or worse than cattle. You are jammed five or six in a seat-if you have a seat. More likely you stand up -often you do not have standing room, only crowding room.

There may be some reason for being crowded in the "rush hours." But you are crowded just the same at all bours —midnight, afternoon or noouday work days, Sundays and holidays.

You grow about this condition of affairs, of course. What good has it ever done? Things have grown constantly worse, not better. Nor will they be better when the new bridges and tunnels are completed. They will be operated to "make money," Just as the present roads are. The more people crowded into a car the more rofits-more cars would mean more conductors and motormen, and to pay more men would decrease profits.

There's a working girl; she gets $3 a weak, and pays a railway 00 cents week to ride to and from her worl each day-and STANDS UP. One-fift! of her income goes for car fare. If she rides on some lines, half of the 60 couls tone-tenth of her whole wages goes to the "eminent gentlemen" who These "ominent gentlemen" do nothing loward running the road—the digger and tracklayers, and carbuilders, as conductors, and motormen can the road. All that the "eminent gentlemen" de is to keep down the wages of the men who do run the road, and buy and steal franchises, and make every one that rides pay profits to them. Fine gentlemen, those, who stand in the highway and make the working girl give them one-tenth of her income. The workingman is in the same hoat. The workingman is in the same boat loo. He also must pay 60 cents a weel to the railway company. Nearly all the working people of New York must par their 00 cents a week to our "emi nent gentlemen," from one afth to two-afths of it profits, to be distributed among them in the form of divi-dends on stocks, rentals, and interest on bonds. And the people who pay it

NEW READERS.

The party which The Worker sup-ports is known in the nation as the Socialist Party. In New York, on account of certain provisions of the election laws, it is obliged to call itself the Bocisi Democratic Party; its emblem in New York is the Arm and Torch.

The Socialist Labor Party is an en-tirely separate and hostile organisa-tion, led and controlled by Daulel De Leon. . It is important that the distinct tion be made clear, as a study of the election returns shows that the S. L. P. gets many votes not intended for it, on account of the similarity of names. The present Socialist Party was formed three years ago by the union of the old Social Democratic Party, organized in 1897, with the majority faction of the old Socialist Labor Party, which had split in the summer of 1800.

This Socialist Party or Social Demo-This Socialist Party or Social Demo-cratic Party polled about 97.000 votes in 1909, with Eugene V. Debs and Job Harriman as its national candidates; in 1902 it increased its vote to about 230,000. The Socialist Labor Party polled less than 35,909 in 1900 and about 50,409 in 1902. The leading question of party policy at issue in the split of 1800 was that of the attitude of the party toward the frade unions. The opponents of De Leonism held that the party, as the political organization of the working class, and the unloss, as its economic organization, should work fraternally, though independently, in their sepa-rate fields. The De Leonites main-rate words. The De leconies main-tained that it was necessary to "smash" all existing unious, Since the split, while the Socialist Party or Social Democratic Party has vigorously attacked capitalism and taught Socialist principles, the Social-lat Labor Party, despecing its once-hoporable name, has devoted its efhonorable name, has devoted its efforts almost exclusively to two obforts almost exclusively to two objects: First, to hamper the growth of the Secialist Party; second, to attack, undermine, or disrupt the trade unions. The difference between our party and the Socialist Labor Party may be summed up under four-heads:

1. We fight against capitalism all the time giving to the steel constraint to time, giving to the rival organization only so much attention as is necessary to prevent misunderstanding, confu-

Socialists: the S. L. P. fights us and treats the projaganda of Socialism as a secondary matter.

2. We support the trade unions. illhout seeking to interfere in their special work or allowing them to dic-tate to us in ours; the S. L. P. seeks and works for the destruction of the trade unions with a vigor second only to that with which it attacks us; not content with denunciation, it has even gone into the economic field to form rival unions and scab upon the existby democratic methods, believing that only so can the organization be kept only so can the organization be kept pure and the members trained for their growing responsibility as Socialists; the S. L. P. is ruled by its leader and dissent from his visws is punished by suspension or expulsion.

4. In advocating the cause of Socialism we seek to convince men by argument and appeals to their intelligent interest as wage-workers and to their feelings of honor or humanity; the S. L. P. depends upon abusive epithots, lies, and "bindf."

This article is intended as a warning

This article is intended as a warning to those who are new to the movement and who naturally suppose from its name that the Socialist Labor Party is a bona fide Socialist organization, or who do not even observe the dis-tinction between it and the Socialist Party. If any of our readers doubt the fairness of our statements we suggest that they investigate for themselves-attend the meetings and read the pa-pers and pamphlets of both parties and thoughtfully, compare them. If any-one candidly prefers the methods of the R. Y. P. he does not belong with us and we do not want him. All we us and we do not want him. All we desire is that the distinction between the parties should be recognised as it actually exists, and that men who approve of the methods of the Socialist Party—as represented, for instance, in The Worker—should not unwittingly cast their votes or their influence on the other-side.

The international arbitration group in the French Parliament, consisting of 240 deputies and senators of various parties, chiefly of the Left (Socialists add Radiesia), has sent circulars to the general councils of the departments urging discussion of the arbitration-question. Of the eighty-seven department councils, sixty passed a resolution in favor of international arhitration; only eighteen general coan cils voted against it or refused or neglected to discuss the question; nin lished their vote. In this connection it is interes to note in the last issue of "Justice," the organ of the Social Democratic Federation of Great Britain, the report of A. S. Headingley and J. F. Green, who were the delegates of the S. D. F. in the International Peace Congress field at Rouen and Havre. Commide Headingley notes that the discussion apart from the utterances of avowed Socialists, showed the increasing in-fluence of Socialist ideas and growing recognition of the fact, long urged by Bocialists, that class rule and conflict of class interests, growing out of private ownership of the means of pr duction, is the root of militarism and that was as commonly defined in but a corollary of the continuous and far more devastating economic going on under the forms of peace.

In "Austria" the Bocialist protest against militarism has taken a differ-ent form, our delegation in the Beichs-rath having 'issued an address to the soldiers condemning the arbitrary ac-tion of the government in longthening the term of required military service. the term of required military service. In the eyes of capitalists, this protest is almost treason, but the Socialists remember that the soldiers are men, that mest of them are of the exploited class, and that the capitalist government which trains them as soldiers may be only presenting. may be only preparing a means to its

ence to the principles of the worldwide Socialist inovement as expressed in the national platform of the Socialist Party of the United States, the Social Democratic Party enters upon the municipal campaign of 1908, as it has entered upon all its previous cam palums and as Social Democrats every where enter upon electoral campaigns, with a call to the workers, the a call to the workers, the a call-producers, to unite politically in their Gwn well-defined and supremely im-

We call upon our fellow workingmen of this great city of New York to face squarely and without flinching the one vitally important, fast, which all the that the interests of our class, as the producers of all wealth, are irreconclimbly opposed to the interests of the propertied class which dominates these old parties. Whether labelled Republican, Democratic, or Reform, each of these parties is financed, and therefore contribed and officered, by that class which lives by the exploitation of La-bor. The serving of their own sordid ends, the maintainance of their power to despoil the workers, is the sole ob jective point of their effort to secure political power, as it is the objective of the debauchery of our civic life which attends their rule.

As Social Democrats' we procisim that it is the duty of the workers to use all their political powers for the overthrow of the infamous system of class oppression under which city and nation grouns to-day—a system which gives luxury and once to the idlers and places them in a position of mastery over the wealth-producers; which condemns the vast majority of the workers to live in squalid, disease-breeding tenements that are unfit for human habitation, while giving to the drones of society, palatial man-sions and shameful luxury. Never in the world's history bave these infquitous conditions been more giaringly namifest than in this City of New York at the present time; and a sys-tem which produces and depends upon such conditions stands condemned by such conditions stands condemsed by all sound principles of statemnaship, civic economy, and morals. To end such conditions and to establish in their stead conditions of economic justice and political integrity is the mission to which the Social Demo-mission to which the Social Demo-cratic Party calls every workingman.

Alone of political parties the Social Democratic Party upholds the true functions of political government and proclaims that its end should be noth-ing less than the establishment of a same and just economic system in which every resource of the common Jife shall be free from private owner-ship and control and in which every ship and control and in which every child born into the world shall have equal opportunities with every other child. In short, we declare that our sim is the establishment of an Industrial Democracy, the Co-operative Commonwealth; and while realising that this can be accomplished only through the political triumph of the workers in state and nation, we desire to bring about a working-class ad-ministration of the city, not alone to avail ourselves of its power to relieve, so far an possible, the hardships of our class under existing economic condi-tions, but also, and primarily, to take all possible steps toward the realiza-

In the past we have had administrations of the city's affairs by Republicans and Dymocrats and by fusions of the malcontents of both parties in the interests of mo-called "Reform." The admitted corruption and incompetence of each of the party administrations has made possible the success of such coalitions, and inci-dentally, shown the essential identity of interests which exists between the of interests when exists netwent ar-old parties. Were their differences vital and fundamental such coalitions would be impossible. And just as their interests are identical, so have been their performances. "An artike have voted to members of the bessessing class, to which they theuselves belong, valuable public franchises which have added to the powers of monopoly and privilege over the citi-zenry, enabling them to extort many millions each year in profit, while callously indifferent to public needs. The wholesale corruption of our city government is directly traceable to this taproot of private exploitation of public needs. And, as might be ex-pected, as the Social Democratic Party has continually pointed out, in every case of conflict between the common citizens and the privileged class, at in every struggle between the wage-workers and the masters of their bread, all the forces of the city have been used to defeat the common citimens and the wage-workers, and to For two years past the City of New York has been governed by a "Re-form" administration. Never in the history of the city has any administra tion entered upon its duties with greater opportunities and never was there a more dreary record of failure and incompetence. The one achievement of which they boast is the reduction of taxes upon real estate, something worse than worthless to the working class, whose reats have not-been lawered thereby, but, on the contrary. ing class, whose reats have not been iswered thereby, but, on the contrary, have largely increased. One titions have not been changed for the better in any important department of the city government nor has there been so much as an attempt made to better the conditions of life in the city. The transportation service is even more outrageously ineffectent than before and the workers engaged therein are subject to worse conditions of labor than even before. In the crowded and the workers engaged therein are subject to worse conditions of labor than ever before. In the crowded tenements the almost exclusively pro-letarian disease, tuberculosts, is ramp-ant, on account of the unsanitary conditions prevailing there which the people themselves cannot overcome. Eclence points set the remedy with unerring finger, but the "Reform" ad-

Reaffirming its unswerving adher- | ministration dare not move in that direction because Vested Interests cry No: In the face of the most appailing evils the "Reform" government has re-mained silent and inactive.

When they have moved it has bee when they have moved it has been to crush with relentless brutality every attempt of the workers to protest against tyranny. When the exactions of the Beef Trust forced hunger-maddened women and children to revolt they were clubbed into submission by the police and artition tunnel labor. the police, and striking tunnel labor ers were met with the same shameful brutality. Workingmen of New York, let it not be forgotten that while under Tammafy, with Devery at the head of the Police Department, the police force was used to break the strike of the Brooklyn trolley workers, under the "Reform" government, with General Greene at the head of the Police Department, police were sent in large numbers to intimidate the workers on the New York and Queens County Railroad who were merely preparing to strike and could not be accused of any disturbance of the public peace. When, owing to the culpable negli-road Company, several citizens were killed in its antiquated and dangerous tunnel, it was not the guilty directors but a defenseless and suffering engineer who was presecuted by the District Attorney, whose spectacular campaign consisted so largely of an attack upon great corporations and loudy professed sympathy for Labor. In the building trades lockout, notwithstand-ing the fact that for tens of thousands of children there was no school accom-modation and that the locked-out work-ers had voluntarily offered to continue working on the old terms upon all school buildings pending a settlement of the lockout, work was stopped and thousands of children's education in-terfered with. But no effort was made to enforce the penalties for delayed work provided for in the contractd. These things, and the granting of the Pennsylvania tunnel franchise without the inclusion of the labor clauses, prove the hostility of the present administration to all the interests of the workers. Therefore we call upon our fellow workers, regardless of all distinctions of race or creed, to unite with us and rally to the support of the Social Democratic Party, theonly party of Labor, which will if elected to power administer the affairs of the city with proper regard to the comfort and well-being of the working class. It will use all its powers to improve the sanitary conditions of the city and to provide decent and ade-quate homes for the people. A party of the working class, with no other interests to serve, it will support only such legislation and adopt such meas-ures as will benefit the working class, and will ophose whatever may be pro posed contrary to their interests Especially to our fellow workers in the trade unions would we appeal in this campaign. While recognizing its limitations, the Social Democratic Party has always supported the trade-union movement in all its struggles be-cause it fully recognizes the essential justice of Labor's struggle on the eco-nomic field. We point out to all the organized workers of New York the utter futility of expecting any support from capitalist parties of any stripe Experience with Republicans, Democrats, and "Reformers" has shown that there is no political alchemy which can change industrial enemies into political friends. Therefore we call upon them to be loyal politically to their own economic principles and in-terests by supporting the Social Democratic Party which will, when en trusted with the administration of the city, use all the public powers for the protection and benefit of the workers in their conflicts with the capitalists.

Immediate Demands.

In addition to the measures indicated above, as proposals siming at the present relief of the workers and directed toward our final goal, we urge the adoption of the following imme diate measures, to which we pledge every one of our candidates and for which we seek the support of all who desire real freedom and economi /justice: PUBLIC FRANCHISES.

The city to acquire and operate all street railways, ferries, gas and electric lighting and heating plants, telephones, etc. The income from such industries to be applied to the improvement of the condition of the man of the employees by the reduction of working hours, the increase of wages, and the protection of life and health, and to the improvement and extension of the now inadequate public services any surplus remaining after these ands have been provided for, to be applied to the reduction of charges.

LABOR REGULATIONS.

All public work to be done without the intervention of contractors or middlemen. Eight bours to constitute a maximum day's work for city en ployees in all departments and the wages for such work to be equal at least to those received by organized labor in the respective trades. EDUCATION.

The city to provide adequately for he education of all the children of the people, by the provision of ample school room with an adequate force of school room with an acceptate power of teachers to keep pace with the growth of the population, and by the provision of meals, and, when accessary, of ciothing, to school children—not as a measure of charity, but of justice and public necessity, in order that the school system shall be really accessible

THE HOUSING PROBLEM.

The city government to undertake the solution of the tenement problem by the erection of modern dwellings with ample provision for light, air, and privacy, to be let at cost.

This particular story is probably a fairy tale, fixed up by the press agents of the employers' as-sociations, for the purpose of casting odium on the unions. OUR TOILSOME PLAY.

It is a fact of frequent observation Play, if it is to have any essential meaning, should signify the pleasurable exercise of human faculties. But it is true that the majority of mankind at the present time, even if they had the opportunity, would not know how to obtain any intense pleasure from such an exercise.

The classical example of this ignorance is the London cabuan, whose idea of a holiday is to rent a friend's cab and ride on the inside over the same route that he follows, scated on the box, every other day in the year. But how much wiser are the re mainder of the population? Great buildings with expensive apparatus are constructed simply for the purpose from all vita! social relations, the mor become the ideal of social recreation But in every one of these fields, it soon ability. But it is when we come to study the "amusements" of the great mass of the people that the painfulness of their pleasures becomes fully apparent.

Their idea of enjoyment is generally based upon some form of eating or drinking; a most significant commentary in itself on the nature of the daily sense of hunger and taste is fully satis-fied, is enough to answer those who would call the critics of our present so-ciety "plg philosophers." Incidentally it might be worth while to notice another sign that commercialism has in-fluenced nearly all so-called amuse-ments by the introduction of a finas-

BOSS TAILORS ATTACK UNIONS.

American Federation of Labor Asks Aid for Journeymen.

Director of Merchant Tallers' Association Shows that, Backed by Manufacturers' Association, it is Trying to Maintain Sweatshop System.

The Executive Council of American Federation of Labor has issued a cir-cular to organized labor, calling for help for the journeymen tailors in theil defensive fight against the organized bosses of that trade who, backed by Parvy's Manufacturers' Assolut tion, are trying to maintain the sweat-shop system or to re-establish it where It has been done away with. We quote be Merchaut Tailors' Association of the United Stafes, backed up by the Manufacturers' Association, are making war upon the organised Journey-men Tallors of the country, in the hope of cruehing out unionism, and forcing the most miserable conditions as to wages, under the pretence of ranking workmen, and without regard to the check which organisation interposes against avarice and injustice. In making the fight to refuse to furnish "back-shops" (ahops in which the men can work), they thereby admit their purpose to return to the old system of tenement-house home-work. The fol-lowing facts and appeal are carnestly commended to the serious, favorable, and sympathetic action of all members of organized labor. Read carefully to your organization.

"On the last days of June of the present year the Merchant Tailors of Kaness City, Mo., submitted to the Kansas City, Mo., submitted to the Journeymen Tuilors in their employ the following communication:

"Believing it to be our mutual interest, the undersigned Merchant Tailors have resolved that in the future we will treat with our men as individuals only, and employ same as long as they meet our requirements. It is not our motive to reduce wages; on the contrary, we will pay more for the highest chase of workmanship, thereby making it an incentive to excel; we decline to pay as much for poor work as the first-class men are justly enas the first-class men are justly en-litied to. We also reserve the right to judge the class to which it -belongs, and place the jours. (Journeymen) in their respective grades. We decline to furnish back shops, as past exper-lence has proven them to be a detri-ment to the craft instead of a help. We will not out any restrictions on We will not put any restrictions ou our men as to helpers, as we deem it very cesential to the trade that we have apprentices. About the same time an exactly simflar communication was submitted to the members of the Tallors' Union in Binghamton, N. Y. Since that time the merchant Tailors of Cieveland, Denver, Chicago, Parkersburg, W. Va., Stockfon, Cal., and other cities have Dien exactly the same position as hat set forth in the Kansas City let-fer, refusing to treat with Committees of the Tuilors' Unions, or to have any dealing with them as an Organized Body. Before the year 1800 they had some unions, and in the earlier years, running from 1800 to 1825, they formed probably more Local Unions on this continent than any other craft, and all through Trade Union history and development in this country the tailors have car ried their share of the burdens and, performed their part of the pioneer work of the Trade Union Movement. In every effort that has been made to consolidate the Trade Union Movement into a Federation the Tailors Br. 22, Arb. Kr. & Si have taken part, and an active one. They have been affiliated with the present American Federation of Labor since its foundation. They have never naked nasistance of a financial char-acter from the other Trade Unions of the country in all their history, but the Merchant Tailors' Protective As-sociation, backed up by the Manufacturers' Association, of which body Air. D. M. Parry is the spokesman and president, has declared that the Jour-neymen Tailors of America must and shall be destroyed, and their actions in the cities cited above show that Mr. D. M. Parry is the spokesman and they intend to destroy the Tailors' Innational Union, if that is possi ternational Union, it that is possible. Their members have been sued in the courts for damages and their property attached; injunctions have been served upon them, and arrests of pickets have been made by the score. The expenses of the organization are, therefore enormous, and they need of Organized Labor to meet if Organized Labor will respond in somewhat the same degree of liberality to assist the Tailors in their struggle that they did to assist the Anthracite Miners in theirs, the attempt to destroy their Organization

In this crusade they have met with a very great degree of success. If the struggles of any organisation are entitled to the sympathy and support of Organised Labor, surely this struggle of the Tallors for maintenance of their organization and for the abolition of the hume

"In a ninterview published in one of thedaily papers the representatives of the Employing Tailors stated that they could draw on the defense fund of the Manufacturers' Association, which was said to amount to a million and a half dollars, in order to success fully carry on their contest with the Journeymen Tailors. We feel assumed that the organized workers in the United States and Canada will respond with sufficient liberality to make it impossible, even though the fanatics who are trying to destroy the Tailors' Union expend a million and a Tailors' Union expend a million and a half, or even more."

ELECTION RETURNS COME IN SLOWLY.

Massachusetts Loses Part of Last Year's Big Gain, but New York Still Goes Forward.

Vigorous Anti-Socialist Campaign, in the Bay Stata Swings Back One-Third of our Recruits of 1902 and Defeats Carey-New York State Vote Increases at Least Thirty-five per Cent.

last Tuesday, so far as they affect the Socialist movement, but some important information which may be regarded as approximately correct, is at

It is certain that in the state of New York we have made very gratifying progress. Our state vote, when fully reported, will pretty certainly reach 30,000 and may go well above that figure. Considering that last year, after a much-hotter campaign and with the advantage of the interest in labor politios by the great coal strike, we reached only 28,400, this result indi cutes a solid growth in Socialist thought. The greater part of this gain has been made outside of Greater New York. The city, which contributed more than two-thirds of last year's vote, has made a gain of about 12 per cent, and now gives about three-fifthe of the total. The rest of the state has added from 60 to 100 per cent. to its Social Democratic vote of a year ago. The S. L. P. has "grown backwards" in earnest. In Greater New York, where the S. L. P. last year polled 9,182, it has lost at least 3,400 votes and probably much more. Nor is the loss confined to the city. With some local exceptions. De Leon's vote seems to have gone back in every part of the state, and his total will hardly pass the ten thousand mark, if it even reaches that. It is proverbial that in New York tions the Socialist movemen can make but little progress compared to that achieved in state and nationa contests. In the city election of 1807, when there was but the one party, it made but a very small gain over the vote cast in the city in 1800. In the next municipal election, that of 1901, the Social Democratic Party barely more than held the vote it had cast it 1900, while the M. L. P. went back about 20 per cent. A true comparison can be made only between city election and city election, and it is in this way that we give the figures below. Comparing the vote for the city ticket this year with that of 1901, the Social Democratic Party has made a creditable increase, while the S. L. P. has again lost. In Massachusetts the results are not so pleasing. Carey has been defer by a small plurality and MarCart-ney's old district has been lost; Rans-den has been re-elected. The vote for our state ticket has been reduced. It must be remembered that our state vote made an extraordinary jump last year, rising from about 10,000 in 1901 to over 23,800 in 1902. About one-third of the increase then made has proven to be unstable, in the face of the unexampled campaign against So-cialism directed from Washington and concentrated on the Bay State. Our returns from other states are very meager. Ohio seems to have made a good gain, following the extra ordinary increase of last year. We have gained a footbold in Rhode Island where, as in New York, the S. L. P.

the state" indicate that the vote of the Social Democratic Party is largely increased over that cast for Hauford, our candidate for Governor last year. The S. L. P. seems to have lost every-where. It seems certain that De Leon's vote is not only lower than that of his party a year ago, but less than that of the preceding election in 1000. It is as yet impossible to estimate the extent to which Matchett's vote this year will exceed that fer Hanford in 1902, but a large gain is assured. Han-ferd had 28,400, of which 16,482 was in Greater New York and 6,968 in the rest of the state. Twelve of the principal cities outside the metropolic report a total for Matchett of 7,250; the elevan counties in which these cities are nituated gave Hanford 4,638 a year ago—showing a gain of 2,616 in those cities, besides the vote cast in outly probably the enes in which our larges gains have been made, it seems well within the probabilities to say that the state outside this city has added from 4.500 to 5,600 to its vote of last year and that the total vote for our state ticket will be very nearly 30,000, if no

After Onondaga County, Eric County, which includes the Buffalo, has been the principal strong hold of the S. L. We have heard the cry in our party within the last year that we must have great leaders to conduct us to victory-leaders "flashing like meteors in the political sky," is the phrase. In proportion as Socialists have allowed themselves to accept that idea-so welcome to indolence and timidity-they have awarved from the course of policy laid out for us by our funda-

We need to have every party member careful to educate himself in the principles and the history of the movement and to keep himself informed of its present condition. Wa need to have the rank and file absointely dependent upon itself and confident in itself... We need to have every member feel his personal responsibility, feel that his work for the party and his voice and vote in the party are as important as those of any great leader and that therefore he must see to it that his work is well done and that his vote is wisely given. This is what we need and this is all that we lack, to equip us for a campaign in 1904 whose results shall far sound Socialist education in our own outshine those of 1902.

THE SOCIALIST VOTE.

The Socialist Party (the Social Democratic Party of New Torks has peased through its accond general election. Its growing power is indicated and its speedy victory for-shadowed by the great increase of its vote as shown in these Squrea;

the decrease of the Socialist rote in Mussachusetts, but have not a work to say about our gain in New York, and that the New-York papers votes, but only one reports the eighteen thousand cast by the Social Democratic Tarty in the city.

One lesson the honest followers of Daniel De Leon may learn from this election, if they do not wilfully abut their eyes and cover their cars to keep out the truth. This is the lesson: For a little while, mud slinging may seem to succeed; but in the long run, the mud-stinger himself gets so bedaubed with slime that decent men must hold their noses at his approach.

THE PYLE CASE.

The correspondence on the Pyle case in Toledo, which we print elsewhere, wrely calls for little comment. Had 'n our hands two weeks ago, we hould have expressed ourselves auch more forcibly.

Ar. Pyle's second letter-to say thing of the information given inthe other statements-makes it very plain, either that he is morally unhe has not and never had a right understanding of the principles that Socialist tactics. His cool suggestion of going to the courts for a mandames or injunction against the marty to reinstate him in party membership after his defiant violation of party discipline is enough to remove any doubt that may have been enterned of the wisdom of Local Toledo in getting rid of bim as a party mem ber and in resenting any attempt to force his reinstatement. To our mind. the only mistake the Toledo committee conting his resignation instead of expelling him.

party discipline must be subordinated to the provisions, of statutory law shows that he unterly falls to under stand the difference between th nature of the Socialist Party and that of any other party. Our organization is more than a political party. It is a revolutionary party. Its alm is to overtimew the class that now domiwater the state and in whose interest the laws and institutions of the state are davised. We have not, and should not pretend to have, any respect for the so-called "sametity of the law." We bow to the law and use the political methods prevailing under the capi- with proper socouragement from the tallst state only because, and in so far the laterests of the movement for the emuncipation of the working class talist politicians make a law restrain-

THE SOCIALIST PRIMARY SCHOOL.

Writing on the eve of election, we offer a suggestion for the considera tion of the comrades-not a new idea, perhaps, but worthy of attention.

During the last mouth or more this office has been in daily receipt of letters-not to mention those of the same sort that have come to the New York State Secretary and the Campaign Secretary of Greater New York-lettera from all over Connecticut, Rhode Island, and New Jersey, part of Maseachusetts, and all the neighboring portion of the state of New York, begging us to supply speakers for some mnortant meetings in the various ocalities whence the letters came, Almost without exception, we have had to answer that we did not know where speakers-could be had, that the various districts of this city were themselves clamoring for more speakers than it was possible for the Campalgn Committee to provide.

We may cite in detail one of these instances, because the outcome just papers regularly and carefully. But illustrates the point we have to make. The New Haven compades wrote very urgently for a New York speaker to tain evening in each week, for thought meet in public discussion a local ful and purpoweful reading of some preacher-politician of some note. All our speakers were engaged and the request had to be denied. The discussion came off and the result was indicated in a letter from Comrade White, Utopian and Scientife," "Bebel's who wrote, in effect: "I am rather glad you could not send us a speaker. If you had done so, our local comrades of Society," Piechanoff's "Anarchism would have left it to him and would and Socialism," or such other books not themselves have come to the front. as Draper's "Intellectual Develop-As it was, they maintained the So- ment" or Wallace's "Darwiniam" or cialist side of the discussion most the scientific essays of Huxley and effectively and the whole meeting was entirely satisfactory." It i sonly in this way that the grow

born, not made." But it is not true of Socialist propagandists and campaigners. And we need to make a great many of them during the next in a year by one evening a week of nine or ten months. Next November he it remembered, we have general circtions-presidential, congressional, large way-from the party's need of state, legislative, and local, all over the land. The interest in Socialism is red-hot by next August. In every city is essential. The work of the party is where we have an organization now | not merely to get votes, but to educate we shall be compelled to hold more the working class. To do that we meetings than ever before. Trade need a corps of men-not only of pubunions that would throw our com munications into the waste-basket our ideas in their daily conversation unread in 1900 have been ready to give with neighbors and shopmates-who our speakers a courteous hearing this have digested and assimilated as much year and will insist on having them as possible of the acquired knowledge next year. Villages where we have two or three isolated voters now will trained themselves to use these stores have local organizations by that time of thought independently and intellielder locals in the neighborhood to send someone to explain the principles of Socialism there. And this demand must be met.

it will not do to depend upon pro fessional speakers, on those who give their whole time to such work. These are good. The more of them we have the better. The party should keep on the well-advertised hypnotic powers of the road an many of such speakers as it can get and can maintain without neglecting other work. But if we do pend upon their services we shall fall far short of improving the opportunities presented to us. No matter how many regular travelling organizers and speakers the National Committee and the various state committees may succeed in putting in the field, our great dependence must still be apon those comrades who, working at the repectives trades, give occasional evenings, with only their expenses paid by the party, to speak on the tracts or elsewhere in their own towns and vicinity. a good or even a pensable speaks however such pains he may take Not every man; but it is safe to my that, wherever we have ten men enrolled in the party organization, ther will be two or three among them who by proper effort on their own part and othern, can soon train and equip them salves to get up on the street-corne or before any ordinary undience on any ordinary occasion stal explain the from capitalist rule. When the capi- purposes and methods of our party and the reasons who worken should support it is a manual that will command their hearers' confidence and respect. Especially in those smaller or mor

recently organized places where our greatest gains have to be made and our hardest work has got to be done, And if the law attempts to force us it is important that the comrades should at once bethink themselves of this matter. Here we have in some town or small city a local of ten or twenty members, none of whom now considers himself competent to address a public meeting for the party. but all of whom realise that some of them must learn to do it between now and next campaign. What shall they do? We suggest a plan which, with what modifications may be needful, will, experience tells us, have the desired effect:

Let the local at once decide to hold discussion meetings monthly or of tener, all through the year, either quite apart from their business meetings or after the business has been transacted. To these discussion meetings it is as well that each should be allowed or expected to invite one or two friends. Let the subject for each eeting be decided upon at least a fortnight in advance and one of the comrades chosen to speak upon it; and let it be expected, not only that he prepare himself to speak, but that all the members prepare themselves to take part in the discussion following his address. Let the comrades criticise each other's speeches freely and re spectfully, both in regard to matter and to manner, and accept criticism as rendily. Thus the local, besides be ing an organization for the propaganda of Socialism, will become a school for the self-education of its members-for teaching them, not only how to speak, but what to speak. For this purpose it is, of cours necessary that they shall read. It is necessary to read the daily naperspartly, say one column out of ten of the stuff they print; the rest can be passed over without much loss. It is necessary to read one or two party aside from this, every comrade should set apart some time, he it only one corworks of permahent value-not of our propaganda pamphlets, but rather of such Socialist books as the "Commun-"Woman." Vandervelde's "Collectivism," Loria's "Economic Foundations Tyndail and Grant Allen or Gibbins' "Industrial History of England" ornot to spin out the list too much-othe standard works of history and physical developing speakers from the rank and or social science, varied with such file. It may be true that "Poets are fiction or poetry as is of real lasting value. Any man who has not yet made the experiment will be astonished to find how much be can learn honest and earnest reading.

We may seem to have wandered more speakers to the comrades' need of solid reading-but, truly we have increasing all the time, and it will be not wandered at all. The connection lic speakers, but of men to propagate and thought of the past and have too bud that it should be neces urge this. But at the present stage in the development, when some comrades are telling us that "The whole of 80 cialism can be written on a posta card" (Or is it a pestage stamps), and others would set aside all theory and history and science and depend upon brilliant rhetoricians and elocutionists, and others, in reply, insist that say workingman's '"horse' sense" and awakened class instinct is sufficient, without study or training, to qualify him as a propangandist, it is necessary to point out that, important as it is to increase the number of our spokes nen, it is still more important to maintain or improve their quality.

> If we had to choose between "hor ense" and working-class instinct on the one hand and learning or oratorical power on the other, certainly we should choose the former. But we do not. We need all these qualities in one speakers, whether "regulars" or volunteers, and we need all the knowl edge possible even in the silent rank and file whose duty it is to choose and direct and control the speakers. The greatest of editors once said that a reporter who knew Greek and Old Norm could write up a dog-tight or a politi cal convention the better for that knowledge. In the same way, of two men who have Mund in class-concrine who has sindled the most of history and physical science and economies the one who has studied some of the things enough actually, to have much it his own, so that the phrases of the book do not cosie from his mouth but the facts and ideas from the book are from his own experience—that on will make much the better Socialist speech in a miss meeting of strikers or on the street corner suct before

Without at all finding fault with the speakers we new-have, of national or only of local repute, without belittling the service of our few trained orators or of the humblest of the many comrades who knowing their limitations, yet get on the platform and do the best they can and often make up in modest devotion for what they lack in other qualifications, we do urge that the Socialist primary school side of our organization be more attended te, that we de more to develop good speakers from the rank and file, even though that should—as it probably will not-involve the giving of less atten tion to the work of our "great men."

To sum up: livery local, however small, will need speakers during this coming year; for the most part, this demand must be met by the development of local talent; in doing this, we must do all in our power to ensure not only that these speakers are able to state Socialist conclusions intelligibly and forcibly, but that they know the ressons for those conclusions, that they have a reserve-fund of knowledge and thought back of the words they utter.

or of The Worker:-The approaching convention of the American Federation of Labor makes it timely to call attention to the subject of the Oriental peoples who come he competition with us on the Pacific Coast.

For many reasons the Japanese are preferred to white men or even to Chinese. In the first place, they have no votes. In the second place, they are cool headed and quick to learn and, the capitalists think, would make good moldiers, la caue of classe strife, to defend the employers' prefits. Finally, of course, they do more work for less wages than will the white workers.

However, I believe them to be classconscious and not desirous of lowering labor conditions here to the level prevalling in Japan. A few mouths ago they organized a union and applied to the American Federation for a charter, and they were turned down. This is wrong. It is against the interests. of the American workingman.

This is a problem of as much importance as the organization of the negroes in the Southern States. It is a subject the dalegates in the Federation convention should take up and bring to an issue. GEO. D. VAN PELT.

"There's no more lying awake nights wondering if I am going to lose my job. There's as more working for seventy-five cents and a dellar a day and living en ten-cent lunches. I'm through with it. I have the papers all ready to have my body cremated. When I'm dead, Ldon't want one word I don't want one song. I don't want one prayer. I don't want one flower. The north of France has been the acene of very big strikes in the taxtile trade—a strike embracing almost the whole of the industrial towns in the ecupied the factories, while the offioccupied the factories, wants the su-cers fraterasised openly with the em-pleyers, using every opportunity to turn the troops against the strikers. On the other hand, the Socialist Mayor of Lille, G. Delory, refused to allow the quartering of troops sent by the nest during the strike on the ground that they were not required, as the town was perfectly orderly, and hence could only art as provocation. The Mayor in question is one of the best-known members of the Anti-Ministerialist Socialist Party. The at-titude of the central government only proves anew what a lie the theory of equality mader, or before the law is even with a republican form, under class rule and capitalistic production.

Why is fact cold? Why do people of fact as cold? I think the great facts are hot. They sere and burn. The greatest fact is the sun. But for the sun all your other facts would go out. The sun is hot. The sun is sentiment. You want Bockefeller and cold fact. That is where you go wrong. When you get Rockefeller you get cold fact. But you get the kind of fact you do not like. The cold fact is with Bockefeller. The cold fact is a fact that is only fact. But a wasm fact is a fact with sentiment idded. Your fact alone is what makes Rockefeller. Your fact plus sentiment is what will abolish Rockefeller. I do not propose to take you at your

Just for food's sake, or shelter's, or clothing's or leisure's? No. No. No. Because it will give your life a little margin. Because it will give you a little time in which to book around and see things. Because it will make the things you see when you look around more pleasant to look at. Because it will give your mind a little more room for thinking in. Because it will give your heart a little more room for loving in. You think a redajustment of the economic situation would make you free. Why do you want to be free? Is freedom a cold fact? Or is freedom a hot sentiment? Do you want to be free because? Or do you want to be free because freedom is opportunity? Because freedom opens more doors and vindows? Because freedom gives you a chance to live? You want to live. You say to me every day you want to live. Of course you do. And until you get a chance to live all the worlds live. will jar each other. But what do you call living? Is a big meal the start and finale of life? Is a warm coat life? Is a hot fire life? These are not life. They are the way to life. Without these the way to life is barred. With them some of the bars are taken down. Life is ahead of all gur creature satisfactions. It is life that you hunger and thirst and suffer for. If is that beyond that you are determined to reach. That beyond. That beyond of sentiment. Am I wrong? Examine yourself. Cross examine. I know you better than you know yourself. I, too, can give you kookefeller.

But my Rockefeller would not be cold. He would be hot. He would fiame with aymnathy. He would blaze with indignation. Build your fires Belief high you could not tip the flame of my Rockefeller. I do not present you Rockefeller iceberg. I present you Rockefeller furnace. When I want to talk to you of Rockefeller I do not take you to cold storage. I build you a fire. THE NEW YORK CENTRAL'S SOUL.

For an example and illustration, purported to be a release for damages out of the soulless character of a alread corporation, but of its intense pronounced a forgery by a handwritnot of the soulless character of a railroad corporation, but of its intense oulness of character, and of the most deprayed kind, one has but to read of the trial at Home, N. Y., of a suit for damages by a widow whose husband of cour had been killed in a railroad accident by the while employed by the Union News Company. He lived with his wife in Utics, N. Y., and traveled on the Adirondack division of the New York Central. He lost his life last May. It was a plain case against the railroad, against whom suit was brought; and, as usual with such cases "up the state," with grangers on the jury, it was a foregone conclusion that a ver-dict would be rendered for the plain-Not extinted with defending the case on its merits, the attorneys for the railroad resorted to tricks and introduced evidence (readily admitted by a politico-capatalistic judge) which only the most depraved and unprincipled members of society would resort to—such as we would naturally expect only of bums and shysters. It appears that the husband lived a double life, unknown to his wife, and had kept a mistress at the other end of his route. This fact the lawyers for the railroad dug up. They brought the prostitute to court and introduced her shameful evidence in their mad efforts to prevent the legal wife of the deceased from obtaining a verdict. This was the first piece of dastardly

WOMAN'S WORK IN THE SOCIALIST MOVEMENT.

By Annie Schneyer.

I have often wondered why women are not attracted in greater number our great Socialist movement. And cialists at heart, somehow stay awa; from the practical work of the party. have always thought that this was only in our sleepy Philadelphia, but I have intely seen that also in New York, in that boiling whiripool of life where all bubbles with activity—even there, I am sorry to say, it is almost as bad. I was present at the city convention is Brooklyn the Fourth of July, and I was actually altowished not to see one woman among so many delegates. It not a quite deplorable fact?

It seems to me that our own com rades, our more fortunate brothers who are at the head of the movement do not realize the great importance o woman's work in the movement Whether it is because she cannot vote or because of mere carelessness, they do not make any attempt to get at least those few women who are good Socialists already to help them in their Socialist work. There are many who are eager and willing and able to ntribute their share, and are ready to do anything, to help along the cause, but they do not get that welcome, that warm encouragment, which new re-cruits need. It seems as though even among our comrades there is still the prevailing idea that women are fit for nothing but sweeping and cleaning and washing and scrubbing, and so forth. It is too had that none of this forth. It is too had that none of this work is required in the Socialist movement, clse they would perhaps be for tunate enough to find some place listed.

It is too had that none of this year and the required in the Socialist movement, and admiration be has for the fair sex, he is of the opinion that women, and three!

And this was the sentimen of one who is supposed to be a good Socialist, a young, ardent enthusiast rights and liberty for all! to say it aloud. I say we need more comradeship between the sexes in our Socialist movement. Just go into any Socialist or-ganization and you will always see nen and women sequented; in one corner you will notice a group of men, our worthy intellectuals, discussing among themselves various scientific topics, in another corner a group of women sitting and buring each other. You may sometimes see a brave soul departing from her sister-group and sonring up to the higher spheres of our great sages, to learn some wisdom; but she is always met with a cold, dig.

All this is performed with great diguity.

It is too and to laugh, and too con comptible to cry. Open your eyes, my comrades, and you shall find this bittruth staring you straight in the cause of woman's staying away from the movement. I am a member of a branch having membership of more than fifty, and there are only five women members, and these are not a bit active, when there is so much to be done, when the least little help of anybody counts. Many of them are so situated that they have more time than men to work for the Socialist Party, which is the only way to belp along the cause. They are ready to give something more than their mere sympathy, they are willing to give themselves, and join hands with their brother comrades and work in perfect fellowship for the realization of So cialism; but they meet the cold, in ists and they shrink back with bitter feeling, plunging still deeper into that narrow alough of empty, purposeless

I am not a bit surprised that some of them try to organize themselves into separate organizations, impracti-cable as it undoubtedly in This point, by the way, is worthy of quite serious consideration. Is it advisable to form separate branches for women? I say positively not. And we make a great mistake by encouraging them to do it.

We Socialists are to prove that men and women can work harmoniously together for the same common cause, being of good cheer and mutual aid to each other on the vast battlefield of industrial strife. Instead of dividing and splitting our forces, is it not better and wiser to combine and unite? In-stead of helping them to form separate organizations, is it not advisable to

She suf fers just as much, if not more, from the evils of our present system. Those the evils of our present system. Those that are not with us may turn against us, may form a conservative, reactionary element and become an absolute hindrance to our cause. In the field of propagands, I believe women can have a stronger inducance. It is quite common to hear may propagate his ideas, but it is very unusual to hear woman prochim has ideas publicly. woman proclaim her ideas publicly; for the very novelty woman will be sooner listened to. My position has been that the So cialist by-laws regarding the three po-sitions named by the regulation was without force in Toledo, but was operative outside of the confines described braska comrades have seen fit to state' their case clearly, it should, in my judgment, be acted upon along the by the law; that the acceptance of such position could not be lawfully questioned by the party organisation, and that it was unlawful to attempt to discipline the member. I recognize that there is nothing mandatory in the law compelling the member to accept but the mandate is against the party machinery in any way interfering with the non-political operation of the law. I realize that the Socialist Party is in the makign in the United States and that many of these questions will arise which will have to be legally construed; that the arty machinery is not the proper body to pass upon mat-ters of law in which the functions of the state are brought into question The question which I have submitted led to my resignation from Local To-ledo, because the comrades could not. see that it was a question of uphoiding the laws of the state, in which the party needs as much discipline as the members do in violating party regulations. I, at the time, was contend ing against more than one man's share of sickness and was unable to give this question the attention it needed. I cared nothing about the position en the University Board, as it involved a lot of work without remuneration: but I did care to make the question as object lessen to miaguided enthusiasis for party discipline. Of course, my course has not been pleasant, for it hats contention, but I felt that it was too good an opportunity to lose, to bring our members to see some things outside of party disciplina.

H. STATEMENT FROM LOCAL

TOLEDO. Editor of The Worker:-The following statement was authorized by Local Toledo to-day and ordered sent to you, with a request for publication. The editorial "May He Accept?" containeditorial "May He Accept? containing a letter from Dr. John S. Pyle and referring to him as a member of Local Toledo (we desire your authority for this ser, timent, as his resignation from the party dated June 10 was accepted), refers to the action of Local Teledo, and we therefore make the following. and we therefore make the following statement of our position and action in the matter:

Dr. John S. Pyle's application was accepted Feb. 25, 1902. The following fall he was nominated for Congress by Local Toledo and ran. The first intimation Local Toledo, Branch 1, or the membership had of his connection with the University Board was a news item in the daily papers stating that Dr. John S. Pyle had been appointed one of the trustees by Mayor S. M. Jones ("Golden Rule" Jones). Several comrades saw Dr. Pyle (I re-National Secretary will not call for a definite vote of the National Committee upon Comrade Critchlow's request cause he has withdrawn from the party), and took exception to his course. It was agreed by Dr. Pyle and the comrades that it was an important matter, and it was agreed to by Dr. Pyle that Comrade Stanton prefet charges against Dr. Pyle to test the matter. It was further agreed by them that in any event the case should be appealed, so that there could be a dum vote of the party in this state on the case. But Branch 1 re-fused to cite Dr. Pyle to appear and answer to the charges preferred.

Dr. Pyle then sent in his resignation from the party by Comrade Stanton.

Before Comrade Stanton had an opportunity of presenting the resigna-tion, Dr. Pyle requested Comrade Stanton to withhold the resignation for the time being. Dr. Pyle then had an interview with Comrades Martin and Keogh, and threatened to institute court proceedings restraining us if we tried to expel him. Comrade Stanton then presented Dr. Pyle's resignation and reported his threat to the party, which immediately accepted his resig-

That there is no such thing as a non-political office, that is, one in which the class struggle can be ignored. An "office" is distinct from mere employment, and sometimes even mere employment, and sometimes a snare to the movement. We recognise in our constitution one exception—a Socialist may accept an appointment secured through a commettive examination.

Dr. Pyle himself used the argument that it would be a good thing to knye a Socialist on the board. If he ac cepted this view, he accepted the of-fice as a Socialist, and he should have laid the matter before the comrades to 1. Whether they desired to have Socialist appointed. How would the German comrades regard one of their members becoming Vice-Frasideant of the Reichning without their considering it, if that were possible?

2. Whether he personally was acceptable to them.

2. Whether he personally avail at-ceptable to them.

If it was the desire of the committee that he accept, he should then have signed the ascell resignation and have considered himself under the jurisdic-tion of the party the same as any other Socialist office-holder.

If he did not consider it a publical office, he should nevertheless have collited discussion of such arose, and should have been willing to ablde by the decision of the party. Instead, he and threatened to invoke the aid of the courts haninst the organization.

Local Toledo would have appeared in the light of a lawless body, a kind of anarchist organization, for what judge would recognize the class struggle? We have had enough of injunctions. In view of the assistance he proposed to invoke, Local Toledo felt compelled to accept his resignation as the best way to dispose of a member who would prefer capitalistic court rule to that of the Socialist Party.

Since then we have had no communi-ation with Dr. Pyle, and we considered the case closed. Consequently we were surprised at receiving a communication some months after, dated Rept. 21, from State Secretary Critch-low, to one of the comrades, asking full particulars in the Pyle matter. Comrade Stanton, to whom the com-munication was addressed, replied that the incident was closed by the acceptance of .lr., Pyle's resignation, and only to be re-opened by Dr. Pyle again applying for admission to Lord! Toledo. We are surprised that the the party responsible to us, not us to him. This is our authority for recent-ly requesting a mancial statement. ering certain important matters. sirous of making us accountable to him. Besides, his communication was not addressed to Local Toledo. This not addressed to Local Toledo. This is our stand: Résponsibility can safely be assumed by a local for its acts until such acts can be regularly and legally

It may seem to the canual reader that we have jumbled up the Pyle matter, our demand for a financial statement from State Secretary Critchlow, and a question of party principle. We are compelled to do this by the action of State Secretary Critchlow in referring Comrade Stanton's refusal to discuss the Prio matter and our demand for a financial statement to the State Committee. Dr. Pyle's letter neresitates an immediate public state ment of our position in the party press in the Pyle matter as far as Dr. Pyle's relation to the party is concerned. The important question of party principle which it has indirectly given rise to and in which our demand for a financial statement is involved, is the reaon for existence of the rest of the

> IV. LETTER FROM COMRADE MARTIN.

Editor of The Worker:-Reading the article "May He Accept?" in your issue of Oct. 18, I believe it calls for something from ma. I will try to make the situation as clear as possible.

Up to the last of August I have been out all summer canvassing in the oil field. One evening in June last, in reading the Toledo "News," I ran Jones had appointed Dr. John S. Pyle a member of the Board of Trustees of a member of the Bosto of Having pro-the Toledo University. Having pro-posed Dr. Pyle as a member of Branch 1 of Local Toledo, I felt interested, THE RAILWAY iowing letter:

That it should come from the Mayor is s'm-ply an incident. • • • The Mayor has been so kind and solicitous during Nora's lilness that I desire to honor him if I can do so without breaking my party pleases. • • • I am a strong advocate of Sec. 8, Art. XIII. as applied to party management, but it must stop here and not be forced to reach private conduct."

This letter was followed by six

Socialist. For instance:

"Now that the mayor appoints, it is out duty to accept the appelintments in the spirit of the statutory law that they are non-political. For Socialists to take any other stand and refuse to serve is a refusal to respect the law."

Let it be underwood that there was nothing mandatory about the Doctor's acceptance. He would have widnated no law in declining the appointment. Under date of June 11 he wrote me a letter in which he said: letter in which he said:

To hear an apointee of the Mayor strain for observance of statuory law as did the Doctor sounded funny, for

His wife being seriously ill, this was thought to be the best course to pursue, because it could do the Doctor no harm, and if there was a scheme to cubroil the local movement in a law-suit, as seemed from all the circumstances to be the case, it would put it up in the air. The Doctor did not up in the air. The Doctor did not withdraw his resignation. Now, for some reason, he does not seem satisfied, indicating that he did not want his resignation accepted. To the Editor of The Worker: Dear Comrade: Permit me to use ome of the valuable space of The Worker for the purpose of imparting some information to the comrades and others on a subject which, although of little importance in itself, has acquired great prominence and interest by reason of the conduct, or, rather, misconduct, of the De Leon crew, with reference to it. I refer to the injunction against striking members of the Ladies' Waist Makern' Union, which i am supposed to have obtained or sided somehody in obtaining, according to the tale which De Leon has been telling to the renders of his "Daily People." The facts are these: I have my law office together with the firm of Pollock & Abrahams, and another lawyer. I have absolutely no business connection with the firm of Poliock & Abrahams except that of office assoclation. The injunction in question was obtained for one Rothman by Mr. Paul M. Abrahams, who is a membe of the firm of Pollock & Abrahama By the way, the injunction was NOT against strikers, as De Leon says, but lutely nothing to do with it, even in otest way. In fact, I did not know of its existence until some time after it had been obtained. I have never had any business with Mr. Hothsann, and have not even a bowing acquaintance with him. My came to be be mixed up in this ess in this way: A lawyer, if he hap pens to be also a notary, cannot take any acknowledgments or affidavits in in which he is the attorney; so that lawyers have to exchange ser-vices as to acknowledgments of papers In this way I usually acknowle papers in Mesers. Pollock & Abra cases, and Mr. Abrahams, who acknowledgments in my In this case, somebody in the office of Pollock & Abrahams, by force of habit, I suppose, put my name dow on the copies as notary without look-ing at the originals to see whether the ical, to witness the genuineness of signature of the person who subs paper. A notary has absolutely noth ing to do with the case itself, and usu-ally does not know the first thing The fact that my name ap peared on the papers, as notary, how ever, sufficed for Mr. De Leon to ac tune me of having obtained or aided in btaining an injunction against strik ited to the intelligence of mry has to do with the obtaining in injunction, and did not think even worth while to call attention to the fact that in reality I have not ted as notary in the matter. I was told that De Leon wrote a number of articles about me and the injunction, but I had made up my mind not pay any attention to this than to his reason already stated, and for the additional reason that in all such discussions with the Professor we are at disadvantage, as he has the use of daily paper and the wealth of his imagination to draw upon, whereas we have only a weekly paper and the six ple, unaderned truth at our command

Something has happened, however, which made me change my mind. This injunction business has been ed in this campaign so extensively and in such a manner that it has ceased to be a personal affair of my own and has become the concern of the party. Besides the latest develop-ments of this "affair" are so illuminating as to the way in which De Leo gets his "facts" wherewith he feeds his dupes, in order that they may see the "difference," that it is already orth while to give it some attention Last Sunday there appeared in the Daily Liar" a front-page, triple-column article, with flaming head-line and photographic facsimile illustrations of my handwriting and other documentary" evidence, proving that I was guilty of "complicity with capi-talist persecution of striking waist-makers." This article was expected to create a sensation and was extensively used as campaign material, particularly in the 13th Judicial District, where I was the party's candidate for Municipal Court Justice. I am sure that many a comrade must have rubbed his eyes at the sight of these remarkable "proofs," and, while not believing De Leon, must have wondered what really happened. Here is what happened: Last Thursday night I was in a cafe on East Broadway discussing the question as to what a Socialist judge of the Municipal Court could do, when in came a gang of youngsters, and on-of them shoved in front of me a circular which he had been distributing I looked at the circular and saw the it was a S. L. P. "document" on the "injunction affair." and accused me of premed to be the leader of the gang who he was, and he answered the

It did not take long before I informed him that the statements in his circulars were a pack of ites, and offered to bet him any amount of mone ten to one to back up my assertion: He at first accepted the bet, and amat torney named Bernard Guinabers was present, agreed to act as stakeholder. But when the fellow say that I was quite in carnest he backed out, pleading that the circular was not "authoritative," and that he was of bound to back up statements whi appear "authoritatively" in "Daily People." I then related those who seemed to be interested it the matter the real facts in the case and challenged him to prove the hor esty of the "Daily People" by with-drawing the statements it made, now that he is informed that I never sign-ed a paper in the case. He then stated "Daily Propie" so stated.

there was no doubt that I signed those mpers. I repeated my offer giving him the same odds of ten to one, that even the notarial signature on the paper was not in my handwrit-ing. This wager he finally accepted. By this time, however, Mr. Geinsburg and the other attorney had gone away disgusted with the way this fel-low Jager was acting, refusing to take any part in this wager or have any thing to do with this fellow. At this juncture a young fellow who was in the crowd offered his services to write down the terms of the bet and to act an stakeney out of this youngster, with offices at 116 Namau street, in order to lend some dignity to his so-called "decision." This, however, as everything else that appears in the "Daily Liar," is pure imagination. I did not know who he was, but I did not have much to choose from, and, besides, I did not really care, as the duties of a stake holder could be performed by any-body, and I was willing to take the risk of the stakeholders running away with my ten dollars than losing a chance of nailing a lie against the party. I drew my check for ten dol-lars and gave it to the stakeholder, and Jager gave a dollar in cash. It was then agreed that this stakeholder Nathan Tolk, should come to my of-fice at 3.p. m. the next day, when we would go down to the County Clerk's office to see the papers in question. In order, however, that the other side should have a chance to compare my signature to the one in the so-call "injunction paper" (in reality it is a mere undertaking given as security by the party who obtained the injution), I gave them five samples of my signature. No referee was chosen at the time, it being at the time undispute as to the handwriting, an expert would, of course, have to be called in, although I stated that I did not think there would be any necessity for an expert, as any one could see that it was not my signature. The next day Tolk did not put in appearance. I was quite surprised at this, but thought- that it was quite likely that the other side were now convinced of the futility of their efforts to fasten on me that signature and gave up the fight. Imagine my surprise upon coming home to hear that all of East Broadway was agog over the bet that I "lost," that the check had been turned over to Jager by Tolk and was being photographed. etc., etc. I was just about going out to look for this fellow Tolk when he made his appearance. I asked what it all meant, where he got the authority to decide, and how he happened to turn over the check witnout even seeing or calling at my office, as was agreed. To all this I received no satisfactory answer, except that be "thought" he had a right to decide; and "thought" that it was not neces sary to call at my office as agreed, and "thought" it really was my signature, and therefore "thought" it proper to turn over the check to Jugar at 11 o'clock in the morning without waiting for the appointed time, and that if he "thought" wrong he would go over to Jager and get the check back, but that I would oblige him by "stopping" the check at the bank, so as to relieve him of the necessity of getting it back. I told the fellow that he must go out and get the check back without fur ther talk, and also see to it that all wrongful use of it is stopped, or I would deal with him as he deserved. He left, promising to do all that I required of him, but I have not see busy, but in the evening I sent over to Dr. Toueph Levitch, the S. L. P. candidate for Assembly in the Fourth Assembly District, asking him to call at my house, which he did. I explained to him the situation, and appealed to his bonor as a gentleman to prevent the "Daily People" from adding an other outrage to its multitude of sins. He promised to do all he could, and left, to return in about fifteen minutes to tell me that he telephoned to De Leon in Rhode Island somewhere, Kuhn not being in the office, and that the man in charge could not do anything without instruction from his superiors. Dr. Levitch expressed his regret that he was informed so late, and told me that he had left word to be called up by the "Daily People" effice as soon as Kuhn would come there, and again assured me that he would do everything in his power to stop the publication of any further lies about this matter. I have not seen Dr. Levitch since, but it seems that be was powerless to do anything, as the "Daily Liar" appeared the next day in truly great trim. It is, perhaps, worth while calling attention here to the fact that while they photographed everything, including Jager's signa-ture on the back of the check, they did not think it worth while to publish a photograph of the signature on the so-called injunction paper, so that their readers might be able to judge for themselves as to the similarity of the signatures and not have to depend wholly on the "decision" of Nathan Tolk.

I now felt, more than at any other time, the absence of the "Daily-Glob in order, however, to nall the lie some way, I adopted a course which, atthough slow, will do it effectually. I immediately brought suit against Tolk and Jager in the Municipal Court for the eleven dollars deposited with Tolk on the bel, claiming them by rea-son of my winning the bet, so as to establish by a decision of a court that I won the bet—that is to say, that the I won the but—that is to say, that the signature on the injunction paper is not mine. In order, however, that those who are interested to know the truth may not have to wait until the case comes up in court and is decided by the indge. I have made a sworn that the signature in question is not mine, so that in case, my assertion is not true I would be committing perjury, and I do hereby challenge De Leon to proaccute me for forgary if he still claims that that signature is nine, and that the statements of the "Daily People" in its Sunday edition

Capitalist Anarchitts and Profeteri Anarchists Combine Forces to Fight the Socialists.

Barre, Vt., the scene of the recent fatal encounter between Italian anar-chists and Socialists, is a small, thrifty town, and the centre of the granite industry of Vermont.

About ten thousand sons of Italy About the industric sour or transplants, made that right their temporary or permanent home, and are all working, at fairly good wages, as stone cutters, ornamentists and sculptors, in the senantic business for Some, are in the granite business for themselves, and a few ran retail stores in the city, liquor shops included.

Those who hall from the provinced of Lombardy of Fiedmont are either Socialists or sympathisers; while those that come from the white cragged mountains of Carrara are all Anarch ists, or ju armostby with Anarchism From the very beginning, these two antagonistic elements found themselves at odds. Gradually the line vere drawn sharper and sharper, until two small contesting armies emerged out of the Bling Ithlian mettlement.

At first the fight was limited to the retical discussions and to a campaign of obstruction against the sureading of Socialism, 'Whenever there was cialist meeting the Anarchists wou go there en masse to interrupt and disturb the speaker, always engaging in fullis and interminable debate after the lecture was over.

The Socialists bore all this patiently, never using anything but reason and persuasion in their debates with the

About three years ago the Socialists, out of their hard-earned savings, built a block, valued at about $8,000, and started a co-operative store. This enon the part of the Amerchists, and the fend between the two contestants became worse and worse.

The Anafehlots began to call the block "The Socialist Church" and the Socialists "priests and speculators." At the meetings in the Socialist hall they would insult the speakers, calling them spice and traitors. This contin-uous and vicious persistency of the Aparchists in disturbing the Socialist meetings went to such an extrem-tian the Socialism, in order to avok all possible trouble, thought best no to hold any meetings at all.

This did not satisfy the Anarchists They wanted to drive the Socialist out of Barre and bankrupt the Social-ist Block. In this wicked and mati-cious work they found a natural ally in the middle class store keepers and saloon keepers of the city. The Socialist co-operative store was selling the highest grade of goods much cheaper than the would-be capitalists of the little store were selling the cheapes grade. The co-operative store must go. die-class store, keepers said.

A campaign of slander and pers tion was entered into by the Anat chists. They had recourse to all means ing the Socialist section. The Bocialists, however, held on, and their mem-bership increased rather than diminpaper came out, and this was another cause of increased bitterness on the part of the Auarchists.

In the meantime the municipal elections were coming on. The soundness of the Marxian theory, that "every economic struggle is of secessity a po-litical struggle," was plainly demon-strated. The Republicans sought the aid of the Anarchists to defeat the Soarchists who would have every An-archists who would have every Socialist hanged for believing in political ac-tino, gave their vote to the Republican party and actually elected one of their sympathizers, Mr. Albiaetti, as aiderman. As a result of their action, our candidate for Mayor, Comrade Hal-

The sympathetic bonds between the Anarchists and nuddle class capitalists were then strengthened. This explains why, in Barne, after the tragedy of Oct. 8, public sentiment balanced in favor of the Anarchists. Although ver, Colorado. three Anarchists were arrested on grave charges, the same shop-keepers who fought the Socialists voluntarily turnished bonds to the amount of

Personally, I think that the cla between Socialist and Anarchist was fomented by this anrachistic element of the middle class. There was a con-spiracy on foot to do something to drive the Socialists away from Barse. The storekeepers wanted to crush the co-operative store and the Anarchists to de away with Serrati, who was exto de away with serrat, who was ex-posing their actions in the Socialist paper. The biker's bey, who went around that day delivering bread, heard some one in the bouse of Elia Corti (the Anarchist who was abot, say: "We will lick all the Socialists and put Serrati out of the way."

The slowe first have demonstrated these two things: First, that there is no affinity whatever between the Bottillits and the Anarol. 17. Second, that the capitalist class-and-the-pell and will befriend and mee the Anar mists in their fight against Sc SILVIO ORIGO.

The invasion of the hill States, by the Socialist propaganda has raised a guestion of some moment, which has been brought to the attention of the National Committee by the following correspondence, bearing on the application of the Louisiana comrades for a state charter:

rmation from you regarding put lished reports stating that the convertion had passed resolutions discriminating against the colored race. O oking over the report, the only thing I can see bearing upon the race question is the resolution on page 8, under the heading of 'Socialist Platform,' ninth clause, as follows: "The sepa-

"Again, the whites here are virtu ally the only voters. On them will rest the brunt of the battle, and we thought it only fair that, since they must make and win the fight, they should have control of the party's des-tinies, for the time being at least. To follow any other course will be to commit pelitical suicids. Here in the south we have to deal with both race naciousness and class consciousness but we will unite both races in the So cialist Party and win out if not in terfered with. Among the many faithful street corner speakers in this campaign Com-rade Edelstein, an East Side cigar maker, made a special impression by the marked merit of his lively and effective agitation speeches. The campaign in the 8th A. D., where Comrade Panken was candidate for the Assembly, was marked by the extreme of that excitable and volatile enthusiasm so characteristic of the Jewish population on the lower East Side, where thousands are Socialists, but many cannot vote. Our speakers were followed by thousands of eager listeners and the campaign was replete with exciting, picturesque and amusing incidents. One evening the interference of Tunnany toughs brought on a riot so large that the police reserves mass meeting was afterwards held to protest against their vigorous clubbing. Upon another occasion the streets about the police station were blocked by an enormous crowd, who were wrought up to a high pitch of excitement by the arrest of a boy who B. Korn, List 2750 was charged with petty larceny by a follower of De Leon, because he had taken his copy of The Worker!! A manufacturer made money by getting out campaign buttons bearing Com-rade Panken's picture, as a commercial speculation. The old-party speakers were driven to the argument that, al-though Socialism is a good thing, the ssue this year is not between Socialism and capitalism, but between debauchery and decency in municipal af-fairs, etc. The most profound sensation was made by a couple of real boy orators, who surprised every one. Lit-tle Abraham Lebshewsky, with a good voice and fluent English, analysed industrial and political conditions in speeches of an hour's duration, and brought out the truths of Socialism in a skillful combination of arguments and stories with such masterful effect that some visiting comrades from the West Side took him up there upon another evening, and he was just as suc cessful with the Irish-American audience in that vicinity as he had been with the Yiddish crowds in his own locality. A. Goidberger, aged thirteen, was another boy speaker who made an excellent impression, even when deal-ing with the philosophy of Socialism. In spite of the cold weather, he held his audiences steadfast and drew continuous applause from his amased listeners. All the Jewish districts gave an increase in the Social Demo-cratic vote last Tuesday.

State Secretary Oncal of Indiana re ports a most satisfactory increase of receipts for dues during October. He writes: "The orders for stamps dur-ing this month are the largest I have ever received before. I was aware that our summer agitation had secured us a number of new members, but did not think the increase would be as large as it has proven to be. We are doing fine, and I expect the dues to in

The Socialists of San Francisco have won their hard fight to maintain their right to address street meetings, Judge Hunt, of the Superior Court, in passing upon the temporary injune tion returned by the Rocialists against the Chief of Police, upheld the Social-lists in their action, pointing out that their meetings were not in the nature of unlawful assemblage. In accordance with his decision, Judge Hunt overruled a demurrer to the complaint of the Socialists. As his indement practically concludes the case, the police will probably take no further steps, and bereafter the Socialists may onduct their meetings wherever they SHALL THE UNIONS GO INTO POLITICS?

By John Spargo.

in well nigh every lodge—of the powerful organizations of the "skilled" trudes no less than of the less powerful organizations of "unakilled" workers—this question is being raised But the full significance of the ques-tion only becomes apparent to us when we remember that it is generally conceded by all intelligent trade unionists, quite irrespective of their attitude upon the particular proposal before us, that the trade union movement has been called upon to face a great and unforeneen parii, which, it is claimed by the advocates of political action, cannot otherwise he overcome. There is no escaping the fact that it is a question of the most vital importance to every trade union and to every individual member of every union. It is a question which we cannot ignore without the most serious risks, and the "labor who would ignore it, who, are, almost without exception believers in what is called the theory of the class struggle. They say that his-tory is but the record of struggles for supremacy between classes with op-posing interests. The labor movement to them is nothing more nor less than the struggle of the oppressed working class. But the opponents of the pro-posal to adopt political methods deny that there is such a class division. They denounce the men who talk of a class struggle, and themselves talk elo-quently of the "real identity of inter-eat" axisting between the workers and their employers. And the employers and their representatives, just like some workers and their representa-tives, are continually talking in the same strain. Upon the idea of the existence of such unity of interests Civic Sederations and Conciliation Boards have been formed at which capitalists like Senator Marcus Hanna. and labor men like Mr. John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers Union have joined together in singing the same tune. To them it is only a queslet us know it, and if it is not the correct view let us know it.

Why Do We Organize?

Let us get down to fundamentals, to bottom principles. Why do we or-ganize? Why was the first union started and why do we pay our money to maintain unions now? The first union was not started because the men who started it did not cause the men who started it did not inderstand their employers, of were misunderstood by them. The explanation involves a deeper insight into things than that. The facts were somewhat as follows. When the individual workingman, realizing that out of his labor, and the labor of his fellows, clime the wealth and inverse of lows, came the wealth and luxury of his employer, demanded better wages, or shorter hours, or better conditions of labor, he was met with a reply something like this from his employer, nind you, who understood the work-lugman's position perfectly well-much better in fact than the workingman plenty of others outside who are ready to take your place." The employer understood the position of ewel worker. So that not a few of our "victories" mocked us.

To them I worker that the was dependent upon the tab.

When we had support mocked us. The employer said, in subthat he was dependent upon the job which he, the employer, controlled: otherwise he could not have made such a reply. And the worker understood perfectly well that so long as the employer had the power to discharge him and to fill his pince with another he was powerless. It is an unequal comworkingman but to join his fellows in a collective and united effort. Ho organizations of workers now appeared and the employers could not dismisthe nuntter so lightly. When the work, organizations of the employers. Every strike added to the ordinary terrors of competition. The manufacturer of competition. The manufacturer whose men threatened a strike often surrendered because he feared most of all that his trade, in the event of a suspension of work, would be snatched by his rival in business, and so, by playing upon the inherent weakness of the competitive system as it effected the employers, the workers gained many substantial advantages. There is no doubt whatsoever that under these conditions, we, the wage-working class, got better wages, better working But there was an important limitation for every man. That is the essential condition of the capitalist system under workers in any given trade are emtrades were employed.

Capitalists United Now.

Still, notwithstanding this important mitation. It is incontrovertible, it was to me that we were benefited by finitation, it is inc

In every labor union in the land, and well night every lodge—of the power-ul organizations of the "akilled" labor unions also. That they called their organizations by other and high sounding names does not after the fact that they were in reality unions formed to combat the unions we had formed. workers—this question is being raised and discussed with an intensity of earnestness which alone would be safficient to mark it as the most urgent clent to mark it as the most urgent lity, a union of the men who employ labor against the union of the men they when as organized workers we went to the individual bon who feared his rival as much as he feared us, or, rather, who feared us most of all because his rival was waiting to snatch his trade, he was afraid very often to resist us because resis tauce on his part would mean that his rival would get his trade. But when the bosnes also were organized it was different. Then when we went to the individual employer or boss he said: "Do your worst. I, too, am in an or-ganization." Then it was a battle be-tween organized capital and organized labor. 'We struck in the shop of one employer and other employers locked out our brothers upon whem we had depended for financial support. Or, in ostrich like, would bury his head in the sand of fear, prejudice and unreason, is unfitted to lead any body of men. A candid and absolutely fear-done by some other employers where our own members were working, the very members again on whom we had to depend for support. So we were brought face to face with this diff culty; either we had to withdraw those men, and so cut off our means of sup-ply, or we had to submit to being beaten by our own members. And the result was the same in either case it was "Hobson's choice" anyhow. Under the changed conditions we were besten time after time. It was a case of our cuplmania against the warehouses of our masters; our purses against their bank accounts; our poverty against their riches. How unequal the combat! How slight our chances! A strike means that the workers on the one side and the employers on the other seek to tire each other out by waiting. More truthfully perhaps it might be said that they seek to force each other by waiting patiently to see who first feels the plach of hardship and poverty. Time after time we went on strike-went out to sit and play the waiting game. We waited and the employer waited. Finally we went back tired of waiting. We were not convinced that our demands were unreasonable or unjust. No, we were just beaten at the waiting game, that was all. We were beaten because while we waited we fasted and there came a point at which hunger forced us to give in. And all the while the employer had waited without suffering. He could stand it for he feasted

When the masters of the means of life, the masters of our jobs, organized their forces they set narrow and sharp boundaries to our power. In any struggle where it might suit them to make the fight we were bound to be beatest. Henceforth we had to learn by bitter experience that we were powerless practically because the op-posing forces which we could no lon-ger divide owned the means, the only means, whereby we could live.

Meantime, too, we had learned that we were not only exploited as workers, as producers, but also as buyers, as consumers. And because we were consumers almost to the last penny of our wages, because we had to spen I almost every penny we sarued, that was quite as important to us as the vance in wages applied to only a re-stricted number of trades, the ad-vance in prices becoming general, the total result was against the working class as a whole, and little or nothing to the advantage of the few who re-ceived the advance in immediate wages. At that point the need of a social revolution which would give to the workers as a class the control of the implements of labor, and also of the full control of the product of their labor, became evident. In other words, at that juncture the need of adopting independent action directed to the socialization of the implements of labor, and the product of labor, became apparent. But we did not as a whole realize this. We continued to pin our faith to the old methods. It is not easy to break away from old methods and to break away rom old methods and to embark upon new and untroden paths. A few there were who saw the necessity, but for the most part we were blind. With splendid devotion and courage, but nevertheless blindly and wildly, we kept up the fight. Strange to say it was not up but our masters. to say, it was not us but our master who were destined to take the fight into the political areas. They took it there for their own purposes and in-terests, true, but in taking it there always suit the employers to play the full, notwithstanding this important intion. It is incontrovertible, it is incontrovert

the point of violence, we showered anathemas and blows upon the "scab." And the employers could only use the "acab" so long as they could protect him. This was not the only cause of violence, however, for not infrequently the employers themselves deliberately provoked violence for reasons of their own. For one thing it was a convenient method by which public sym-puthy might be allenated from our cause. Then, too, sometimes in des-peration we resorted to violence not because of the employment of "scabs," but to obtain food. Particularly did this happen in cases of lockouts when we were resisting attempts to cut down our all too sensity wages. But whatever the cause of the disturbance and violence the result was the adme. In thousands of casts all the powers in thousands of class all the powers of government—police, militia, and federal troops, have been used against us. The every state in the Union this has occurred, no matter which political party happened to be in power. From the "bull pens" of Idaho and Colorado; from the coal fields of Pennsylvania and West Virginia; from aylvania and West Virginia; from Homestead, Hazelton, Chicago, New York, Pittaburg, Omaha, St. Louis—in a word, from almost every industrial center, the blood of workers who have been shot down at the shambles bears witness to the terrible fact that the powers of government have always can used on the side of the employers. Further than this, we have had to face the still more powerful opposi-tion of the makers and the interpre-ters of the law. No more powerful blows have ever been-directed against us than those which have been directed by the judges from their proud position and in the name of justice. Injunction upon injunction has been is: sued, robbing us of the most ele-mentary rights of manhood and citi-zenship. To serve the interests of our nasters there have ever been judges ready to declare illegal what the con stitution and statute law have de-ciared to be legal; and when laws have been enacted which gave us some slight advantage, some little improve-ment in our condition, they have promptly declared it "unconstitution-And now, as a climax, following the decisions of the British House of Lords, they are sequestering our funds. The employers were not slow In setting the judges of this country to work upon the lines laid down in the famous Taff Vale railway case. In the Taff Vale case the English railway workers had to pay damages to the extent of $115,000 to the railroad company, who claimed that they were entitled to recover the loanes sustained by them in the strike which the men had waged against them. It Rutland, Vt., a lodge of the Machinists' Union has been ordered to pay, under like circumstances, $2,500. under like circumsunees, $2,500. A writ was served upon every other man in the lodge and the property of every one of them was attached. In Daubury, Conn, the American Federation of Labor and the United Hatters of North America have been sued for $250,000 damages, the unit being dis $350,000 damages, the suit being directed against the right to hoycott and even the use of the union label as a rected against the right to buyers as a even the use of the union label as a means of discriminating against "scab" products. The bookbinders of Chicago have been sued for $30,000, and in the same city the building trades unions for $50,000, the brass workers and abstract workers for $30,000, and the electrical workers for $30,000, and the Candymakers' Union for $20,000, Altogether there are suits pending against labor unions for considerably over $1,000,000. That a large number of them will be decided against the unions is a foregone conclusion. Dur Only Choice.

And yet there are among us, in all our unions, men who are asking whether we ought to go into politics!

To them I reply that unless the unless are speedily saved by intelli-Bittle better wages prices often went up, most often in point of fact, so that the net grault left little to our advantage. In many cases, where the adthe political arena. It is not a ques-tion of transferring the fight. The fact is that the battle can be fought nowhere else. We must fight where the enemy is or nowhere. It is either a question of fighting the masters in the political field or being licked by them from their entrenchments in the political field. That is the only question for us. They took the political field as the battle ground, and if we would win we must follow them.

THE FIRST TIME THAT A POLICEMAN'S CLUB OR THE RIFLE OF MILITIAMAN OR SOL. DIER WAS USED AGAINST A STRIKER; THE FIRST TIME THAT AN INJUNCTION WAS GRANTED AGAINST A TRADE UNION, OR THE FUNDS OF A TRADE UNION WERE ATTACKED UNDER THE PRECEDENT SET BY THE TAFF VALE DECISION, THAT WAS A SIGN THAT THE EMPLOYERS HAD MADE THE FIGHT A POLIT-ICAL ONE. THEY HAD LEFT. US NO ALTERNATIVE: EITHER WE MUST FIGHT THEM AT THE BAL-LOT BOX OR BE WIPED OUT.

To seek the best and least danger ons way of defeating the enemy, is the battle of industry as well as is the battle of industry as well as in other kinds of war, is the essence of generalship. But our inbor generals, the "leaders" of our great unions, who oppose political action, have never yet been able to indicate, even vaguely, another method of attack except the antiquated and discredited methods which the legal decisions already referred to have rejected to the methods where the regard decision al-ready referred to have relegated to the scrap-beap where our intelligence ought to have east them long ago. Neither fir. Gompers, Mr. Mitchell nor any other opponent of the proposal

NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 15, 1903. work upon our jobs we were beaten.
The unemployed workers thus constitute the reserve army of the capitalist how we can beat the employer with class. To his employment there was but one obstacle—our resentment and rage. A hundred times, maddened to the point of violence, we showered anotherms and blows upon the "scab."

This policemen, soldiers and judger scale to the policemen, soldiers and judger scale to the policemen, soldiers and judger scale to the pull to box. Here, then, is the crux of the question. The strongest weapons of the employing class are governmental, or political, in their na-ture. In this country, the workers, having votes and being in an overwhelming majority, must be held re spontible for the use made of governmental power. So that when a striker is shot down, or clubbed, or imprison ed; or when an injunction is issued against a union, or a union's funds are attacked, the workers themselves must be held responsible. That is the truth which the Socialist in the trade sible emphasis that whichever of the capitalist parties be in power matters nothing at all. Democratic or Repub-lican matters not in time of style; both alike have in the past used all their powers to crush down the work-ers, and both stand ready to do the same thing at the first opportunity.

> Don't Scab on Election Day! Now, there can be no escaping the fact that the strongert weapons at the disposal of the master class are the political weapons, bindgeon, builet and injunction, which have been so ef-fective in breaking strikes in every industry and crippling our organizations Equally there can be no doubt what-ever that whosever nids the masters to maintain control of these weapons aids them to defeat every attempt we make to better our condition by organ-ization. WE CALL THE MAN WHO HELPS THE EMPLOYER TO DE-FEAT US BY GOING TO WORK IN THE SHOP AFTER WE HAVE DE-CLARED A STRIKE A "SCAR" BUT WHAT SHALL WE SAY OF THE MAN WHO GOES INTO THE BALLOT BOX AND HELPS HIM THERE TO DEFEAT US AND BREAK UP OUR UNIONS? IS HE

NOT ALSO A "SCABY"

Aye, "scab" he is of the most dangerous type imaginable. "Scab" he is even though he may carry a union card and his every garment bears a union label. The trade union moveunion label. The trade union more-ment has far less to fear from the man who "scale" at the factory or mine than from the man who "scale" at the bullet box. And the fact is that the most dangerous kind of a "scais," the man who "scals" on election day, is not yet regarded as a "scal," but may, indeed, be the most trusted officer in the labor movement. So little do we the more movement. So little do we realise the tremundous importance of this that we are willing to condepe the most harmful and dangerous form of "scabling" willie condemning the lesser form of it. Not till we learn this lessen, that labor's worst fee is within its own ranks, siving in within its own ranks, giving it strongest wenpons to the enemy, shall we be able to rise free and redeemed from the curse of ill-paid toil.

Strike at the Ballot Box ! The leaders of the trade unloss which are opposed to the adoption of a definite polital program cry out that it will destroy the unions. If m, it would still be better for us to destroy them than that the masters have the chance to do it. And there is abse chance to do it. And there is asse-tutely no question that they will do it if they continue with their injunctions and their raids upon our funds. But what nonsense to say that we shall de-stroy the unious by taking from the master class the power to huri injunc-tions at them, to attack their treas-uries and shoot by who are members. urles and shoot us who are member of them! Could there be folly greater than the timid wisdom of these gam? They cry out that Socialists are disrupters of the unious, and all the while they are supporting and urging us of the rank and file to support by continuing to vote for interests other than our immediate own, the very forces which are NOW destroying the unions. The Socialista who are urging this question upon the attention of their rank and file, are beginning to see the result of their labors. The day is not far distant, its dawn-streaks are already appearing, with in every labo organization the cry will be heard:

"We must strike at the ballot box! We must strike there to break our chains; to become masters of our own livesof our own brend-of our own tools of the fruits of our own toll."

The Socialist movement—the Social ist Party-will save trade unionism and lead its hosts to victory in the strike of strikes: the strike of class conscious and class loyal workers at the ballot box.

"Shall the unions go into politics?" Test to save themselves. The blood of the murdered dead upon a thousand hills, from Cour D'Alesse to Homestead and from New York to Sen Francisco, cries for vengeance, and it we would avenge it there is but this imtine character.

Président Gompers' annual report, while showing a considerable increase in the membership of affiliated bodies, certainly did not mark any advance on policy of past years. In fact, the document is even duller and more spiritless than those of 1902 and 1901.

At considerable length, President

Gompers dwells on the industrial depression that looms so large in the immediate future. He recognizes that the usual cutting of wages has already begun and advises that it be resisted. Beyond this he has nothing to say on the subject, never suggesting that the workers might try to find a means to put an end to the weary alternation of periods of overwork and periods of hungry Idleness,

He declares emphatically against the endency to "industrial organization" and urges the delegates to adhere to the old system and "hew to trade union lines," and incidentally to this he makes a general declaration against sympathetic strikes.

He makes a formal argument against the "open shop," but significantly omits all reference therein to Miller case and President Ruosevelt's decision.

The record of lobbying is the name old dreary record of flat fallure.—Eight Hour Bill defeated, Anti-injunction Bill turned inside out, Immigration Bill not passed in the form desired by the unions, the few existing labor laws violated and "representations" thereon to the President of the United States met with the usual assurance that they will be "taken under considera-tion," complaints of absured opprestion," complaints of shameful oppression of seames under treaty provisions also "taken under consideration," anti-trust laws turned into anti-labor laws and protests "taken under considera-tion," and so on to the end of the chapter. The one thing President Gompers can boast of under this head is that the Federation lobbyists succeeded in defeating a bill to authorize 'crimping" of seamen. tain has labored and brought forth a in many districts our votes were either counted for the S. L. P. or not counted at all-all because we did not have watchers enough. The result shows the need of better organization, stricter system in our work, every man armed and on the line of battle. Now is the time to prepare on this basis for

The rest of the county gives 42 for our state ticket, bringing the total up This means that we have not, in this very quiet campaign, held the extra-ordinary gains that we made last year in the excitement and indignation of the coal strike. In 1900 we had 293 votes in the county. In 1901, owing to the trick that deprived us of our place on the ballot, we had no way of fairly testing our real strength. Last year we had 1,567. Likewise to Meet "the imminent Danger of Socialism."

That, Says the New York "Times" In the Object of the Citizens' industrial Association, A New Adjunct of Parry's Society.

From the New York "Fimes" of last unday we take the following account of the sines and methods of the Cath zens' Industrial Association, a newly-organized adjunct of Mr. l'arry's Na-tional Association of Manufacturers

"It is the purpose of J. T. Holle of Brooklyn, who was chosen Third Vice-President of the newly organized Citizens' Industrial Association, to use all the means within his power to induce the means within his power to induce business men and others to join the movement and give it nearly support. Mr. Holle, who is Scereiary of the Manufacturers' Association of the State of New York, was seen at his offices, in Montague street, Brooklyn, after his return from the Chicago conference, several days ago, and said:
"To preface and qualify anything which I may be quoted as saying, I must ask that you report my interview as being purely personal and unofficial. If I understand the object of the Citizens' Industrial Association of America, it is to do things rather than to air itself as to what it intends to do. This, of course, implies the existence of conditions requiring action. The one thing which should impress itself upon every thoughtful citizen is the imminent danger of Socialism, or, ra-ther, the set of agitators (labor and others) who claim to represent Social ism. From the testimony of reliable witnesses from all parts of the coun-try, we have a cancer upon the body politic which must be ent out or it will work the ruin of our country, time has come to call a halt to o ized lawlessness, and not only to call that halt, but also to impress upon the judiciary the demand for full and com-plete execution of the law without fear or favor."

States to do it. "Everybody is familiar by this time, I think, with the position taken by D. M. Parry, and his reply to the labor leaders in Indianapolis was the key-note. The Citizens' Industrial Asso-ciation convention comprised representatives of a number of different sentitives of a number or discreme kinds of organizations, and various views were expressed, but I think you may say that the association was thor-oughly Parryized, as shown by our selecting him for president, although it was not his desire to take the position. He consented to serve only because he has the cause at heart." "Mr. Holle urgen that all who are in accord with the movement affiliate with some of the associations which have a representation in the Citizens' Industrial Association. Names may be sent to him. Besides Mr. Holle, Brook lyn was represented by Charles N. Chadwick, who was one of the most influential men in the conference and made a telling speech which brought the Eastern and Western men into harmony on a conservative basis. THE STULTIFICATION OF LABOR.

The folly of attempting to secure from the representatives of capitalist interests any measure of real value to the working class is rather comically illustrated by the action of the Workingmen's Federation of the State of New York. This body, which is the issue of a blacklist against members of the state legislature, and has noti-fied the organized workers of the state of its intention.

But the reason given for the omission this year is not that there were none deserving to have their names recorded in its columns, but that, on the other hand, hardly a single mem ber could be found who had not voted against one or more mensures brought up for the benefit of labor. The Fedcration, therefore, finding that it would have to blacklist them all, de-cided that it could not see its way clear to do so, and abandoned its customary publication.-Eric People.

expected to follow the "era of unexampled prosperity" (for the capitalists) that we have been passing through.

Under such circumstances it especially behooves Socialists everywhere to devote all their efforts to sound education and close organization of the working class, that we may do our part to give articulate and intelligent senting news about the movement, expression to the wide-spread discontent that is sure to come and to make possible constructive progress instead of the mere outburst of destructire indignation.

THE REAL FUNCTION OF THE STABLISH ARMY.

General Allen advises strongly against the reduction of the strength of the United States army and the capitalist papers applaud his words. One of these, the New York "Times," shows what the capitalists really want a big army for when it says:

"The infantry and cavalry are needfor a national police. They are more urgently needed for this purpose in view of the position in favor of free riot taken by many of the labor organimitions, and of the efforts of those ganizations to weaken the militia. MIP THE EVIL IN THE BUD.

Eternal vigilance is assuredly the price of success in such a movement as ours. Regrettable as is the necessity of the action taken last Monday by the l'enn-yivania State Committee with reference to the case of D. O. Coughlin and the Luzerne County Committee, as reported in another column, it would be a hundredfold more regrettable had the State Committee the "Retorm" combination-as is to be shirked its plain duty for the sake of

To say that, acting under their direct tion, Comrade Coughlin did not accept one set or the other. > To plend that the Citizens' party is not a regular party, but only a temperary and non-partizan movement, is no better. No political organization cialism and the class struggle. If it is not for Socialism, it is against the working class, and we must oppose it, whatever name it sails under.

To plead that Comrade Coughlin is an honest man, sincerely desirous of advancing the Socialist cause, and that he made no pledges to the "Citizens" does not improve the case. It is to guide honest men in the party, not merely to restrain rascals who may creep in, that our party rules are made. If those rules are to be set aside in the case of any party member whom we consider sincere and well Intentioned, whenever we think we can gain a few votes by so doing, then we may, as well be honest with ourselver os a party, throw over our party rules and our principles, and frankly so into ordinary give-and-take personal polilies for what there may be in it,

The Brooklyn "Eagle" never had much space to spare for the discussion of Socialism and had still less for preuntil last week, when the Massachu setts Socialists received a temporary setback. Then the "Engie" editor go out his goose-quill and wrote an article about it. He is mightily pleased, of course. Of course, also, he has to tell a few falsehoods, in order to make our loss in Massachusetts appear bigger than it is. Of course, again, he quite ignores the growth of our vote in New York and other states-even to his own city and borough. But best of all is his explanation of the defeat in Massachusetts. "The Socialists and the labor unionists are one," he says, and are much given to blowing up houses, shooting into street cars, and other like diversions, disturbing to the peace and dignity of the community That is why we lost. He adds: "So cialism, pure and simple, has much to commend it, especially to the weak and unfortunate, but a Socialism raled by the walking delegate, that put the intruding shoe laster above the resident banker, merchant, lawyer, doctor, tencher and prescher, was no Social lsm and so thinks Massachusetts. * * * It was believed that if Socialism ns, we say that any social system it would be in Massachusetts. > The "barrel" back of the crusade against Socialism in Massachusetts is evidenced by some of the campaign methods used-as, for instance, the insertion of long articles maligning the Socialist Party and giorifying Avery Goldstein, and their fellow renegades, as paid advertisements in the daily newspapers. One such article, whose insertion did not cost less than $25, lles before us-"lies," we may remark In both senses of the word. Great is the "barrel." But in the long run it doesn't work, because greater yet is the ludependent thought and cheerful devotion of houest, class-conscious men and women.

Three days before election the officers of the Ohio State Federation of Cathofic Societies gave out a forma statement explaining that their organ used campaign against the Socialis Party must not be construed as applying against the Honorable Too Much Johnson. This was very good of the clerics, but it doesn't seem to have helped Johnson to any great extent That gentleman's picturesque attitude gains an added beauty from the incident. Wherever Socialism is strong in the state, his campaigners were out telling the workingmen that Johnson was just as much of a Socialist as Cowen or Dobs or any avowed repre sentative of the Socialist Party. Simultaneously, Mr. Johnson's friends in the Catholic Federation came of and paid in cold type that he is no Socialist at all, and is therefore perfectly anfe: However, Mr. Johnson may now be considered as a feature of past his tory and it doesn't matter much wha

THE RACE QUESTION IN THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

To the Editor of The Worker:-You have given ample space to the discussion of Dr. Pyle's appointment to a of Tolede. I trust you are going to discum with equal clearness and force the vastly more important question in-volved in the constitution of the Louis-iana "Socialista," so-called, who have embedied in their manifesto a declara tion denouncing any semblance of equality or union between the white and colored races.

. The Secretary of the Socialist Party of Louisiana states that it is necessary to denounce the colored race in order to secure white members. It has been clearly shown, over and over again, that the desire to huld the colored man in subjection as an in ferior has the origin in capitalistic schemes to profit by his alleged and enforced "inferiority." It is one of the most vital principles of Sociation nes be exposed and

HIGH-PRICED SPEAKERS.

Editor of The Worker:—Opinions differ as to high-priced speakers and low-priced speakers, and a recital of what has been done in Michigan the past summer may be of interest. Over one thousand meetings have been held in this state since May 20, 1903, addressed by twenty-five speakers in 250 towns. Not one of these speakers asked what he was going to get for his services, and among them were many men who are as competent to expound priced speakers.
It is true that people generally do not expect much of a speaker who does not set a high price on his services, and Socialists are no exception to this rule. We do measure a speaker too largely by the financial estimate he places on himself, and in doing this we too often disparage and discourage even better and more deserving men and speakers. Even Socialists must learn not to estimate a speaker by the glitter of his price mark. Nevertheles. there are two sides. Eugene V. Debs, speaking in a capitalistic town, will make his regular Socialist speech to a crowded bonne at 25 or 50 cents ad mission charge, whereas it is possible that if he were to charge nothing his audience would be much less. Ordin ary people have confidence in high-priced goods—they think low-priced goods are too cheap to be of much ac count. They judge the quality by the price mark. Ordinary people do, but Socialists ought to know better than to do that.

I have noticed more than once when the Socialists of a town have "thrown themselves," that is, worked hard and dug deep into their pockets for an expensive meeting, that the effort left them with a sort of tired feeling for a long time. It seems as though that sort of exertion has a depressing ef-fect, especially if the comrades happen to be wage-workers, and more especially if there happens to be a deficit and a possible Shylock ready to take his full pound of fiesh.

whole, it, would probably be On the better for wage-working Socialists to leave our high-priced speakers to charge capitalists all the traffic will bear. Dress suit lectures do actually sound better to most people than the same speech from the rough and ready soap box hustler, but Socialists really ought not to be fooled that way

AND NOT ONLY IN WASSACHUSETTS To the Editor of The Worker:

The platform of the Socialist Party of Massachusetts has this among its immediate demands, that Election Day be made a legal holiday. The need of such a provision appears plainly when one reads the following from the Law-rence "American" of Oct. 31:

"Notices were posted in the mills Priday containing information about Election Day, which comes next Tuesday. According to the notices, no em-ployee will be allowed to go out during working hours to vote. All employees I hear the tramp of your armies.

It would be an easy matter to disfranchise hosts of working men alm-pty by the other voters crowding to the polls in the morning and at the noon hour. The fear of discharge and the certainty of losing a half-day's pay would prevent a large part of the factory workers from voting.

The party should also insist on town eeting days being holidays, as the workers pay for all. E DAWSON.

In an action against the "Leipzige Volkszeitung" for majestäts-belaidig-ung the government has taken the novel course of summoning the entire staff of the paper to give evidence as to the authorship of the effending article, the manuscript of which a careof the paper but of all the editors, had failed to bring into their hands. These tire staff were in court. The "Frank-

It has been especially satisfactory to ote that at practically all the meetthe report of the delegates to the Drestellevel to be strong it has been shown that that did not represent the proletariat, who remain revolutionary; moreover, organs of the party which had made themselves conspicuous by their revisionist attitude have been brought to book. What has come out of certain prominent members of the party with the bourgeois press, and the wire-pulling which preceded the congress at Dresden, has completed the discomfiture of the revisionists. The party executive will undoubtedly have to consider how far certain members can be allowed to continue their membership in view of these revela-tions.—London Justice.

It is said that the new British Am- | Why not let other people talk about has add that the new British Ambasador at Washington once wrote a novel in which he prophesièd some sort of alliance of the "stars and stripes and union jack against all the world." It is characteristic of the old regime to be "against the world." It is characteristic of the old the sole. They are as empty as a vacuum. You are a nice civiliser.

Then you so and rob the world of itself.

Against the world. The world is not against you. Why are you against the world? What has the world done to you that you should be against it What has religion taught you? What has the state said to you on the sub-ject? What does trade say? Why are you always against something? Who has taught you the sort of economics which says it is cheap to be against the world? Who has convinced you that you can afford to be against the world? What sort of humanity is it you have to talk about? Is that the best thing you can do with your stars and stripes? With your union jack? Poor stars and stripes, 'Toor jack, You might have given them a meaning that is good. But you have preferred to give them a meaning that is evil. You might have made them in favor of the world. You have made them against the world. You might have squared them with the new economics. You have tried to make clear what you will do and what you will not do. Let me tell you what we propose to do. We may be cranks and fanatics. In a room of the second floor, in a corner near a fire-place, there is the portrait of a man, painted in oil. Under this portrait in a glass case is a one double-call of rotten rope counected at intervals by abort sticks, and clumsy, broken saw.
The portrait is the likeness of a Frenchman samed Latude.

The rope and sticks are the remains of a ladder by which he made his escape from the Bastile.

The Bastile was a stupendous old casple built for Charles V. in the fourteenth contury and which was left standing when the boulevards were levelled in 1670. With its massive walls, ten feet in thickness, and its eight sombre towers, it rose just at the entrance of the city, and the cannon on its battlements commanded the ad-joining suburb of St. Antoine—the quarter occupied by the working

Up to the 14th of July, 1780, when and liberated everyone in it, that is to say, for a period of one hundred years and over, the Bustile was a favorite place in which to put people and forget about them. Charles' wonderful story, "A Tale of Two Cities," is founded on such an inclient.

Latude escaped from the Bastile a ew years before its destruction.

He had spent thirty-six years in one of its dark, cold, vermin-infested dungeons and had retained his reason, He went into his cell a young man and came out, down this rope-ladder. He had harmed no human being and had committed no crime, but he had done something which in that day in rance was worse than either.

He had referred slightingly in public to a courtesan of Louis XV. There were then commonly in use amiable little epistics called lettres-decachet. These were blank commit-ments to prison signed by the king. If the king were fund of you he would sign one of these blanks and give it to you, and when you came across a man who was not to your mind, you had only to write his name in the blank space provided and give the paper to the commanding officer of the Bastile.

He would do the rest. The prisoner would need to be charged with nothing and he need not know why he was sent nor who sent him. He would never come to trial.

If he had influential friends you could write a bogus name in the lettrede-carhet, but be sure the officer got the right man. Then there would be no record to trace him by; he would just disappear.

Madame Frompadour made out a lettre-de-cachet for Lattide when she heard be had spoken of her. She did the same for many another man of whom the world will never know.

Mme. Pompadour was the flower of a system of exploitation. She we neither better nor worse than her con of expiditation. Defeated by a Trick.

In Greenwood, Ernest Mills was de fented by a plurality of 0, and that only by a neat trick. In the town part of the riding the polis closed at m, and in the rural part at 5. The old-party managers held back their vote in town until they heard the results from the country bouths; then, learning that the Socialint was leading, with the Liberal sec and, they instructed the lown Connervatives to abandon their own can-didate and rush in their votes for the Employers Are Successfully Suing Unions for Damages Caused by Strikes or Beyootts.

The Gibson Circuit Court in Indian-apolis has decided that a union is responsible for any loss which an em-ployer suffers through a boycott. The decision was rendered against the local union of carpenters, which was sued for a large sum by a contractor whom the carpenters had boycotted. The case is being taken to the higher courts by the national organization of carpenters. The decision that lack of incorporation does not prevent the unions from being responsible for the result of their boycotts is a very im-portant one to all labor organizations, as a dozen or more are now being sued in different-states.

SOCIAL CHANGE: ITS MEN,

By Peter E. Burrowes.

"The desire for change is character- | fundamental fact, still moving because the program for it. The radical looks or it and the Socialist makes it.

There is a sure anchorage and limit of society-to the individual the virtue of change, to society the virtue of se cure basement upon change as de-termined and called for by the sum of new experiences,

This generation of workers, and the one or two preceding it, have passed their years under the wheels of this law of change. Never before in the world's history has change been so manifestly the order of the day. Never have the heads of nations boasted so vehemently of the results of this great law of change and yet so vehemently fought against its entering their own propertied and privileged reservations.

It is not to figures but to facts that one may securely turn to fortify the perception that change has been the most evidential thing of the century. Party politicians and property partizens may play Mm-flam with figures to prove, for instance, that there is an American unit called "the people," which is getting fatter all the time, easier, and having a higger balance at its banks. But the unstatistical and as the statistician triumphantly concludes his demonstration by crying to labor: "You see by these figures that there are no classes in America." La-bor answers: "Shr, your logic is irre-futable, but you lie; I am hare, all right. I am the great all wrong class if the community which has merely remained under the wheels of change, while all the rest of the folk were

We do not count un the facts of life. and even when governmental arithmetic proves otherwise we still know, without that sort of science, and in spite of such figuring, that we are right in it as the victims of change. Carrol Wright and Casson Wrong may impress the page of paper on which they prove it, with the statement that he proletarian class is a vanishing mantity in American politics, vanishing into that unit of prosperity known as the People. These writers do do it, nay they do do do it, but yet they leave it undone, for the sigh of the great majority answers "I am here,"

Figures, sometimes called facta, take on somewhat of a mercurial character when they go into sociology or politics. When they stay by the scales and the measures of things they behave themselves scientifically, but is cat varies in the pursuit of a mouse.

The material city is the sociological map of the changed classes. Never mind arithmetic but look at the rook-eries and the palatial districts. The upper and lower are always found apart. and the remaining hybrid middle class is to be found everywhere the dollar rolls. It appears as if the great law of change were devoting itself mainly to the middle class and resulted only in throwing people from thence down to No. 8 or throwing them up to No. 1. Vicisaltude seems to be in that middle only, while fixity takes her rest at either end. There may be changes in the personnel of the classes, but nevertheless they are fixed states. The penitentiary changes its personnel, but prison life goes on. This one may get out and that one may get in, but in spite of patriotism's "Hush" the class walls are there, with the American population behind them.

The first class owns, or keeps for its own use, lands and houses and social controls. It does nothing useful, but ness is to own and keep. is the art of owning, sometimes losing, as a profit producer it retains the whole of its own product.

The third class begins at six o'clock in the morning and leaves off at six, except when it works later, and R neither controls, initiates, owns nor keens anything but what slins down its

The first class resides in the West End, with an army of literary, political and cierical laundrymen to keep R looking clean. The second class stops near the bank, market, depot and tele phone. The third sweets where labor is saleable—none of them lives. Labor grinds out all that which the other two grasp for. Its reward is not personal or real property; its reward is the bit-terness of itself—labor on hire. It just gets bread enough for the laborer of to-day to be the laborer of to-morrow. The middle class rush is a rush away from linelf only; eagerly going to the upper class on the first offer, but involuntarily failing into the under class a great deal oftener. It is men with the middle class mind, born in one fictitious change and always tending to another, who have no idea that there are classes in America. Nay, even after they get into one or other of them they still retain the mind that cannot see it until the cisases as two armies begin to move, and the middle mind is being trod upon by the live mind of the world, from combat to comstruction. The middle class battle was itself but a shadow battle; its combats and com-petitious were but subterfuges, delusions, postnonements of real issue. The middle class was a windy, watery lie a band of pickpockets in the livery of a mounted cavalry, a hollow hypocrisy better fed, better clad, taking life arrayed in the ruddy face, the ample pauneh and bluff speech of a Faistaff, and therefore all the more a disgusting mind can get its facts contra from life, hypocrisy. But that lie is now worked out of life, and life takes up its two facts and places them face to face. What will they do? Had the middle class contented itself with the role of mediumship between two conscious classes antagoniz-ing each other, the three classes might long have remained in history, workinc. writing and fighting out the science of change. But the lower class had not been trught its consciousness; it had rather been deceived away from it, while the medium which should have remained the communicator of economic class to the other became, in a bastardly sort of way, conscious of itself as a middle class, and then very hastily conscious of a desire to be come the upper class. To that end, therefore, the men of the middle class began to smite down lawer with its golden feet, mounting upon the shoulders of their own weaker associates first, and they upon the next weaker, and they upon the stronger of the 'aborers, until the top middle was able to lead the way hito the windows of America's aristocracy, leaving all the human rounds of the ladder that fell short to fall down into secthing pov-He who treats the subject of labor in a fundamentally new way will soon find that he has fundamen-tally changed all other subjects of speculation. The class of parasite aristocracies shall not thereby be destroyed as men out of the human family, but "benevolently assimilated" into co-operation with its workers, and for a factitious nobility there shall be conferred upon them the true nobility of participation in the necessary life of man. When in course of time there shall come out of this red earth of the necessary life, leisure and culture, it. will be the leisure and culture of the whole, no longer aller and dangerous to, but the universal blessing of man. It by according to our thoroughness as to the proletarian being the man for the Socialist revolt and the subsequent Socialist government, that we are revolutionary Social iats, and as we recede from this we approach Bernstein and the accommo-dationists. We do not think out our great revolutions, however greatly we may be able to think. Our poor race has a long time yet to travel before its thoughts can motive its revolutions Foverty alone, when it has entered into the experience of self-conscious ness and solidarity, can give us that motive energy which is sufficient for the next great social change.

Sentiments of liberty, equality, fra ternity and patriotism are well enough after dianer, but revolutions are troublesome affairs and dangerous, and all men hate trouble and danger. So you may rely upon it, no after-dinner sentiments are able to propel the next and greatest of revolutions. What motive, then, can we find that is equal to this contingency? What but the need of maintaining our right to bread. This alone is big and strong enough to face all the inconvenier and danger to be met with in carrying out the overthrow of capitalism. The majority of the people belong to the mute creation on all other subjects but bread, and this subject is alone able to give us the agitators and the motive for Socialism.

Must we wait, then, for famine to give us the speech and the men of So-cialism? No; fear and fierce desire will run ahead and anticipate hunger The famines of the past have given all men a farsightedness in this matter. We can not only see our bread gone, but we can see it going, and we can see it not coming. Privation has be-come educated in the course of many And then look outside of our own immediate surroundings. Look through the plate glass that separates us as a class from the wealth, beauty and spiender of civilization. Think how much we have learned to know under the caption "NOT OURS." While the fact of famine, or the fear of it, urges us from behind, the fiercer desire to belong to our age and share in the good things of our creation calls us on, and together they will surely give that motive that will man the ranks for the next revolution.

Now as to the means. They will be what they always were.

The instrument of revolution is that which, we being deprived of, has made us what we are. Bread may be the motive of social revolution, but the made the famine. We look around us for that instrument to use it. We ask what was that which kept us so near starving last winter, and we find that it was the landlord's rent, the grocer's bill, and the key of the factory on the wrong side. The landlord's rent we had always noid before last winter and the grocer's bill. What is it that precipitated our famine last winter? The key of the factory. We look over the whole field of suffering among our immediate neighbors and we find the key of the factory to be the key of our famine, and therefore the key of the next great social change which is called for by the workers. But behind and outside of the factory we have left entrenched the independent powers of rent and profit who nail up the doors and leave us to fry in our own fat.

We discover then that we have left the biggest part of the trouble yet un-touched. They go to law with us to recover what they lost by the chance of the factory key. They are only a handful, but they harass us mightily. So that the key of our factory proves, after all, not to be the only key of our work. All the time they have been smiting us by acts of Congress and by acts of soldiers and policemen, who were directed in their acts of hostility, one and all, by one and the same thing --law. It is plain that we have not averted famine while they have law on their side. So, then, the factory key is not the instrument of revolution olution. But the White House is right fully already occupied by the major ity's representative? No; the majority is not there, for we are the majority. When that which seems to be is, when the fact of our democracy accords with its theory, Socialism will be established through the worker having learned to use their own majority. LABOR SECRETARIAT.

White we declare that the development of co-mounic conditions tends to the overtirow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the etage of development reached by the proletarist. We, therefore, consider it of the utunest importance for the Socialist Tarty to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political orders, is order to facilitate the As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and an other public utilities, as well as of all in other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monoportes, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wares and shortening of the boars of labor of the cuspierers, to the theory of the capitalist relates to the consumers.

SOCIALISM AND TRADE UNIONISM

The trade-union movement and independent political action are the chief emancipating factors of the wage-working class. The trade-union movement is the natural result of capitalist production, and represents the excumulate side of the working-class movement. We consider it the duty of Socialists to ioin the unions of their respective trades and assist in building up and unifying the trades and labor organizations. We recognize that trade unions are by his prical secrently organized on neutral grounds, as

The Socialist Party will continue to give the affairs within the own sphere of activity without active interference by the other. The Socialist Party will continue to solicit the sympathy and support of all trade organizations of the rade-union movement. The party will also continue to solicit the sympathy and support of all trade organizations of labor without allowing itself to be made the airly of any one division of the trade-union movement. The party will also continue to solicit the trade union movement in a gallact declare that we deem it unwise to invite trade unions as such to be represented in the political conventions of our party.

Democratic "Friend of Labor" Made Rash Challenge and Will Be Held to the Mark by Worcester Socialists.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 5 .- We have had the chance to put a promi-nent local advocate of capitaliam to the test and have not failed to use it. James H. Mellen is a well known Democratic politician who has represented this city in the Legislature fo eighteen years. He poses as a "friend of Labor" and is naturally much opposed to the growth of Socialism. On Oct. 21, speaking before the Cen-tral Labor Union, he declared, that he would be gind to meet in dehate any Socialist "who would not get into a passion and make wild statements." On Oct. 25, Thomas P. Abbott, a well known reteran of the Socialist movement here, took up this challenge through the daily press, saying:

"if I do not come under the head 'objectionable' Socialists that you have reference to, I shall not only be pleased, but I very much desire to meet you in a friendly debate either Central Labor. Union, and I will offer the following questions for your consideration:
"Resolved, That Socialism, or the collective ownership of the tools and natural opportunities of production, is the only solution of the labor problem."

"Resolved, That the laboring class, as a class can be benefited permanently only through a political party of their own class.' Resolved. That no one can repre-

Mr. Mellen waited till the day before election and then published a letter de-ellning to debate with Comrade Al-bott on the ground that Abbott was not a "recognized leader" of the So-cialist Party, but that he was willing to meet James F. SOCIALISM DISCUSSED.

Federation Leaders Cannot Evade the Issue.

President Compara Orders Galtories Cleared for Applauding Hayes-Attempt to Suppress Discussion is a Failure.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 17.-"Since wares can never be regarded as the full equivalent for Labor's toll, this convention recommends that the workers use their political and economic power along the lines of their class interests to secure for Labor the full product of its toil."

This was the form in which Max 8. Hayes of Cleveland, delegate of the In ternational Typographical Union, in the American Federation of Labor con-vention, today condensed the sub-stance of eleven Socialist resolutions introduced by as many unions, large and small, and all together reported adversely by the Resolutions Commit-

Haves' motion was to substitute this brief declaration for the committee's afterse report. The motion was great ed with loud applause, in which the workingmen who packed the galleries joined. President Gompers, who was in the chair, augrily declared that he would not allow any manifestations of approval or disapproval from the gal-leries. A few hisses were called out by this statement, whereupon President Gompers ordered the galleries cleared and the doorkeepers called on the police to help them drive out the speciators. It appears that on sober second thought Mr. Gompers must have decided that he had been too hasty, for the galleries were soon ! quietly opened again.

The eleven resolutions referred to were couched in various forms. One, introduced by Delegate Kreft of the Philadelphia Central Labor Imion; adrimadelphia Central Labor Union; advised members of the Federation to support at the ballot-box only such candidates for public office as truly represent the interests of the wage-earners and stand on a platform de-manding for the worker the full product of his toll. Another, by Delegato Educate of the Bakers' International Union, proposed that "the American Federation of Labor declare in favor of collective ownership of and and capital and the operation of the same for the benefit of the whole people instead of a privileged few." A third, from a Laborers' Protective Union, de-clared in favor of democratic manage-ment of all means of production and distribution. Others advised independent political action of the workers on class lines or declared that the work-incmen must get the full product of

After clearing the galleries, President Gompers declared Hayes' motion out of order, and on appeal the ruling was sustained by a selegate vote of 181 to 70. Delegate Barnes of Phila-delphia then asked unsulmous consent to introduce a resolution on similar lines, but Schaffer, president and dele-gate of the Amalgamated Steel Work-ers, objected. Kreft made a similar attempt, but the pre-arranged plan to prevent a Socialist resolution from coming before the house was success-

Hayes was compelled, therefore, to take up the question by speaking against the committee's report, and of course the shutting off of direct discussion of the resolution did not suc eed in shutting of the debate on So-

The time has come when we of the working class must use our power, elect our men to the judicial bench and as legislators and mayors and governors. The trusts have grown and strengthened their position day by day through the last year. There are to-day four hundred great corporations. day four hundred great corporations in this land with a capital of eight thousand millions of dollars. Who can dream of free competition in the face of these figures? Two-thirds of the active capital of the country is entirely in the hands of these combinations. Trust rule, the rule of wealth, government by and for the capitalist class is not a thing of the future. It is here now. If we would save ourselves, now is the time to act. Hayes was warmly applauded. Delegate Energy of Washington replied with the old pies that the discussion of Socialism would destroy the unions, He alleged that in the cities where So cialism is strong in the central bodies, trade unionism is waning. On this point he kept to safe generalities. Con-cluding, he admitted that Socialism is coming, but said he did not know whether it would accomplish anyth ng. Delegate Mikol of the Cap Makers' declared that Socialism is indeed coming, that nothing can stop it, and it ought to be welcomed. He referred to the dismal failure of humble non par-tisan lobbying for labor laws at Wash-ington, as demonstrated by President pendent political action.

Delegate McLoughlin of the New Hampshire State Federation said he agreed with the Socialists in principle, but pleaded that it was hard for a man

Gompers' own reports, and urged that better results would follow from inde-

Fred Wheeler of California, delegate of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, spoke impressively on the Soc.alist side, basing his argument on the radical change in conditions, which made it advisable to adopt new tactics.

Denis Hayes, the Glass Workers' delegate, spoke against Socialism. He had to admit that the Socialists told the truth, but said the average citizen had not yet reached the point where he knew how to use the ballot intelligent-ly, and apparently he thought it much wiser to take his stand with those he declared to be ignorant than with those whom he admitted to have truth on their side. After saying he would like to see trade unionism taught in the schools, he declared there were "no classes in America," that he did not to hear about class consciousness, and so on, in repeated contradic-

Delegate Tanguard of Colorado did not know just where he stood. He thought the Pederation should make some sort of a declaration on this great question. He would vote for a laborlug man on any ticket.

Delegate Hoehn spoke strongly in favor of a frank Socialist declaration. Delegate Lennon of the Journeymen Tailors, of course, supported the committee's report. He said the Socialists wanted to make the trade unions the tail to their political kite, and hoped they would be defeated. In gen terms he talked about the benencial through trade unionism on old lines, and thought that the Australian ballot and the public schools were all we needed to protect it. Grimes of Texas, delegate of the Carpenters, also declared war on Socialism.

The last speaker of the day was an The last speaker of the day was an old man, Delegate Keyes of the Sh pwrights' Union, who supported the Socialist resolutions. He quoted from a speech of Compers at Bay City, Mich., in 1886, to the effect that the only so lution of the labor problem is for work-ingmen to vote together. Mr. Gompets had changed his mind evidently. Well, it was a wise man who could change his mind. Other men might change their minds in the opposite direction.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.-The In ter-State Commerce Commission to increase in the number of railroad casualties during the fiscal year closed June 30 last, as compared with the previous fiscal year.

There were 3.553 persons killed and 45,097 injured during the year, against 2,819 killed and 39,800 injured the year

The large increase is partially at tributed to the gain in railroad traffic during the year and the increase of 12 per cent, in the number of men em oloyed in train service.
This increase of 25 per cent, in the number of persons killed and of 15 per cent, in the number injured is a part of the price that humanity paysespecially the toiling part of human ity-for the extraordinary profits of the railway owners, during the last year. The number of workingmen on the railways has not been increased nor the equipment improved in any grown. Consequently the men have had to work harder and faster, neglecting many usual precautions, and have had to work for unusually long hours, exhausting their vitality and often rendering them incapable of performing their duties with safety to themselves or others. They had no option but to obey orders at whatever risk or to lose their jobs. While we allow the rallways to be owned and controlled by capitalists and run for private prod' rather than for public use, we may expect to go of paying such a tribute of blood as the capitalists' interests demand. suggestive item of news connected with this strike is the report that Nov. 12 agreed to adopt a uniform special freight rate on coal brought in from the lows, Missouri, Kansas, and Indian Territory fields while the strike lasts. The mining companies against which the strike is being fought had no considerable stock on hand, but the railway companies are ready to make freight-rate concessions to supply the market. This does not mean that the rallway lords have suddenly grown considerate of the people's needs and wish to save the dear public from shivering. It means that the men who railways are largely the same men as control the soft-coal mines in Colorado and also in the other states mentioned and are largely, likewise, the same men who control the iron works and smelters and need fuel to keep them running—and, further, that they real-ize the danger of allowing the outside public to suffer too much, lest its in-dignation rise against the mine own-

Here are some figures from the annual reports of the Manhattan Railway Company and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, issued last week. A priori, as the logicians say, these figures con-cern Messrs. Gould, Sage, and pais, and are "none of your business" anyone else; a posteriori, they may in-terest the people who have paid in the little nickels that make up these big totals—and got half-crushed and half-stified in consideration therefor.

In the year ending Sept. 80, 1903, the Manhattan Railway Company (or the Interborough Company, its les ook in a total of $12,997,836. It cost for wages, salaries, fuel, materia and everything else-to run the road and keep it in repair, including payment of insurance and taxes, a total of $4,016,182. Taking these figures as they stand (saying nothing of the big salaries paid to sinecure officers of other forms of disguised profit) the ab solutely clear profit amounts to $1,080,-854, or considerably more than half of the amount taken in.

Something for Rothing.

This enormous sum goes to Mesura Gould, Sage, and pals, absolutely regardiess of whether or not they do any work. It is clear graft, something for nothing. It is the sum that the people pay them for owning roads that they did not build and do not run-the sum we pay them for having allowed workingmen to build and equip the road and for allowing workingmen to

It cost $110,000 less to run the road this year than it did last year and only $101,000 more to run it this year than it did year before last. But the income last year was $1,100,000 more than it was the year before and this year it was $1,400,000 more than it was last year. Next year the income will go up again, out of all proportion to the small increase in cost of opera-tion. And so the stockholders and bondholders' profits will go on increas-ing and the employees' labor growing more intense, until the working-class majority of the people develop sense and spirit enough to vote it out of the hands of private exploiters and into the hands of the public.

What Social Democrats Would Do. What would public ownership of this great system mean? Not public ownership on the capitalist plan—with the public acting as an agent to collect profit and turn it over to useless bondholders-but public ownership as advocated by Socialists, by the Social Democratic Party? If this system had been under a Somission. The employees have been refused back payment of wages as ordered by the Commission because cial Democratic administration during the last year, that seven millions of dollars would not have gone into the authority of the latter to interfere in its affairs. The miners have appealed pockets of people who are doing no service for the public-not one cent

In the first place, hundreds more men would have been employed and the hours of labor reduced to eight at the utmost, so that the workmen ness of trade unions that fall to live up to the letter of their promises. The establishment of the eight-hou day and an increase of 10 or 15 per cent, in wages would not absorb one-third of the enormous value now packeted by the capitalists. The res of that surplus increase, under a 80 cial Democratic administration for use, would have been applied to im and executive energy could devise, so as to give greater comfort and co venience to the million those trains every day.

Most of the senators who are enthe men who work the system and o paged in shielding the trusts and cor-perations that have so long dominated the service given to the public? Bongress are above the suspicion that they do it for pay. It is a surprising fact that most of them are millionaires and Bothschilds who stand back o them. That, and the stupid individualism, the blind conservatism, the dull spathy of the working class ma fact that most of them are millionaires in their own right. While they are acjority, who have nothing to lose and all to gain by thinking and voting fo the "macred rights of property."

It is a good joke—for the men aget the seven millions for nothing.

THE GOVERNOR AND THE TRUST.

in the copper industry in Montana which ended last week should give food for serious thought to those who may imagine that the United States is still a democracy and that it can go without degenerating into an absolute oligarchy.

The Amalgamated Copper Company -a. $155,000,000 corporation, doulnated by the Rockefellers and other Standard Oll men and counting Democrutic United States Senator Clark among its leading members-was involved in lawsuits with certain smaller mining interests over property rights, against the Copper Trust.

Thereupon the Copper Trust prompt ly closed down its mines, smelfers, and other works, throwing over 20,000 men out of emplyoment-in other words, depriving one-fourth of the people of the state of their means of support.

Then the Trust notified Governor Toole that the shutdown would cor tinue until he called the Legislature in special session to enact a law reorganizing the judiciary of the state in such a way as to assure to the Copper Trust what the Copper Trust would consider a fair trial of cases in which it might be involved. Even Democratic Governor Toole, creature of Senator Clark, hesitated to grant such a demand. To save his dignity, he tried to persuade the Copper Trust to modify its terms or at least couch them in some more decently hypocritical language. But the Copper Trust "stood pat." It had power to starve the people of the state into submission. The Blockefellers and Clark and Rogers and Flower and Stillman COUID AFFORD TO GO MONTANA ESTATES LONGER PEOPLE OF MONTANA COULD AFFORD TO GO WITHOUT WAGES.

The Governor pocketed his dignity and issued the call. The Copper Trust allowed its 20,000 men to go to work again in the dark of the mines and the poisonous atmosphere of the smeltlaw it wants. And-what next?

What next? . It is for YOU, workngmen, to say. Would you like to see the Fuel and Iron Company and other Standard Oil corporations that control the industries of Colorado repest the trick there? Would you like brutally to the state authorities of Minnesota and the Dakotas? Would you like to see the Coul Trust play the game in Pennsylvania or the Cotton Mill Trust in the New England States? They will accommodate you, if that is what you are waiting for.

YOU WILL GET THE GOVERN-MENT YOU DESERVE. If you deserve real freedom, you will WIN IT on under the existing economic system FOR YOURSELVES. If you deserve open slavery, THE CAPITALISTS WILL SEE THAT YOU GET IT.

What are you going to do? Do one thing or the other.

Either blot out the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States and the Emancipation Proclamation from your textbooks, throw Fancuil Hall and Mount Vernon into the garbage pile, blot out the stars on your flag and put dollarmarks in their piace, forget the Fourth of July, and , if you vote next year, vote to disfranchise yourselves forever and put a crown on Blockefeller's head -that would be logical and straightforward and we would know where we stood. Or else USE your votes for the first time since 1984-and USE YOUR BRAINS FIRST, in order to do iteducate yourselves and your fellow workers, organise yourselves and your fellow workers, educate and organise and agitate and then go to the ballotbox and vote, not against the Copper Trust alone, not against the Standard Oil ring alone, but AGAINST THE WHOLE SYSTEM WHICH GIVES THEM POWER to commit such outrages as this that has been perpetrated in Montana.

It is as true now as it was in Lincoin's day that "THIS NATION CAN-NOT CONTINUE, HALF FREE AND HALF SLAVE."

A MEW OUTLOOK IN WORLD POLITICS.

The report from Shanghai that the Japanese are secretly organizing an Asiatic league with headquarters at Tokjo, with its infidence extending as car west as l'ersis, is not surprising to those who have followed with some attention the recent bistory of the Par East and comidered the probable reaction against the aggressions of European and American markethunters, but if the fact prove to be as reported it will work an almost incalculable change in the economic and political situation and prospects of the

For many decades past-ever since the inevitable limitations of capitalist development, its tendency to recurrent crises of ever increasing severity, be came munifest—Eastern Asia has been looked upon as the outlet for the surplus products of European and American industries-a surplus, not over the needs of our own populations, but over their purchasing power-by the conquest of which with gold or with cold steel the capitalist order might indefinitely prolong its lease of life. Japan herself, indeed, from being a purchaser of Western manufactures has long since become a competitor. So also has India, in some fields and to some extent. But China, with a third of the world's population, and the minor states of Korea, Thibet a Siam, and Persia and Syria in the West, still tempted capitalist, economists and state-smen.

"Why this hurrying of troops to and Why this battering at the gates of Peking?' asked Senator De- tens of thousands and cutting down pew two years ago, and answered: "Because the people of the United States produce annually two billion dollars' worth of goods more than they can consume" the meant, more than profits go up. Civilization and Christinuity are good words to juggle with, but in all the dealings of Western nations in Asia these words are but a conhemism for Profit. The Kniser was only a little too frank for wisdom when, in 1808, he congratulated the Beichstag on the fact that the killing of two German missionaries in China had resulted in giving Germany the port of Kino-Chou; that was truly

Japan's position relatively to Asia. geographically and historically, is very similar to that of England in relation to Europe. Capitalism took sout in Japan a century or so later than in England, but its progress there has been much more rapid. It is not natonishing that the Japanese ruling class should remider their destinal to rule Asiatic industry and trade and shape Asiatic politics to that end-Japan to be the leader and organises of Asia in defense against the Occiden and in the development of an independent or a heatile aconomic world Nor would it be surprising if Russian political and economic ambition should see its interest in favoring such movement. It is easy, of course, to speculate about the future and not wise to pradict too confidently. But it is safe to say that the potential force of such a movement as is now alleged to be on foot has not been generally realized in the West and that, if it takes shape and grows in the near future it must have the effect of greatly bastening the débàtele of capitalism in Europe and in America alike.

The capitalist dailies, Republicas and Democratic, are a harmonious unit on one point. Commenting on the reduction of wages in the cotton milis, they all unite in adviring the working men to "take it philosophically." The lesses are taking it philosophicalir, so why abould not the workingmen calmly bow their heads in submission and be thankful if they have any wages at all left them? Philosophy is a most comforting thing-for the other fellow.

GOV. ODELL WARNS STUDENTS AGAINST BOCKALIBH.

"ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 14 .- In the presence of an audience of Cornell students and professors that filled the big University Armory, Governor Odell spoke for fifteen minutes to-day on the modern university and its place in the world of affairs. He was intro duced by President Schurman, and his remarks were prefaced by a rousing Cornell yell for Odell given by the stu-dents. In his address the Governor

"There is a need to-day for college nen in the world of affairs, to answer the false cry of the Bocialist that op-portunity for individual effort has passed away.

"This afternoon Governor and Mrs. Odell, accompanied President Schur man to the Cornell-Columbia football game at Percy Fleid,"

The above is an Associated Press dispatch. We commend it to those who doubt that Socialism is a growing power in the land: Governor Odell knows that Socialism is growing and that it is the great danger threatening his party and the capitalist interests that his party represents.

As for the college boys-experience will show them what sort of a chance capitalism offers to the individual who has muscle and brain and good will to work, but no capital and no "null" in capitalist circles. There are college graduates running street cars to-day and giad of the chance to earn two dollars by thirteen hours' hard work. There will be more in the days to come. And there are plenty of college graduates in the Socialist movement o-day and plenty of college students investigating the question-and there will be more of them in the years to come.

Meanwhile, let us welcome Governo Odell to the fray. We are proud of our enemies.

The editor of the Boston "Globe" writes learnedly on the causes of insanity and rightly concludes that the greatest of these is worry. So this is the good advice he gives us:

"Don't worry! The mechanic wi continually nurses the fear that be will be left penniless in time of sick-ness, because his carnings all go for the family food and clothing, is but weakening his capacity as a workman and hastening his day of expected mis-

And to encourage the mechanic in avoiding worry the bosses-whom the "Globe" will defend to the last drop of its ink-are, at the verge of winter discharging or laying off workmen by the wages of hundreds of thousands more. COMMITTEE MEETING.

To the Editor of The Worker:—As member of the National Committee for Texas I have recently moved that the meeting of the National Committee to be held in January, 1904, be passed. I do this because of the expense attached to a meeting of the Na tional Committee and the demands that will be made on the national or-ganization for funds next year, which makes it of importance that all pos-sible economy in the expenditure of party funds be put in force. Furthermore, without a desire of making my self a Jeremiah, I suppose it would do chilat who now has a few dimes to contribute to the party will find him-self pushed to meet actual living expenses and have no means of assistin the party. It would not be surprising if party revenues foll off next apring and summer, when money will be needed most for party work. Why not wave the amount necessary for a meet-ing of the National Committee. It would be equal to a donation of $2,000

JOHN KERRIGAN, National Committeeman for Texas Dallas, Tex., Nov. 11.

THE MEED OF VIGILANCE. Editor of The Worker:—As our movement develops, the question of control will become more and more im-portant. The capitalist class will not gracefully retire from the economic neld and wish the working class "God apeed" in establishing the co-operative commonwealth. On the contrary, capitalism will contest every forward move of the working class. And, knowing that all labor organizations have had to cope with capitalist hirelings in the past and also in the present, Socialists would be fools extraordinary to im-agine that the Socialist Party would ever be free from the tempter's power

Democracy is as necesstry to the Socialist Party as air is to the human body. Publicity is the breath of So-cialism. Every act of the party, and especially every not of all party offi-cials, must be known to the membership. In no other way can the manbership retain control of the part When a comrade is elected to any of fice in the party, the members who have elected him are responsible for his acts. As a party, we Socialists are approaching the time when the capi-talisits will have to take notice of our movements. Silence will no longer down the rising tide of working class emancipation. Socialism has at last forced the capitalist benchman to openly attack our party. And a study of the recent election returns will dis-close the fact that where the flercest fight was made against Socialism, there our vote decreased or failed to

When capital begins to wage an ag-gressive campaign against Socialism. every trick known to the capitalian every trick has a to the captains will be used against us. A stush fund, amounting to thousands of dollars, was used in the recent campaign in Massachusetts. Four notorious grafters, who were formerly members of the party, openly allied themselves with the capitalists and did everything in their power against Socialism. With-out mentioning names, suffice to say, that these individuals were once looked upon as leaders in the Socialist move-

and David Goldstein.—Ed.)
We are already in the midst of a crisia. In fact, the entire history of the Socialist movement has been a series of crisis. This one is acute and must be dealt with by the members who compose the party now.

With these introductory remarks, I want to call attention to a condition that must be met. The National Committee being the servants of the party membership, should work under the constant supervision of that membership, but it does not. This leaves th control of the party in the hands of a committee, none of whom make fre-quent reports of their work to the

Now, every member of the National Committee may be as true as steel, but no member of that committee should be permitted to conduct the work of the office without being re-quired to not only make reports, but also to get instruction from the mem-bership. Almost every week the Na-tional Committee is voting upon questions of supreme importance to the party. And when it is remembered that the votes of these few men bom-nit the entire party to the position they take, you will see that the ma-jority of the members are kept in igjority of the members are kept in ig-norunce of the National Committee's doings and you will see the danger the nts us. For instance, in Febru ary last the National Committee pass-ed resolutions specifying the method of procedure in organizing unorganized territories. But the committee took no steps to acquaint the membership with such action: the membership did no mand a complete report of the meet ing at which those resolutions passed; and the ignorance of the passed; and the ignorance of those in-structions has already resulted in nucle confusion.

The question of party control is up-for solution, and will not down. It must be met, not once and settled for all time, but with every subsequent step of our progress. No rigid, artificial raise can be made that will per-mit the membership to rest secura-while the work of the party is carried on by officials. No man, or set of men, is capable of shaping the future the destiny of the human race. Rocalist Party, in order to be true to every state organisation in the party will soon be compelled to so anend its constitution as to enable the entire party membership in the state to know at all times just exactly what the various officials are doing. With such precautions, the irregular-ity of party officials can be corrected; dictals or individuals who imagine themselves the brain of the Socialist movement can be held in check or speedily removed from office. And capital will find it more difficult to re-tard our work by sending hirslings in to our moke or by currupting the morally weak with bribes.

Our party has already become power. It remains for the membershi to keep it so. No single individual i indispensable to its progress. The, as it were, watchdog supervision by the entire membership, and that alone, can assure the Secialist republic. This means work for every member of the party. And with every member at work, not like anarchists, with no regard to systam, thus producing discord, but co-operating with the party organisation wherever he or she may be: with such workers we will soon be able to pierce the dark cloud of capitulism and see that it, too, has its all ing—the bright and deter with the consuming desire for their own emancipation.

WHEN I SEE HOW SLOW YOU ARE.

By Horace Traubel.

When I see how slow you are to take care of yourself I wonder why I look to you for results. And then I think the matter over a little more seriously with myself. And then I see that I do not really look to you for some the makes no attempt to escape. He that I do not really look to you for some the interest of the series Or to a prophet? Or to an economic southsayer. If I looked to outward results for results I would get discouraged. I would say: It's no use I would fritter away my faith. But when I look inside I am always screen. I see my faith there intact at logs holding its own. Whatever the moods, whatever the losses and gains of personal prestige, my faith remains, unshadowed, unshaken, unahamed. So I have got into the habit of appealing from your neglect to my own abounding belief. I see that it is where life pursues its hollest processes. I see him as he is. He does the substance of final righteousness. to take care of myself. Election returns come in and come in wrong. Allies desert you. Editors lie. Politicians slauder. The hoelers count you off the ticket. You do not get into Congress. You are thrown out of a pulpit. You are not invited into parlors. The word of your lips, the thought of your brains, is never popularly welcome. Friends turn away from you. You see business going. You are laid off your job. Money is scarce and gets scarcer. Your clothes are shabby. You do not always have enough to cat. Luxury is prohibited. Your health is impaired. And so on. What is it all for? You live in an atmosphere of defeat. Your creature life is a wreck. You save nothing from the ruins. Nothing? Well, noth-ing but yourself. Nothing but your faith. Perhaps not even your faith. For often a men's faith goes with the rest of things. Life is a failure. The battle is lost. Was it worth while? You dreamed great dreams. But meanwhile life narrowed. Little by little your earthplan was pared. Does it all pay? Is life on such a plan worth what it cosis? These are the results. A long row of ciphers. Ideals burt and and shattered and dead. The roof sold over your head. The soles worn under your feet. The heart broken between your ribs. Was it worth the price? Was it? Do not answer in your wrath. But answer. Was it worth the price?

Was it worth the price? An awful question. Addressed not to your stomach but to your soul. Not to your purse but to your love. Was it worth the price? That depends. When you look for results you are anytime liable to track your inventory up to a dust bean. What have you got to do with results anyhow? You have got to do with inspirations. The best, the only, with inspirations. The best, the only, results, are inspirations. The result that is not an inspiration is no result at all. You were looking for results.

For street results. For vote results.
For preacher results. Well, you got them. They were largely against you.

And will be for a long time to come.

Yer are doing for the world what the want. Until you have convinced the world's want as well as the world's seed you have got to be satisfied to nce all the assets in the hands of the other people. You are driven back upon yourself. If you have not banked in yourself to stand the draughts of many postponements you will be unhappy. But If you prove adequate for all demands you will not care what happens against you in the world outside yourself. You will always know that the best things are happening for you inside yourself. Then if you have been weeping you will no longer weep. If you have been doubting you will no longer doubt. No ballot box can outvote you. You are never outvoted until you have out-voted yourself. You will often feel distressed. Every sympathetic man is distressed with the social anomalies. But you will never despair. You will learn where to look for results. You will not sean the voting lists. You will not expect your hope to be answered in immediate majorities. A few voices will say "yea." The most of men will he deaf. They will not hear you at all. Or they will hear you wrong. But you will keep saying your say. And if you say your say often enough the world will hear you right. That is all you have to do. Why should I cut my throat because men do not hear

I hear myself. That is enough. I see clearly how slow men are to do that one thing which will repair the social fortunes. I see them robbed. see them as they love their robbers. am accustomed to having them hate me for my attempts to reache them. I am merkiling in their affairs. I am an alarmist. So I am. Both. But I imagine that but for some one's meddling history would all be one note And I think the average man will have to do a let of meddling on his own account before he gains his proper place in the social order. You have got to meddle with the hosses and the masters. You have got to meddle with the landlords. You have got to kick up a lot of dirt with your angry hoeis. I hate to see you so alow about your own business. I am often of a mind to stir you up with the fiame of a wrathful fire. But I can wait. I will do all I can to wake To make you care. But I will not admit any doubt as to the general Ragged, it would keep on. Weeping sait tears, it would keep on.

No one seems to care so ittle for the cases which might be quoted as having workingman as the workingman him-self. He is faithful to his work. He is faithful to his boss. He is faithful to the formal government. He is faithful to social custom. He is faithful to social custom to believe, considering the socret methods adopted and the precautions in ken by these subtervances agitators. My faith will not permit me to concede that the workers of this world will always be so slow to care for themselves, will know what they contain. will know what they signify. They will then refuse to slave. They will be more than ever ready to serve. But they will not serve in another man's right. They will serve in their own right. They take care of everything everything eine first. Then they take care of themselves. But they will shake of this lethargy of their humbler man-hood. SECIALISM IN

THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

Roclalism is surely trickling through the Russian army, and the London "Times" (which is publishing columns of Russian news, notwithstanding the expulsion of its correspondent some mouths ago, freely predicts an out break of mutiny. The very best evidence that a spirit of insubordination is present is to be found in certain or ders from army officers of high rank. Here, for example, are extracts from an official circular-marked accretsent out by the minister of war himself, and bearing his signature, "A.

Kuropatkin"; "The attempts of political agitators to spread their propagation in the army—a rare occurrence in former times—have been frequently repeated of inte-Such is the insolence of these attempts that it has become necessary to call serious attention to the matter. This ap-peal reproached the officers for having, by order of their chiefs, become 'the executioners of honest workmen,' and written and some of them even lithographed in the military bureau. Their coutents were criminal. They were extitled 'The Pater Noster of a Soldier.' that revolutionary leaders were even striving personally to influence the sol tained that a propaganda had been or-ganized among the soldiers of the Rica-terinoslav regiment of Grenadiers of the Imperial Guard. This propagands no longer came from the outside and from persons who were strangers to the army, but from the sociers themselves, and the chief of the organiza-lion was a soldier of the said regiment. He had concealed the fact that he was entitled to a shorter period of military service so as to be able to continue for a longer time his work of propaganda among the soldiers. While he was with the regiment he energetically propa-gated revolutionary ideas in his per-sonal conversations with the other sol-diers and also by distributing a great number of pamphlets, proclamations etc. A considerable number of soldier collaborated with him. Others, while not taking any active part in his of-forts, tolerated this propagands. It must be observed that among the persons who are accused of instignting the recent agrarian disturbances in the nouthern governments there is a certain sub-licutement of the 133d Regnot admit any doubt as to the general result. In connection with the labor union warfare which figured prominently in the defeat of Representative Carey, it became known that the visit of Edward I. Daily of Lynn to this city played an important part. He came to this city on a secret visit and interviewed many labor leaders. It was understood at the time that

Mr. Isaley was in this city that be-came here at the request of President Gompers of the A. F. of L., who wanted Representative Carey defeated, as with the probability of the renewal of the fight over the recognition of Socialism at the national convention of that organization in Boston next week President Gompers wished to see Carey shorn of his political honors rather than that he should attend the convention as a delegate with conti mecess in the patitical world.

It might be just as well to state at this juncture that while the capitalist press is anxiously watching what the A. F. of L. Convention will do with the Socialist resolutions that are certain to be presented, the Socialists of untter. Nor do they delude themrely a with the idea that the volo received at Convention last year really represented a clear demand for Socialist political action. We are in no hunry. Socialism. cannot be forced on the working class by political manipulation, nor can it be advanced through dissenting bodies voting for it as a protest against the action of individual leaders; Only when it becomes the clear, determined, intelligent expression of the representntives of organized labor, will it be worth considering. And we can wait for that time to come, as come it undoubtedly will.

Is it l'latts, and the rest of the plutocratic Senators is going to enact laws for the working class? In every other civilized country the trade unions are as-sisting in the election of wage-worken to pass these laws for themselves, and the experience of the A. F. of L. during past years ought to at least teach the officials the futility of begging legis-lation from the capitalist class.

Los Angeles Socialist.

While the information we get from the "l'copie's l'aper," of Santa Bar hara, is rather vague, it is evident the Socialist Party of there has fused with the Union Labor party by refusing to place candidates in the field in oppoaltion. An editorial says that it is "un-true" that the Socialists have held a convention and nominated a ticket. We are told; that" certain Socialists have prepared a list of candidates for whom they may consistently vote." Also that "in those wards of the city where union candidates were already put up no attempt was made to interfere, which, in a sense, would mean that we endorsed them."

Hasing our judgment upon this infor-mation, we would say that the Social-ists of Sunta Barbara have disgraced themselves, proven false to the Inter-national Socialist movement, and don-what they could to kill the only cause that can ever free the toller from Londage. They have violated both the state age. They have violated both the state and national constitutions, and their fact, thousands of mere boys are embloyed. Why? Because a boy can be bloyed. Why? Because a boy can be been just as soon as it can be legally done. The Santa Barbara local has soid out and has no rightful place in work. But the capitalist makes profit done. The Santa Baroara notal ma-sold out and has no rightful place in the Socialist Party. They have played soit out and has no righten prive in the Socialist Party. But Santa Barbara Socialists are probably so much to be pitied as blamed, for their town has long been the home of a certain permisionaly acive fusionist who is now a member of Local Los Angeles, and they have evidently weakly followed his advice. This member has plenty of time for doing peauti politics, but none for So-cialistic propagands on class lines. He is a member of the Socialist Party only to kill the Socialist Party. Local Los Angeles foolishly listened to hom last fall no Santa Harbara is listening to him now. But Local Los Angeles has reputinted his trackings, and Santa Barbara will yet learn her error.

which separates all mankind into two great classes, the 'making class, the working class, and the taking class,

There is no identity of interests be tween these classes, neither in the work shops nor in politics. Because the interests of these two classes are opposed to each other, the Socialist Party will not enter into an alliance with any political party of the capital-ist class, even if that party call itself a trade union or a labor party. Neither will the Socialist Party accept the endorsement of any party of the capital-ist class, nor will it allow any of its candidates to accept, tacitly or other wies, the nomination or one of any capitalist party. The office, nor to patch up the present cruel and unjust system. They are in cruel and unjust system. They are in politics to lift up the entire working

Men in the middle class, and some workingmen, who see that our indus-trial system is wrong, sometimes join the Socialist Party, bringing with them the ideas that govern the managers of the old capitalist parties, that the mis-sion of a party is to elect its candidates, and that auviting short of a state's prison offense is permissible to attain that end. These men are willing to fuse or make deals with the parties of the capitalists, and when the Socialist Party forbids them to enter into any alliance with the capitalistic parties and expels them when they do they call it a party of ignorant irre

In Lazerne County a lawyer, D. O. Coughlin, joined the Socialist Party. He has spoken for it and contributed liberally to its funds. Because he was a lawyer he was nominated by the So-ciniist Party of Luzerne County for District Attorney. After he was nominated by the Socialist Party be was naminated by the Citisons' and Prohibition parties. This was known to the County Committee of the Socialist Party of Luserne County. At did nothing to make D. O. Coughlin decline the nomination of the capitalist parties that call themselves Citizens' and Prohibition party.

By accident the State Committee of the Socialist Party found out that Coughlin had tacitly accupted the nominations of the Citizens' and Pro-hibition parties. It immediately notified the County Committee of Luzerne County to order D. O. Coughlin to decline the nomination of the Socialist Party or the nominations of the Citi-zens' and Prohibition parties, and that if he did not decline the numination of the Citizens' and Prohibition parties to take his name off the Socialist ticket and have him expelled from the Social ist Party for violating its laws, which forbid compromise or fusion with capitalist parties.

The County Committee of Luxerne County refused to conform to the laws of the Socialist Party. It said it did not want to do anything to offend de-fenders of capitalism in the Citizens' and Prohibition parties; that it be-lieved that Coughlin would get enough votes from these capitalist parties to elect him. The State Committee made public in the party and labor press its repudiation of Coughlin as a candidate of the Socialist Party. Because the Luzerne County Committee would not act, and as the State Committee only heard about ten days before election of the tacit alliance the Luzerne Cour ty Committees had made with the Citizens' and Prohibition parties there was not time for it to take legal steps, to have the court strike Coughlin's name from the Socialist Party's ticket,

To the credit of the voters of Luzerne County be it said that they refused to vote for a man who sacri-ficed principle to catch votes. Cough lin received the lowest vote of any candidate whose name was on the Socialist thekat.

The State Committee of the Socialist Party has revoked the charter of the Luzerne County Committee, and has preferred charges in the locals to which the members of it belong against them for violating the party's laws, and demanded that the guilty ones shall be expelled.

HE STIRRED UP THE

. "LOVERS OF MATURE"

From Mystle, Conn., where our good New York comrade, H. P. Clarke, spent his summer—and spent it in rood service for the cause comes an amusing story of the mild scrape into which his zest led him and the stir hi unwittingly made.

Observing that various rocks and ledges in the neighborhood were adorned with legends describing the virtues of sundry patent medicines. breakfast foods, and other commod ties, he conceived the plan of adver-tising ideas—as Madden has it—in the same manner. So he sailled forth one and manner. MANHATTAN AND BRONX.

Official Convess. Shows that Social Demogratic Party Gains 1,476 Votes en State Ticket-S. L. P. Loses 1,787.

The canvass of the vote cast in New York County, comprising the boroughs of Maniattan and the Broux of New York City, has been completed and shows a small but general increase for the Social Democratic Party and a heavy and equally general loss for the As was to be expected, the caudidates for Major on both tickqts run somewhat behind, showing the presence of a considerable number rs who, while declaring in a gen cral way for Socialism, were yet a sidered it of prime immediate interest either to turn out Reformer Low or to keep out the Tammany McClellan. Dr. Furman, at the head of the Social Democratic city ticket, however, not only polls 75 per cent, more votes than did our candidate for the same office in the last proceding city election, but makes a gain over our last year's guisemutorial vote. Comparing the rate for the head of the state ticket r and this, we have a gain of

has a vote 30 per cent, smaller than | 324 he had in a similar position last year, emailer even than that cast for the head of his city ficket in 1901. The S. L. P. candidate for Mayor fares atili worse. The S. L. P. vote is less solid than that of the Social Democantic Party, the difference between De Leon's vote and Runter's being over 11 per cent., while the difference between Matchett's and Furman's b only a little over 8 per cent.

The canvass for the other three counties and boroughs of the city is not yet done, but it is probable that favorable to the Social Democratic

Socialist Vote, Which Was Quadruples Last Year, Goes Back to Two and a Half Times the Former Figure.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 13.—The official canvass gives the Socialist Party 13.245 votes in the state, with 1,080 for the S. L. P. (Anti-De Leon). In 1900 the Socialist Party had 4,831 in the state and the S. L. P. 2.986.

In 1902 the Socialist Party had 21,910 and the S. L. P. had 5,157. Our extraordinary increase last year—more time quadrupling the vote—was recognized as being largely due to the excitement aroused by the coal striks and the indignation caused by the mine owners' arrogance. Pully balf of the increase was in the anthra cite field—Luzerne, Carbon, Schuylkili, and Montgomery counties—and it is here and in Eric County that most of our losses come this year. In these regions we still hold a part, but only a part of the new vote attracted to our standard last year. In Philadel phia we make a large gain. In many counties, also, where heretofore the Socialist movement has had little or no foothold, we gain encouragingly, Although not altogether unexpected. the result is, of course, by no means pleasing. It should, however, atimu-late the courseles to strenuous and systematic effort during the coming year to build up, on the basis repre-cented by 13,245 voters scattered over every county of the state, a movement that shall in 1996 uclipue our achievement of last year.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.-In Allegheny County, the stronghold of the S. L. P., we increased our vote from 528 votes in 1902 to 1,075 this year, while the S. L. P. vote fell from 1,231 to 208. Republicans, 7 for the Democrats, and

NEW JERSEY GAINS.

CAMDEN, N. J., Bov. 18.—The offi-cial count gives us 872 votes, instead of 350, as reported last week. This is a gain of 181 in a year, or about 94

FOLSOM, N. J., Nov. 14.-The County Clerk reports that the Socialist Party has 72 votes for its Assembly candidates and 73 for its candidate for Coroner in Atlantic County. This is the first time we have had a county ticket here. Last year we had 24 votes in the county for our candidate for Congress.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 17.—The

oficial canvass gives the Associably candidates of the Socialist Party in Hudson County 1,900 votes, as against 1.703 last year. The S. L. P. vote falls from 973 to 775.

There was no state election in New

Extensive Wage Outs, Shut-Bowns, and Reductions of Working Force in Iron, Steel, Textile, and Railroad Industries-The Vicious Circle in Which Capitalism Mores.

There is every reason to believe that we are already entering upon one of those periods of "hard times" which, under the capitalist system, regularly alternate with periods of "prosperity." The October record of business failures, wage reductions, shutting of mills and factories, and discharging or tories, and discharging or laying-off of large numbers of men where actual shut-down did not take place was commented on last week. So far the November record is still worse. We bring together below some of the principal announcements of the sort for the past week. It seems cer-tain that this winter will see more men valuly begging for work than any year since 1803; nor are we cer-tain that this depression will not ex-ceed the last one, just as the last few years have been years of unprece-dented prosperity from the capitalist point of view.

Cotton-Mill Wages Cut.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 11.-No. tices were posted in the cotton mills of this city this afternoon, announcing a general reduction of 10 per cent. in wages, to take effect Nov. 23, About 30,000 employees are affected.

Whether the reduction will be resisted by the operatives cannot be stated at this time. It is thought that no general strike will be ordered here at this time, for the reason that many of the manufacturers have large stocks of goods on hand, which would make a strike of little consequence to

Some of the traesurers have also been considering a further curtail-ment, and it is possible that some of the mills will stop their machinery, regardless of the lowering of the cost of production which would follow a cut in the payroll. ROSTON Mass Nor 11 -In Taurton the Corr Manufacturing Company has announced a 10 per cent. reduction of wares.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 13 .-From a trustworthy source it is learned that wages in the local cotton nills will be cut to meet the reduction to be made in Fall River. The Manufacturers' Union has not yet been called to act on the matter, but a meeting will be held before long, and when it is held the cut is certain to be nut into effect. Only one cloth milt of the mill owners consider the offi-look ro discouraging that they would not object to a shut-down. The cotton mills here employ about 10,000 hands. PROVIDENCE, R.R. Wage reduction is unquestionably a matter that has to be faced. The reduction, which so far as known has not been fully decided upon, can be placed approximately at 10 per cent., this covering the entire payroli.

It was explained that the reduction of 10 per cent. does not mean a da slicing off of 10 per cent. of the daily wages of the employees of a manufac-turing concern. A straight reduction of 10 per cent. on the payrol of the United States Steel Corporation would necessitate a cutting out of $12,000,-000. The immediate cause of the shut-down was the strike at midnight of 380 members of the Amaigamated Association of Ironworkers. hundred men employed at the Demm-ler plant of the American Tin Plate Company went on strike to-day, owing to the cut of wages. The plant, which is operated by non-union men, and which is one of the mills under the centrol of the United States Steel Corporation, is included in the wage re-duction proceedings. The notice of the cut in wages, which is about 20 per cent, lower than the employees are now receiving, was quite a surprise. PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., Nov. 17.— About 800 men have been rendered idle by the closing of the steel plant and several other departments operated by the Phoenix Iron Company Those remaining at work suffered reduction in wages of 5 per cent.

Cool Brutality.

The New York "Evening Post" said last Saturday, in an authoritative ar-ticle on the plans of the Steel Trust:

"The present plan of the Corpora tion is to reduce wages $20,000,000.
With the business in its present condition, this will not present any difficulties of consequence, for men would rather work than go bungry, and THE WINTER SEASON OFFERS PHOR INDUCEMENTS FOR FORAGE."

The cool brutality of this calculation upon the needs and sufferings of the working class is a whole sermon of class-consciousness in liself. But what-ever feeling of repulsion the brutality of the statement may cause, it is well to recognize that it is a statement of plain "trufh: "Sentiment counts for very liftle in economics, theoretical or practical.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Nov. 14.-In structions were received by the Wamorning to reduce the weeking force in per cent. Between sixty-five and eighty men were dismissed from the service this evening.

What It Mount

What is going on in these three great industries is going on in mearly all other industries to a greater or less extent. The conditions which cause the reduction are not peculiar to any trades, but are general. Moreover,

There is nothing surprising in the whole matter. It is perfectly normal under the capitalist system, which constantly limits the people's purchasing power while it constant increases their proudctive power. Profit for the capitalist being the sole motive rious question of wage reductions, was made to-day by one of the high offi-cials of the Jones & Laughlin Steel workers.

organized inst June and "has already

The account is, of course, couched in the language of the profes sional; defender of capitalism, by workingmen can easily read between the lines. The "Times" says:

"The American Anti-Boycott Asso-ciation is secret as to the personnel of its membership, but entirely open in respect to-its organization and methods, which was formed as the result of a belief that the boycott as a device of labor warfare was unjustifiable and illegal, and could be made the basis of The Anti-Boycott Association had no quarrel with labor unions, nor did it undertake to choose sides on the is-sues involved in individual contests when the boycott was not called into play. It was specifically determined by the business men who drew up the constitution that the association should not be the ally of the employer rather than the employed, and suits process seeking to recover damages for individuals who have been kept from earning a livelihood by boycotts have given practical demo stration of the purposes in this latter connection." [Indeed they have. It is astonishing how willingly the employers will spend money to prosecute taneously spend money to resist the enforcement of labor laws. No work ingman can fail to recognize the true quality of their "Impartiality"—they are impartially against everything good for the working ciass and impar linlly in favor of everything bad for it.]

"Rome elgiteen months ago the movement started very quietly and with the express understanding that no definite steps should be taken until a membership of 100 was obtained. SAN FRANCISCO LABOR PARTY.

he Fight Made on Glass-Consolous Lines, Against the Will of Schmitz and His Lieutenants-Socialist Vote Grows, in Spite of Ail.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.-With the re-election of Eugene E. Schmitz Mayor of Sau Francisco last Tuesday one of the strangest political campuign ever fought came to a close. M Schmitz won his victory on a labor ticket without the help of a single newspaper, and opposed from the out set by every labor leader worth consid ering out of the realm of graft. The victory was also noticeable for the fact that it was fought out on class lines. Class consciousness was stuffed down the throats of Mr. .Schmits and till their gorge rose at it. The voters were warned that hell was only half a step away if their votes should be dominated by their class feeling—es pecially if working class feeling Strange as it may seem, no one was more convinced of this than Mr. Schmits himself, and he never failed during the entire campaign not only to combat the need for class conscious-ness, but also to repudiate the men and events that set him astride the political hobby-horse two years ago.

Of the leaders who were prominen in the unions and aided in the firs Schmits campaign, not one raised a voice for the Mayor this year. What unions that participated in the first Labor party convention, only sixteen responded to the invitation to sit in the last convention and renominate the successful candidate.

With all these opposing factors, Mr. Schmitz won by a plurality over his Republican competitor of 0.495 votes. His Democratic opponent was nowhere, and has been whining about it ever since.

Under such circumstances it might be supposed that victory went to the most worthy, the brainlest, the cleverest, the most magnetic of the three candidates. Without paying the Re-publican and Democratic candidates any compliment worth considering, this is not true. Mr. Schmitz is the personification of mediocrity. Stu-pidity gets on its hind legs and yawns every time he opens his mouth.

To get at the cause of the victory one must needs go back to the first campaign. The writer was edit r of "Advance," at that time the only Socialist paper in San Francisco, and was in a position 'o study the Labor party during its t wind of incubation.

Independent political action by the unions was a foregone conclusion after the teamsters' strike. This others the teamsters' strike. naw as well as the Socialists. These others were not hampered by th however, and a rush began for en trance into the labor organizations The man who afterwards dominated the convention, John S. Parry, in pub-lic life a cigar dealer, in private life understudy to a hog, got into the Bridge Builders' Union on the strength of a few mouths' work at the trade eight years before.

Mr. Parry, with his fellow conspin utors, including Abe Ruef, who is in reality the Mayor of San Francisco, and who aimed to be a Republican boss, was repudiated by the decent element of the Republican party at the primary election a few weeks before. It is also a well-known fact that Mr. Schmitz could not sign the petition to get the Labor party on the official bal-lot, as he had voted for the Abe Ruel Republican Primary League, and this in face of the fact that the call was out for the Labor party convention when the primaries were held, and a warning issued to the friends of labor to withhold their votes.

Back of Abe Ruef and the Repub lican Primary League was John D. Spreckels, owner of the San Francisco "Call," and one of the most consistent opponents of labor on the Coast. This connection—partnership, it might be called—between Ruef and Spreckels still continues. When the United Re-the Republican nomination for his proants amounting in value to between tigs, Mr. Schmitz. Perhaps it was part of the plot to refuse the Labor "For the result of these suits great Mayor the Republican nomination. At any rate, the real motive underlying the various contertion acts of the Re-publican leaders begon to appear after the Republican convention refused to make the nomination. The refusal was couched in terms de cidedly unfavorable to the working class. There was a fine bit of jugglery evident here, as Mr. Schmitz and the working class were confounded. Following on the beels of the insult which was in reality a challenge, came a great flare in the Republican papers and class consciousness became keynote of the campaign.

The papers covered the Labor candidate with their slime, and the un'on gulped him down. It was not an easy task at first, for there was more than an undeapurrent of suspicion among the workers. Intuitively they felt that they were being tricked. They were sullen, in some cases victous. But finally, through the continual harping of the capitalist class-conscious publica-tions, their open challenge to make the class struggle an issue, and the judilous placing of a few bribes, in the shape of promises of a commissioner-ship, to be acrambled for after the elec-tion by certain officers of the Labor Council, the one hundred and eighty odd unions that had refrained from odd unions that had retrained riom sending delegates to the second Selm to convention finally took the Mayor into their internal economy. Whether they shall eventually digest him, is a matter for further speculation.

At any rate, the capitalist press had its way, and the campaign became a struggle between oatensible representa-tion of the working class and frank representation of the capitalist class To get this started was the dominan To get this started was the command thought of the men who engineered the deal. A test was to be made of the strength of the proletariat in Ren Franch and its nowace of crystallization ciaco and its powers of crysts during a campaign when sothing should be done to cover up the fact that a class struggle existed in the po-litical field as well-as in the economic field. There could be no loss either way. So infatuated was Mr. Crocker with his badge of re-spectability that he wore it "South of the Slot," when he went to make a speech to the men who toll with their

The plot was more of a success than the manipulators anticipated. John D. Spreckels was led to believe that a campaign fought out on class-conscious lines would result in defeat for the working class. There is no denying that there was class feeling during the campaign. There is no denying that working class opposition can be crystallized, and there is no denying that when there is class feeling and any-thing like crystallization takes place in the working class, the capitalist class stands only a shred of a chance lators were students of sociology, they might rest for a time with the information they possess; but, being poli-ticians, there is a possibility that a further test will be made.

To get a grasp of the next test, also thoroughly understand the recent campaign, it would be necessary to point out a number of subsidiary plots knifing of old political enemies and the dethronement of old political kings. This space will not permit. However, a consideration of the personal equation which always enters into such matters will allow one to work out the chief factors, after those mentioned, himself. It may be taken for granted, as an example, that Schmitz, lending himself to the test working class spirit, did not shut his even to the possibility of re-election. In the same way the overweening conceit of Abe Ruef to become a factor in Re-publican politics made him work for

The next test will relate to the state campaign. It is on the program that Mr. Schmitz, if he does not get the Republican nomination, will run for Governor on a Labor ticket, under control, as usual, of Mr. Abe Ruef, Republican bosa. A strike in San Francisco that will give the Mayor an opportunity to show himself, is part of the program, In fact, a strike was on the program to carry His Honor to further bonors during the recent campaign. That, however, was found unnecessary, as ufficient class feeling was stirred up by the newspapers. commentary here on the influence of the press. It should not be lost sight of that Mr. Schmitz won his fight with every daily paper in San Francisco op-

In all the twistings and turnings of the manipulators of the Union Labor Party, it will be seen that the party, as such; is lost wight of. This is as it abould be. One man can be held in thrail, but a board of supervisors is bound to develop a rebel. That's the reason the candidates for Supervisor on the Labor ticket had their heels trod on by the Socialist nominees. It was nip and tuck between them to see who should be last. True, the saloon interests elected one Supervisor on the La bor ticket, but as he is pledged to the least worthy element in our social life, the Labor people themselves are tempted to repudiate him. None of the other city offices fell to the lot of a Labor

This alone shows not only the fine Italian hand of the manipulator, but also exposes the vicious way in which the people think.

Everything is subordinated in their minds to a personality. Nothing re-mains worth while of a principle, but the man who stands for it, and if he does not stand, well, they seldom care. Not all the people are swayed by their emotions and confound principle and the man, however. A little group held together in San Francisco during the campaign and exposed the work of the bosses. Despite the hurrah and politics, did not lose its head over this mouthing of other people's phrases. The Socialist Party was last when the rotes were counted, but the work it did will do much towards putting it first when the mists clear a the minds of the people. Never in the history of the movement in San Francisco has there a season of greater harmony. This is accounted for by the fact that the job-chasers and grafters, together with their middle-class friends, have all their energies taken up helping Mr. Schmitz hoodwink the workers. Of course, the pay in the Schmitz camp is better than with us. It must be taken for granted, then, that as long as the pay is forthcoming they will stay there.

WHAT WEAPONS FOR THE WAR?

By John Spargo.

Stated plainly, the position of the i ridged, impaired, or millified by the stated painty, the position of the "labor leader" who persuades his followers in the union to refrain from political organization and action, who cries "Ne politics in the union!" is aualagous to that of a general in the United States army who should be foolish enough, or false enough, to say to his men while engaged in battle. Here, we will not use our most medern and effective equipments against this enemy. Our Mausers, Krag-Jorgeneen rifles, machine guns, smokeless powder, and other effective equip-ments of scientific warfare, we will send over to the enemy, and we ourscives will use the spears, clubs, flint-locks and hows and arrows of past times." Whatever the reason for his conduct, whether ignorance or treach-ery, such a General would not be toler-ated for a single moment. Need I attempt to draw the parallel —Is it not clear enough? I think so. There is not the slightest room for questioning the assertion that the most offective blows ever struck at us by the master class have been in the last analysis political in their character. Bullets and bayomets and policemen's clubs; injunctions and Taff Vale de-cisions are, as we have already seen, directly traceable to the fact that the master class controls the government of whose power these things are mani-They are the crystalization of the votes of the citizens. Since we have it in our power to retain these wenpons in the hands of our own class instead of voting them away to our masters, is it not self-evident that they who urge us not to refrain from voting them away, not to unite to retain them for our own purposes, are acting just exactly as the foolish or treacherous army officer of our imagination? And whether they be foolish or corrupt, their counsel is none the less opposed to the best interests, of the unions.

What Shall We Do, Mr. Mitchell?

Mr. John Mitchell, in his lately pub "Organized Labor." minkes only a passing reference to the Taff Vale case, and does not even re-fer to the suits based upon that deci-tion in this country. But he does refer in strong terms to the use of inagainst trade unious as the injunction in labor disputes. By means of it trade unionists have been prohibited under severe penalties from doing what they had a legal right to do, and have been specifically directed to do what they had a legal right not to do. It is difficult to speak in measured tones or moderate language of the awagery and venom with which unions have been assalled by the injunction, and to the working classes, as to all fair-minded men, it seams little less than a crime to conduce or tolerate it."

This is strong language, but who still say that it is too strong when we remember the many injunctaons which have been showered upon us since the famous Deba case brought this new and terrible weapon into requisition? Members of the Cigarmakers' Union have been enjoined in New York City even from approaching the employers against whom they were striking with a view to arranging a peaceable settlement. Understand, there was no sugrestion of a breach of the peace actual er intended. They were also enjoined from publishing their grisvances, if such publication should vex the employers or make them uneasy! In the great steel strike of two years ago the members of the Amsignmented Association of Iron and Steel Workers were enjoined from oven discussing the matter peaceably with the men who were at work. In the case of the members of the International Typograph-leal Union in the strike against the "Buffalo Express," the strikers were "Buffalo Express." the strikers were enjoined from boycotting, and, in free America." mind you, from discussing the strike or talking about the paper in any way which might be construed as against the paper. If one of strued as against the paper. If one of the strikers advised a friend "not to buy a scal paper," he was liable under the terms of that injunction. In the ame way, the members of the Typo-graphical Union, on the application of the "New York Sun," were enjoined from, among other things, publishing their side of the controversy as an ar-gument why persons friendly to labor should not advertise in a naper hostile should not advertise in a paper hostile bera." He refers to them in his book. But what does he advise us to do in the matter? Why, we must "agitate ceaselessly against the abomination." must be urged to see the of these injunctions, so that they may legislate against the cvit. And we must try likewise to so in-fluence the judiciary, because judges will probably be ready enough to declare such legislation "unconstitution-al," as was the case in West Virginia, the law passed in 1898, limiting the sight to issue injunctions was unconstitutional, because the legislature had no right to attempt to restrain the Mr. Mitchell, in his book from which i

But if our powers of persuasion fall, we do not succeed in dur evangelical crisade to convert them, what then? Why, says Mr. Mitchell, perhaps and could not obtain a majority, and could not therefore, enforce its "through the willingness of men to go to jail in this good cause, the courts themselves will come to an understanding of the matter. . . in which they have invaded the liberties of the people." And again: "It is better that half the workingmen of the working class. In such the people." And again: "It is better that half the workingmen of the working class. In such the people." TO BAY WHAT WHAT WE WANT.

TO BAY WHAT WHAT WE WANT.

WANT. (2.) That Mr. Mitchell himself would not for a morner admit the validity of the excuse from a man who abound give similar reasons for not that purpose.

In all such periods of depression, too,

This is Mr. Mitchell's position: the unions may go on voting for the old parties, they may elect anybody to of-fice, no matter how hostile to labor; everything will be all right if they only send, after they have elected them, committees and delegations enough to show them the "iniquity" of doing the very things they intended to do when they sought office—and stand ready to go to jail should they fall in that mission!

Mr. Gompers and the A. F. of L.

This, too, is the position of Mr. Gom-pers and the American Federation of Labor. How tragic the failure of that policy, how grim the farce of "influencing legislators," let the report of President Gompers to the A. F, of L. Convention at Boston attest. The A. F. of L. sought (once more!) to get an eight hour bill adopted by the Fifty-seventh Congress—and falled. It sought to get as anti-injunction law enected. It passed the House of Rep-resentatives (of course) but the Senate Committee on Judiciary changed it to a pro-injunction bill. There was no law upon the Federal Government's statute books or on any of the statute statute books or on any books of the state governments, mak-ing injunctions in trade disputes spe-ling injunctions of trade disputes spe-ling injunctions of the United States Sencifically legal. The United States S ate Committee on Judiciary listened to the pleadings of the A. F. of L. that a law might be enacted making the issuauce of injunctions in labor disputes specifically illegal, and then—well, they just did the opposite! They brought forward a bill to make it legal. All that even Mr. Gompers can claim that the A. F. of L. has done by the most humiliating "lobbying" in Congress is to have thwarted attempts to repeal existing laws for the protec-tion of seamen. They are just marking time.

Will the workers learn from the wearying monotony of these reports of Failure' Failure! Failure! year after year, their real significance? If so, well. For this is the real significance of these reports—that we are "in poli-tics" now! We have always been "in politics." There never was a time when we had more need to realize how hollow and false is the cry, "No poli-tics in the union!" WE ARE IN POL-ITICS NOW-BUT UPON OUR KNEES GROVELLING AND SUP-PLICATING OUR MASTERS, OR THE HIRELINGS OF OUR MAS-TERS, TO DO FOR US WHAT THEY HAVE NO INTENTION OF DOING, AND WHAT WE COULD DO OUR-SELVES.

The Socialist Position

Our position as Socialists in the mons is, simply, that instead of electing to power the members of the class against which we are fighting, or men pledged to serve the interests of that class, we should elect men from our own ranks to serve our interests-men whose interests are ours, and who will, for that reason, need no "conversion." The Socialist Party is therefore a working-class party, supported by the contributions of workingmen and man-aged by them, aiming at the conquest of the powers of government for the purpose of securing the full product of their toil through the establishment of a social system in which the wealth of the nation shall belong to the useful producing class instead of to a useless idle class, as now. THE SOCIALIST SAYS THAT WE SHOULD USE ALL AVAILABLE WEAPONS IN OUR STRUGGLE. BUT THE NON-SO-CIALIST BAYS THAT WE SHOULD USE ANY AND ALL WEAPONS EX-CEPT THE BALLOT-THE MOST TOWERFUL AND EFFICIENT WEAPON OF ALL in 1902, and many others which might be named. How Socialist judges act in similar matters is shown by the recent decision of Judge Richardson, a member of the Socialist Party, of the State of Washington, who deciared the Eight-Hour Law recently enacted, which capitalists tried to overthrow, to be perfectly valid and constitutional. The A. F. of I., and other trade union bodies, are working bard to get an Eight-Hour Law placed on the fed-eral statute books. If they succeed in that it is almost certain to be wiped out with the judicial sponge of unconstitutionality. The Socialist wants men of the working class to enact laws for the benefit of the working class and to interpret them so that they shall accomplish the objects for which they were designed. The Guarties.

To every member of a trade union, then, this question inevitably comes: "Why should we not use our strongest courts which were coordinate with itself.
But if our powers of persuasion fail,
"even if it secured the adherence of "even if it accured the adherence of every organized worker in the United States, would not obtain a majority, and could not, therefore, enforce its

eay: "You want to accomplish certa n results in connection with our craft, but you cannot, because you cannot hope to get all the men to join; therefore I will not join." Mr. Mitchell has met that very man; so have we all. That is begging the question, as Mr. Mitchell well knows. (2.) I would point out to Mr. Mitchell that there are not a few districts in which the vote of organized labor would undoubted; be sufficient to elect. There are mit ing districts, for example, in Peonsylvania and eisewhere, in which the union vote, if solidly cast, would undoubtedly be sufficient to carry any election, and the prosence of at least a group of working-class representatives in Congress and almost every Such groups could accomplish more for the workers than any conceivable amount of lobbying could do. (4.) There are many thousands of workingnen outside of the unions, men who for various reasons, cannot be got into the organisations, but who would vote with a party of their own class which made the problems of their lives its only "insues." Such a party is the So-cialist Party, as we have seen. No honest and intelligent workingman can read its platform candidly without feeling the force and absolute validity of this claim. And no amount of timed sophistry, diabed up in the guise of "conversatism," can obscure the fact that the union man who votes against that narty, who for any reason votes for candidates of the old parties, is a political scab.

Shall There Be Bloodshed?

At this time there are peculiar and urgent reasons why we should insist upon a recognition of the stern truth that either this battle which we are waging will be decided by our ballots or it will be decided by the enemy's I say there are pecuiar and urgent us why this should be insisted on What are those reasons? Now, I am not, I hope, an alarmist or "cal-smitr bowler." And yet it is imperafive, if progress is to be made, that we fave frankly and fearlessly whatever lies before us, no matter what it may be. Cassaudra's prophecies were not pleasant to dwell upon, and she herself was derided because of them, but they were abundantly fulfilled never theless. It seems to me, then, useless and positively daugerous to attempt to ignore the fact that all the signs of the present time portend a coming period of far-reaching industrial de-pression, fraught with the most menatura consequences to the working

Mr. Gompers sees this, In his report to the A. F. of L. Convention at Boston he said: "There are indications that the era of industrial activity which we have enjoyed during th past few years has reached its flood-tide, in that there is now somewhat of a reaction. Already we see some con-traction of industry by which work-men have been rendered idle." That Mr. Gompers is apréhensive of serious results, may be inferred from the lengthy argument which he makes fol-lowing this utterance, to convince the employers of the unwisdom of reduc ing the wages of their employes as a means of staving off some of the worst features of the reaction. He naively says at the end of his rather pretentious argument: "I do not know to what extent our declarations and auggestions may influence employers suggestions may influence employers generally in the effort to dissuade them from pursuing the unwise and uneconomic failacy of wage reductions." If Mr. Gompers does not know there are plenty of less pretentious men in the trade union movement who have read the history of the next to much better. the history of the past to much better advantage, they can enlighten Mr. Gompers and dispel any idea he may entertain of influencing them at all.

WOULD BE THE SAME. WOULD BE THE SAME.

Mr. O'Connell, President of the International Association of Machinists, also sees the dread spectre of industrial depression approaching, but, unlike Mr. Gompers, he does not talk about the possibility of "influencing" about the possibility of "influencing" the employers. Instead of this, he advises his men to seek shelter as best they may. In a recent circular letter to the local unions of the I. A. M., be urges that the Westinghouse works dispute, and all other disputes in which members of the association are involved, be settled immediately upon almost any terms, and that no further disputes be entered into for the pres-ent. Mr. O'Connell gives the same reasons as Mr. Gompers. Trade is stack-ening; the unemployed army is in-creasing in numbers, and wages are already on the dewn grade. I do not attack Mr. O'Conneil's position in this respect: on the contrary, it seems to be a perfectly sound position for him to take. It is well that the limitations of the trade union should thus be seen and admitted by its leaders.

On Saturday, Nov. 21, an explosion took place in the Vindicator mine near Cripple Creek, in which the superintendent and a miner, the only persons in that part of the mine at the time, were killed. The effect of the explosion was so great that, we are told, it took a full hour before anyone could get to the place where it occurred.

When the "investigators" got there, however, it did not take them long to explain the whole affair. It seems likely that they could as easily have explained it from company beadquarers an hour before the explosion took place,

It is a characteristic of the new made capitalist in the social world to care little for the proprieties, and so it was that there was only a trifling attempt at concealment throughout this plot. Everyone who is able to see through a barrel with the bottom out knews that the "revolution" in Pann-ma was organised, financed, directed and fought (in so far as there was any fighting) by and for the little cliq of commercial interests who need a new Panama canal and who are looking for the fat contracts that vill accompany its construction. The pational government of any other country would have waited a few months, or years, before rushing to the aid and comfort of this gang of fillbusters. But what was the use of a strennous president if he would not act when you needed him. So it was that Teddy at once responded when the trust appealed and granted recog-nition of a "government" which had its real seat in New York and its territory on the Isthmus.—A. M. CONVENTION

teastionary Wing Came This Time Resalved to Grush the Socialist Side-A Glear Test of Strength Results-For Another Year the Federation Wil Follow Its Antiquated Policy,

The question of a declaration for 80 cialism came to a vote in the American Federation of Labor convention on Wednesday, Nov. 18-or, to speak more correctly, the adverse report of the committee on all the Socialist reso lutions came to a vote on that day.

President Gompers had the last word and, of course, spoke in absolute opposition to any declaration for So-cialism. In general terms he accused the Socialists of "very many acts of treachery to the trade union move-ment," but did not attempt to specify an instance of such treachery. held that Socialists who are also unionists are inconsistent because they say that the cost of living rises along with the rise of wages and that the increase of wages through the methods of trade unionism is not, therefore, a benefit to the workingmen. He held that "with the constant increase of wages, decade by decade, there is a constant increase in the purchasing power of wages."

John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers spoke in opposition to So-cialism in the trade unions. He "rec-ognized the right of every man to do as he pleases." He "took it that the wage-earners of this country are able to determine for themselves to what political party they shall belong and for what political candidates they shall cast their votes" and this seemed to him a sufficient reason why they should not discuss in their class organizations what party or candidate to support.

President Shaffer of the Amalga-mated Steel Workers declared himself against Socialism of any nort. He stood for "industrial peace." He also stated that when his vote was cast for the Secialist resolution at last year's convention, it was done by mistake.

On roll-call the committee report against the adoption of any of the So-cialist resolutions was carried by a rote of 11,282 to 2,145.

The lines were undoubtedly more closely drawn in this convention than ever before and the vote more nearly indicative of the true state of feeling on the question. It has happened ome previous conventions that the ad nittedly superior ability of the Social ist champions and the lack of organ ized preparation on the opposing side has given them a great advantage. This year, as was evident from President Gompers' utterances and from press discussions, it was resolved to marshal all the forces that the con servative wing could influence to crush the Socialist advocates. The prepara-tions were carefully made and well carried out, with the result that we can now say with assurance that about one-sixth of the forces represented in the Federation stand unre ervedly on the Socialist side. Much of the convention's time was occupied with jurisdiction sputes, but it is safe to say that no progress was made toward their settlement.

Neither was anything done toward meeting the new dangers and difficul-ties raised by the great growth of em-ployers' organizations and their increased use of the powers of the law against the workers. Fresident Gompers and the rest of the conservative administration were re-elected and were given authority to continue the policy of begging for annual report after another.

New York Central Federated Union Adopts Resolution as Preliminary to such a Step.

After listening to addresses by the two British fraternal delegates to the Federation convention-William Mul-lin, who advocated independent politilin, who advocated independent politi-cal action by trade unionists, and James O'Grady, who spoke as an avowed Socialist-the New York Central Federated Union last Sunday adopted a motion offered by Delegate Hand of the Carriage and Wagon Lakers, providing for the appointment of a committee consisting of five So cialists, five Democrats, and five Replatform as a basis for independent political action.

Just what this action means and what will come of it remains to be seen. The committee will probably be named this Sunday. It must be conaldered that the motion was carried in a moment of enthusiasm and that many of those who voted for it may healtate to follow up the course proposed. Developments will be watched with interest.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 24.-"Shoot to hit" is the order given out to the large numbers of police who accompany such cars as the City Railway Company succeeds in getting over its lines.

The workingmen of Chicago have not yet learned to vote so as to "hit" the capitalist class that keeps them in poverty, and so it is not to be won-dered at that the power of the city government, supported by working-men's thoughtless votes is turned against them, in the shape of police-men's revolvers, when the; are for end to strike against intolerable overwork, underpayment, and abuse. The Board of Aldermen made a 'grand-stand play" in the interests of the street railway company last night, by holding its session under a heavy police guard, under the pretense that the upright legislators of the city were in danger of personal violence from riotous strikers.

With armed officers stationed at the doors and on the floor of the County Chamber, these representatives of the people proceeded to take action look-ing to the extension of the expiring and long-since forfeited franchises of the company whose men are now on strike and promptly suppressed all protests against such action, petitions in favor of municipal ownership, and resolutions for submission of franchise

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 24.-The Le high Valley Coal Company has brought two complaints before the Board of Conciliation set up under the terms of the Anthracite Strike Com-mission's award, alleging that its miners insubordinately insist on taking a haif-day off on pay days and refuse to work on holidays when ordered to do so. This, the company says, is in violation of the decision that the mine owners shall "enforce discipline" upon the mine workers.

This action, taken together with the repudiation of the whole arbitration award by the Liewellyn Mining Company and by Slattery & Co. and the court decision in the former case de claring that the award is not legally oluding on the "operators," as reported last week, is taken to indicate a plan on the part of the mine owners to overthrow the whole modus vivendi established by the Commission, an soon as they get ready for a general wage reduction.

PEONS OF BOTH RACES.

It is significant that the peopage trials in Georgia and Louisiana abthat poor white men as well as negroes are being held in a state of virtual chattel slavery. No better confirms tion could be asked of the Sociation contention that the real question in the South is not a race question, but one of class interest, just as in the North, and that it is the interest of white and black workingmen to stand together as workingmen, not to allow themselves to be divided on color lines enefit of capitalists who impartially exploit them both.

Mr. Turner is an Englishman who has long been active in the labor movement. He recently came to this country in the interest of the international organ zation of labor. "A good brisk little war" is the approved empitalist prescription for industrial depression. It is analogous to the nip of "something bracing" that the imprudent drinker takes in the merning after a spree. Or perhaps it would be nearer right to compare the war treatment for hard times to the use of whiskey as a stimulus in malarial chills. Anybow, the industrial depression is here. A number of United States soldiers mouths at the Scientific School of Yale University to serve as subjects for experimentation by Professor Russell H. Chittenden, who thinks he can de monstrate that it is possible for man to maintain life and working strength on a much smaller quantity of food than is now ordinarily supposed necessary. The capitalists, no doubt, look on expectantly, for if workingmen can be taught or compelled to eat less, of course wages can be reduced proportionately. Yet, alas! such is the relentless Nemesis that pursues the good captains of industry that, if a reduction in the average workingman's expenditure for food would save the capitalists money on the payroll, proportionately would it limit the market for the things the capitalist wishes to sell for profit. Thus, for enpitalism as a whole, it is a case of "be dammed in you do and be damned if you don't." the word "damned" in its strict sense of "doomed." Capitalism is self-doom ed to ultimate failure.

WHO WOULD HAVE THE COR-MER HOUSE?

We are asked to answer this que going to decide who may live in the corner house?" and we do so more answer a whole series of questions that arise in the minds of those ius

How will we decide who may have present safety lies in keeping the the corner house? In other words, how will we decide on the allotment of such special advantages that, in their nature, cannot be shared equally

> We do not pretend to lay down from rules for the future. But this question can well be answered by certain examples drawn from society as it exist to-day. One of the hest of these examples familiar to us is that of a thoroughly unionized printing office, especially a hand-composition office, with a piecework instead of a time system of pay. In such an office there are a thousand and one little problems of the sort, arising out of the nature o the work; some copy is "fat," other copy "lean"; one place in the room is more convenient than another; certain parts of the work are especially objectionable: certain men are cepeciali good at certain kinds of work, which may be work paid for at a specially high rate. These various advantages and disadvantages cannot always be equally distributed and this might be expected to give rise to strife, anyv. and class divisions in miniature with in the shop. Go to an office in which these matters are arranged according to the foreman's caprice or the proprietor's profit and you will invariably find injustice, strife, and envy existing. But go to a thoroughly unionized office, where the men themselves regu late these matters and do it by demoequality, and you will and the minimum of injustice and dissension, and a constant effort on the part of all the men to eliminate them altogether; even those men who are pers of others join in this effort, because it is plainly their interest, in the long rum, so to do, and because each of ence of years an elaborate and flexible system of devices for evening things up; the man who has certain advan tages in one respect must accept some of the unavoidable disadvantages in some other respects; certain especially "fat" copy must be taken in rotation by different men; or, if it is taken reg ularly by one man, he must transfer to the others a share of his "string" and consequently of his disproportionately high pay; and so, by devices too numerous to mention, equality of opportunity is maintained to a remarkable degree. The same port of thing can be found, in varying forms and de grees, in other trades, according to their various conditions and to the power and democratic quality of the organization. This, be it understood, is not a matter of theory, but of actual fact, which anyone may verify who will take the trouble to investigate. What does it show? It shows that where a body of workingmen undertake to regulate their mutual economic relations by democratic methods, they can and do succeed, even under the adverse surthough the men themselves have no consistent general theory of justice and equality, even though their minds are imbued with capitalist ideas and feelings. It is safe to say that these workingman's organizations in their internal workings present the most perfect examples of successful democ racy the world has ever seen.

In a Socialist state, we fully recog nice, there would be advantages and disadvantages that could not be altogether got rid of. The matter of the corner house, or of location in general. work would still be harder, or more uppleasant, or more unwhole dangerons than others. The differences would not be nearly so great as they now are. The preferableness of a corner house to-day is largely due to the fact that landlord rule compels us to stint our windows and air-spaces. have been detailed to spend nine Mining will probably never be as safe or as wholesome an occupation as farming; but science has aiready told us how to avoid the worst dangers to health and life in the mines and only the mine owners' interest prevents us from doing so.

What would we do, then? Recog nising that the work of the miner, at the best, is less attractive than most other work, society would give the miners shorter hours and more holldays, to compensate that disadvantage. Does anyone suppose that the farmers and carpenters and printers and machinists would object to an arrangement io obviously just to the miners and benedicial to society at large? Certainly not, once the power of a possessing and profit-taking class is swept away and with it the all but universal struggle for a livelihood. The corner house or the house con manding an especially pretty view is more desirable than other houses. But we cannot all have the most desirable houses. What then? The man who desired the better house would have to compensate his fellows for the preference in some other way. Hoes anyone suppose that once we are rid of landlords and all other exploiters, rid of the necessity for foul tenements and ugly shantles (which necessity is the poverty of the workers, due to private ownership), does aurone suppose that a body of free and equal men, colowning the means of Indu try cud life, would fall to squabbling and find it impossible to settle on regulations for their use whose equity would command general respect? To lilustrate our present economic system and the way in which it fosters greed and envy and strife, and the So cinlist system and the way it would avoid them: Suppose a table at which n few of the diners claim control of sil the food, taking the best of each course for themselves, then throwing a good part of the remainder to their dogs, not leaving enough even of the tough cuts and dry crusts to satisfy the hunger of the numerous other diners-suppose that these others in to be grateful for every bit they get. We should expect that dinner party to be spoiled by scowls and sneers and ugly words and uncivil snatching and bolting of whatever was in reach, and we should be surprised if it passed off without the hungry fellows upsetting the table and pitching the lords of the feast out at the window. But suppose enough good food on the table for all and a feeling of equality among the diners. Absolute equality of service would not be 'expected; the diners would not all get their soup at the same moment, and some would get tenderer bits of meet than others. But such inconsiderable differences would not prevent all from enjoying the dinhedly served he would only have to hint cratic methods on a basis of perfect at the fact and all the others would be eager to make amends. The differ-man pature as it would work under Suclaitam in, we believe, truly shows want or fear of want are inseparable from capitalism. With their disappearance would disappear those extremes of greed, envy, and spite which are commonly but thoughtlessly alleged to be inherent in human nature and spoken of as obstacles to the practical working of Socialism.

THE GENERAL VOTE ON PRO-PURTIONAL REPRESEN-"TATION.

The party is now about to take a general vote on a proposed amendment lo its national constitution, providing for representation of organized states and territories, in the National Committee in proportion to their dues paying membership, instead of equal representation, as now. The proposttion is so eminently reasonable that we can have little doubt of its being carried. Our National Committee as members has the same weight in the sand members. Of the 20,500 party members indicated by the National Secretary's last monthly report, about 16,000 were in thirteen of the organ ized states and about 4,000 in the other fourteen. Those 4,000 members outvote the 16,000 in the National Committee and have power to force them either to bow to the will of a minority or to resort to the trouble and endure the delay of an appeal to the general vote to overzule it. Such an extreme case has never happened nor do we expect it. It has never happened that the small states were all clearly arraved against the large ones in the l'nited States Senate or the Electoral College: but it does constantly happen in both bodies that the will of the ma-Alority is thwarted through unfairness of representation, and so it is likely to happen with us, more or less disastronsly, if this unfairness is not removed. To put the difficulty in its mildest form, the National Committee cannot command full confidence and respect and therefore cannot, do its work satisfactorily while it continues so very unrepresentative.

In a word, because we believe in inajority rule and equality of rights and powers within the party, we wish and hope to see the amendment carried by a decisive vote.

But semething more than propor tionateness of representation is necessary to make our National Committee a really efficient body. Many of the National Committeemen seem to pay but little attention to the duties of vote taken by that body is announced, we learn that from four to nine or ten of its twenty-seven members have neglected to vote, even on the most important, questions. Only a few of them, it seems, report regularly to their constituencies or appeal to them for guidance. This is a great source of weakness and confusion.

. We would heartily second Comrade Clark's plea, printed in The Worker of Nov. 22, for closer connection between the National Committeenes and the rank and file of their respective states. We have now a large number of party papers, each of them circulating in at least two or three states and several of them reaching over the whole country, through whose columms the representatives of the states can communicate with those to whom they are responsible, and this paper is very willing—as, we are sure, are most in many places declared it unlawful article supplied by Charles R. Martin. of the others-to facilitate such a connection. On the other hand, the comrades should read and in their local meetings discuss questions of moment to the national organization and, by letter or resolution or otherwise, in form their representatives of their accountability.

NEW YORK STATE OBGANISA-

TION. The proposition now being voted on by the party in the state of New York. to remove the west of the State Confmittee from New York City to Rochester, is curious in this respect, that no statement whatever has been made the bargain have done all the work of by the morers to the rank and file of preparing the meal and are expected the party, to set forth their reasons for proposing the change. This is to be regretted. If there is dissatisfaction with the conduct of the present State Committee or with the comrades of the city to whom it is directly responsible, it would have been only just to the members of the State Committee and to their successors (If the proposition is carried) to let them know the exact grounds on which his change is based. Without such a statement, it is to be expected that many comrades will rote in the dark, either opposing the proposition on the principle of "letting well enough alone" or supporting it merely on the ground that New York Uny has had'the bonor long does better. But his practical arguenough.

And in that spiret. by this illustration. Recognized in we have no doubt, the great majority equality of rights and wide-spread of the comrades will vote, and will rots intelligently in proportion as they are definitely and accurately informed as to the good service or the shortcomings of the present State Committee and State Secretary. However this question is decided, there is one matter we would earnestly commend to the attention of the comrades throughout the state-the employment of a paid secretary to give his whole time to the work. The amount of work that Comrade Slobodin has been able to do for the party in the hours left from his daily occupation commands the admiration of all who are acquainted with the facts. But neither for lift nor for any man is it possible in evenings and holidays to do the work that ought to be done by the chief executive officer of the party in this great state, with its two thousand dues-paying members already enrolled, its 32,000 votes, and its mormous opportunities for further ornow organized is a miniature copy of ganization and propaganda. THE PYLE AND COUGHLIN APPAIRS.

We do not find anything new in the letters from Dr. Pyle of Toledo and J. G. Roth of Wilkes-Barre which, to avoid any suspicion of unfairness, we nevertheless print this week-nothing new, unless it be a fuller exhibition of their utter failure to understand the fundamental principles of Socialism.

Dr. Prie has made the -- to himstartling discovery that the Socialist Party is "in organized rebellion against the sovereignty of the state." He is to be congratulated, though he has been slow in learning so elementary a truth. Yes, the Socialist Party is in organised rebellion against the whole system of capitalism, of which the state, in its present form, with its coexistent brutality and hypocrisy, is one of the chief wenpons. Our rebellion is a peaceful one and will continue so to be to the day of its victory, if we have our choice. Nor is that the only, nor the chief, difference between the Socialist position and that of the Annichists (on which subject we suggest to Dr. Pyle a careful reading of Piechanull's excellent little buck); but it is not necessary here to discuss the relations of Socialism and Anarchism, for tast is not the issue. The issue is between revolutionary Socialism and some sort of reform that Dr. Pyle evidently hopes to get through bourgeois agencies. Socialists are just as truly in organ their office. Whenever the result of & | ixed rebellion against the state to-day as Adams and Hancock and Franklin were in the years preceding 1770 or as Hampdon and Pym and Ellot and Milton were in the years preceding 1640-or, to come to a later instance. as Phillips and Lovejoy and Garrison were in the years before 1860; just as truly in rebellion against the state, and much more deeply and strenuously mo.

The state is just now proposing to deport a man from this country because he explains the class struggle. predicts a general strike, and thinks that in the near future government will become unnecessary. The state has in many places declared it unlawful for anyone to make a -Socialist speech in the open air. The state has excluded many newspapers from the mails for advocating opinions distasteful to capitalists. The state has for workingmen to ask other workbuy scab goods. The state has simulinneously declared it lawful for capitalists to blacklist workingmen. The state in quite within jin jenitimate powers, quite logical and consistent, opinions and desires and hold them to in all these acts. The existing state is founded on capitalism and its function therefore in rebellion against it.

Because, in this country, the inter ests of Socialism-that is, of the working class and, ultimately, of humanity -can be best advanced by no doing. we use the civil and political rights allowed us by the state in carrying on this rebellion and, so far as possible we obey even very unjust and inbuman laws in so doing. But there is a limit to this obedience. We do not worship the Revised Statutes. When the law seeks to suppress the oral or printed propaganda or to interfere with our necessary party discipline-es is the Toledo care, where it would forbid us to expel a member for accepting appointive office from a "non-partisan" capitalist politicianthen ebedience to such law would mean abandonment of our whole pro gram, and would doom us to drift on to the point where violent rebelilon would be unavoidable. Comrade Roth makes less preten to philosophical argument and so far ment is very weak. He' has really nothing to add to the former plea that Coughlin did not "necept" the Citizens' City or to Rochester should be con- and Prohibitionist andersements, but only passively allowed them to be made. This is too petty a quibble to spend much tak on. It is on a par with the conventional pretance of oldparty politicians of never seeking a nomination, even of repeatedly declining it in advance, and then allowing it to be "forced upon them for the good of the party." Socialists cannot afford to quibble. The average voter, seeing à man allowing his name to appear on the ticket of a certain party, infers and has a right to infer that he represenis that party. It is safe to say that not one voter in ten saw the "volun tary statement to the press," on which so much stress is laid; but they all saw a certain man figuring as candidate of the Socialist Party and of two other parties. They had a good right t make just such an inference as they would if they saw one name on both the Republican and the Democratic tickets. That they did make some such inference is indicated by the fact that Coughiin ran behind all our other candidates. It pays to be, not only honest, but scrupulously honest-even to the point of being "unnecessarily offensive" to a certain type of Citizen politicians. It pays in the long run and it even pays at the moment.

We are glad to know that the Na tional Quorum has formally approved the action of the Pennsylvania State Committee in taking disciplinary action against the Luzerne County Committee in this matter and if that County Committee still doubts whether the party at large disapprove its course, let it but appeal to the gen eral vote in Pennsylvania and then, if necessary, in the nation.

By a regrettable negligence on the part of the editor, the signature of the writer, J. J. fit is the policy of The Worker to give as much space as can nossibly be afforded to those comrades who oppose its editorial attitude. We think it a good policy. If they are right, we may learn from them. If they are wrong-well, there is a saying about giving plenty of rope as an encourage ment to snicide. At any rate, we do not wish any comrades whose action: we condemn to have the slightest grounds for saving that they have been condemned unheard. Accordingly, we here present a letter from Dr. Pyle of Toledo, O., whose case we discussed in our sissues of Oct. 25 and Nov. 8, and from J. G. Roth of the County Committee of Luxerne County, Pa., whose conduct in the Coughlin affair we commented upon in our is sue of Nov. 15. We do not see that either of these letters ailds anything of moment to the facts and arguments already presented, but some may think otherwise, so we cheerfully concede them the benefit of the doubt. Our comment will be found in another columb.-Ed.]

L-THE PYLE CASE.

To the Editor of The Worker:recognition of the past policy of the Socialist Party inviting open discus-sion of questions regarding the Secialist movement and realising that your editorial expression respecting my position on Socialist tactics is merely individual opinion, I wish to offer a supplement to further elucidate my contention and to correct some of the misleading inferences that would he drawn from your editorial and the In the first place court when you interpret anything I have said as a threat to mandamus or enjoin the party to be reinstated. have never asked to be reinstated. As to whether I shall ask to be readmitted to toe party Will depend on tirely upon the party's attitude toward the state. The so-called "threat of infounded on capitaliam and its function junction" was proposed by me to test the question as to whether the Toledo School law was mandatory against the Socialist Party interfering with the nea-political operation of the law. I took the position that every law was mandatory on the points covered by the law regardless of the manner of expression. Charles B. Martin took the position that our school law was not mandatory-against the party and asked me the question how I would prove that it was. I very quickly re piled that the court was the only body to interpret the statutes and the rem-edy was injunction against an effort to expel a member who was making no other claim than to live according to the laws of the state. I told him that, if the comrades desired I would withdraw my resignation and test it for them in the courts at a later date. I pointed out that for the Socialist Party to undertake to defeat the operation of the law was unlawful and that a meeting for the purpose was covered by the statute referring to unlawful assemblage and that any such meeting placed the party and its members in organized rebellion against the sover-eignty of the state; that such a posi-

to the philosophical principles which which it accepts. I have also given some attention to state-craft. But I fail to make out any consistency between your attitude on the Socialist Party tactics and the teaching of Socialism. If you were living in Imperial Europe there might be full justiication for a rebellious attitude; but country, with a constitutio that fully covers every emergency and with manhood suffrage, there is no de-mand for a defiant attitude toward the state until our constitutional privileges are threatened. There are ample visions for a modification of our laws by a proper use of the ballot. I have accepted the teaching and entire aims of Socialism. But I am not with the ocialist Party when it undertakes to make rebels out of its members. Here is where we separate. I am for the state as it is, until such a time as we can through legitimate means make it better. I believe that our state is better than no state; that constitu-tional methods for changing it is safer than open rebellion. If the time ever comes that our constitutional privileges are abridged by the dominant class by any form of legislation than I will agree with the Socialist Party as to the necessity of rebellion. I will be with th meand justify my act under the legal clause that the Constitution is the supreme law of the country. Constitution You say that I "utterly fail to under stand the difference between the na-ture of the Socialist Party and that of any other party; that our organization is more than a political party; that it is a revolutionary party." This statement seems to mean something more to you than it does to me according to your interpretation. I need not be informed that the Socialist Party aims at a social revolution, but I have always believed that it was by legitimate means. The fact that the Socialist Party is in the political areas would be prima facia evidence that it acquiesced on the point of regularity. A revolution in this country can be attained by constituional methods. It is not necessary to court a rebelifus. You seem to think that a man must be a good rebel before he can be a good Socialist. I do not so interpret the objects and aims of Socialism. remains to be seen whether the So clalist Party will embrace the Tolodo dogma. I hope for the good of the Socialist movement that it will not.

To the Editor of The Worker:--As Pennsylvania State Committee. "New Era" of Philadelphia, and The Worker have raised such a howl about the so-called "Coughlin Affair" in Luserne County, and as our comrades are threatened with being placed in a faise light before the party mem-bership, especially through the article which appeared in the "New Era" and which was republished by The Worker, I would request you to allow as some space to state our position.

At first we thought it best not to waste any time or energy on such a triffe, but now we feel that we as impelled to defend ourselves against in mislending article referred to. Any comrades not acquainted with the situation, upon reading that article would naturally believe us to be a lot of corrupt politicians, or at least Socialists in name only, who do not un-derstand the first thing about Socialist tactics. It makes Comrade Courblin appear as a self-seeking lawyer, who joined the party and furnished it with boodle for the make of securing the Socialist nomination for District Attor, ney. Of course the editor of the "New Era" does not say these things directly, but he uses such language as would indirectly imply such a state of affairs and in addition makes some statements which are not true

Permit me to state the facts relative to our position:

Comrade Coughlin was a proember of the Popullst party until April, 1902, when he joined Local Wilkes-Barre of the Socialist Party. He has ever since been and is now regarded as one of our most valuable and reliable comrades. On July 4 our county convention, at which he was mable to be present, numinated him for District Attorney without his owledge or consent, not knowing at the time whether or not be would accept. To our satisfaction Comrade Coughlin accepted the nomination, stating that, although it meant considerable sacrifice on his part, he felt it his duty to do so, as he was the only Socialist lawyer in Luxerne County, a declination on his part would leave us without a candidate for District Attorney.

Now it might be well to state that Comrade Coughlin, although an active Bocialist, povertheless holds the respect and esteem of a large number of "pious and respectable" people who are not Socialists, but who admired his clean and honorable record and manly qualities, and who naturally de sired to support him but could not con aistently vote the Socialist ticket. Chief among these were the Prohibi-tionists, who at their county conventionists, who at their county conven-tion had left blank on their ticket the place for District Attorney and empowered their County Committee to fill the vacancy. Those of his frientle who were neither Socialists nor Prohibitionists circulated nomination papers under the name of "Citizen's Party." Both these parties endorsed Comrad-Coughlin for District Attorney without as much as notifying him of their action. In fact we had no positive knowledge of the matter until, when reading the Sheriff's proclamation, we saw Comrade Coughlin's name appear saw Comrade Coughlin's name appear on both those tickets. The matter was then discussed by our comrades who were of the unanimous opinion, that as we had no control of these people, and were under no obligations whatever to them, it would be ridiculous and stuitifying. for us as well as our candidate, to may to them, "You shall not support him." We therefore refused to comply with the demand of the State Committee to compel our candidate to assume a repulsive attitude toward these arm-pathisers, who, not being Socialists, could not be expected to vote the Sotone of your editorial, you make the ference between the philosophy of Socialism and Socialist Party tactics. I callst ticket. Nevertheless, Comrade have given some attention to the study coughlin voluntarily issued a statement to the press, eaying that he had accepted only the Socialist no tion and was responsible only to the Socialist Party. This, however, did not satisfy the State C natisfy the State Committee, who newforth proceeded to revoke the charter of our county organization, and demanded that the locals in this county take action against the County Committee. Compades of Pennsylvania this to our position. As the County Commit-tee will no doubt appeal from the State Committee's decision, the matter will rest with you to decide, whether or bot we are guilty of a crime that justifies our expulsion from the party for which we as well as you have seerificed so much to build up. Will your permit a committee of Local Phliade phia to disrupt the organization of our state by such incides? I do not wish to reflect upon Local Philadelphia, an I have no doubt that it contains enough such contrades who possesse the judgment of Barnes, Josephs, and Atkinson, to refuse to sustain the State Committee, which appears to be dominated by Magreiau, which differs from DeLeonism only insufar as it desires an alliance with trade unionism.

In conclusion I desire to refute two false statements made in the "New Era" and republished in The Worker. First, it is said "that it the County Committees believed that Coughly would get, enough votes from thesa capitalistic parties to elect him." such statement was made by any member of the County Committee. We are not so degenerate as to piace any importance upon non so la la votes. If he had been elected by survotes we could not have called it victory for our party. We simply did not wish to make conserves a surely offensive; that is the thing in a nut shell.

The other statement of the "New Era" which I wish to correct is the following: "To the credit of the vote of Luxerne Courty be it said that the, refused to vote for a man who said fired principle to catch votes. Cough his received the lowest vote of candidate whose name appeared the ticket." It is true that Coughlia received the lowest vote, which the following returns show: Coughlin 574, 12-200 of Mikolamas 1.005 Pressing life. there are always a number baked Socialists who split their dekit naturally follows that some canddate must receive the lowert vote, and in this case it happened to be Conglin. As County Chairman, I am in a position to keep in as close touch will the committee of this county as is pos sible for any other comrade to be and I have yet to hear the first objetion to the course we have taken. If there had been any dissatisfaction nimong the comrades I certainly should have heard of it. The only cause w can ascribe for Comrade Coughin receiving a few votes less than the other candidates, is that the hottest contect between the old parties was for the office of District Attorney, and a num ber of men who voted the remainder of the Socialist ticket were influenced to vote for one or the other of the capitalistic candidates for District At-As I have neither the time nor the material to make duplicates of this letter to send to all the party papers, I would request that they copy and comment thereon.

Trusting that this matter will be ettied without any detrimental results to the movement, I am Jersey Trolley Trust Presches a Secialist Sermen to its Men, if They Have Wit to Understand.

Just prior to the recent election the employees of the Public Service Cor-poration of New Jersey decided against a strike by an almost unanimous vote. The Public Service Corporation not only controls the gas and water supply, but also nearly the entire trodey system of New Jersey.

The Corporation, aware of the growing strength of the union of its em-ployees, promised many things; but, while the progress, it hired carpenters to con vert the car sheds into dormitories for strike breakers. Merrily the saw and hammer could be heard at all hours of the day and night, as though a scaffold were being rected for an early hang-ing. Hundreds of mattresses were purchased and heaped up in conspictions places, evidently to teach the troley men the great truth counciated by pulpit and press, that "the interests of Capital and Labor are identical."

This strengosity and the promises of the Corporation convinced the men that a strike would be an injustice to the former, and they so decided.

The Corporation was so pleased with the "sensible" action of its men that it forthwith proceeded to reward them by SELLING THEM THE MAT-TRESSES AT COST PRICE, and th men, overcome by the munificence of their benefactor, EAGERLY BOUGHT THE MATTRESSES. Surely a realistic picture of the harmony existing between Capital and Labor! An inspiring exhibition of American manhood whose slumber is sweet upon the beds of lilies, emblematic of peace and harmony.

But the Corporation, in its overflowing fundness for the welfare wards, had yet another and more pleasant surprise in store for them, which it withheld until the noise and din of the political campaign. its oratory and fireworks, had passed away. Santa Claus turned green with envy when he saw the frolic the childlike gratitude, of the trolley men as the Corporation announced men as the Corporation automeet that about one bundred men were tweeters an indefinite vacation to regain their shattered health on the a the land of the free and the home of the brave, or to wine and dine with the political humbugs whom they had elected into office. A mighty shout of approval from a thousand throats rent the air when the Corporation repre-sentatives advised the men to vote the sentatives actued the men to your the Socialist ticket hereafter, and with three cheers for the Co-operative Com-monwealth, in which the officers of the Corporation would find ample oppor-tunity to display their talents for leavy manual labor, this memorable

The newspapers doing capitalst service are jubilant. Bocialism has been set back in Mass-

Socialism is like the mice of the fable, eating holes in the present bodypolitic, by means of which the lion of Social Democracy shall be liberated and shall come into power.

The world will have Socialism whe the workers of the world merit it and are ready for it. They must feel able to replace present society with a new force and power.
They are not ready for this until a majority of them understand Social-ism and are ready to practice it, and live the Socialist life of service.

Until this time comes Socialist success at the polis will be dearly bought; for, while a majority of the working class is outside the Socialist movement and does not comprehend the aims and hopes of its own class, every effort at collectivist administration by Socialists in office will be balked and dis credited by the lieutenants of capital-ism massing this ignorant majority as of customery usage on their side. THE DYNASTY

OF THE RICH. By Marrison I. Swift.

The modern man has lost much spirit. In the old days, before he was over-ridden by institutions and taught by education to be a coward, he kept his eyes upon those in power, and when they went too far he resisted. The rich, the aristocrats, were kept to some extent in curb by this popular watchfulness. Many of them came to dust for riding over the common people too recklessly.

America is the greatest republic ever known; it is called the greatest democracy. Yet it is a nation without men. There are masses, inferior, cowardly, time-serving, witnessing their libertles and value of the country, these are base degenerates, glad to sacrifice the liberties of mankind, to wreck what is good in the Republic, that they may put filthy gold in their private pockets. Some few cry out, and in the clash and din of the supreme reigning selfshness, their voices are nimont lust. Hence day by day the Dynasty of the Rich is strengthened and established. Fear grows on the people, the Pirates take more and more, there is no grand revolt to teach the harples of the na-tion that all things on earth are not Yet every day all nature calls more loudly for a people's proclamation, and this state of things. There must be a new day; there shall be a new day. An uncompromising, absolute sweeping away of the system is what we want and what we will have. No temporizing, no leaving the founda-tions untouched, so that in a little while all may return to its ancient state. We want men who can grasp great purposes and abide by them. We demand justice, we demand equality; we demand that all the results of a world-long robbing shall be corrected. We are not afraid to attack what is called Nature berself. We scora what history teaches—what it is HAID to teach; we can teach history. It is time for something new, time for life Let us put our brains and hands to the task; let us decide that forthwith,

FOR THE DAILY.

- Workingmons Co-operative Publishing Association Elects New Officers and Asks Comrades Everywhere to Hasten the Advent of the "Daily Globe."

The November meeting of the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing As sociation, which is to publish the com Socialist newspaper, was held at the Labor Lyceum on Wednesday evening, Nov. 20, Comrade Kraff acting as chairman. The meeting was well attended and the comrades pres-ent all pledged themselves to begin anew the work of raising the neces

In order to obtain the best results and not to overburden one man, the execution decided to divide the work and elect one comrade to take charge of the collection of all pledges and one to superintend the collection of funds from labor organizations. The salec-tion of a member to perform the latter duty was left to the Board of Manage ment. O. Wegener was chosen to at-tend to the collection of pledges; his address is 11 Cooper Square, New York, where all comrades are re-quested to send money on account of pledges, or contributions for the Daily Globe Fund. CALL FOR FUNDS.

To the Socialists of the United States of America. Comrades:—For the past eighteen months, the Socialists of New York and vicinity have been at work raising funds for the establishment of the first daily Socialist and trade union newspaper in the United States, to be called "New York Globe." By hard work and constant effort, we have managed to collect.over $13,000 in cash; an additional sum of about $6,000 has been pledged and will be paid in this win-ter. With several hundred dollars more already pledged by the more progressive trade unions the sum of $30,000 is already in sight. As it will require a capital of at least $50,000 to cessfully launch and unbold a daily newspaper in the city of New York, where we shall have to combut and compete with the largest capitalist dailles in the country, a larger amount than we have on hand at present is ed, and we therefore again call the attention of all Socialists of Amer len to the grand undertaking of the New York contrades and appeal to them to help us in our efforts by contributing such amounts to the Daily Globe Fund as each one individually can afford to give for this purpose.

The establishment of the first So-cialist daily is a matter which should concern and interest every Socialist in America. It is not a local matter but one of national importance to the So-cialist movement. The publication of the daily will have a beneficial effect organization in every state. The Army of the Unemployed Greatly increased by Capitalist "Economy" in Many Trades.

SEATTLE, Wash, Nov. 26,-1f the whole truth were told, the industrial panic is already on hand here. This city is full of idle men and the indus-tries are either shutting down or cur-tailing forces. The slave brokers who, for courtesy's sake, are called employment agents—have hardly any orders on their blackboards. Yesterday I saw an order on one of those billiourds for two pick-and-shovel men and about twenty-five men made a running break for the office.

This city also has a large chaingang, made up largely of men convicted of "vagrancy" or of petty thefts resulting from unemployment and poverty. Yesterday I saw the chaip gang working in front of a church. But the clergy are silent about this exhibition of "man's inhumanity to man." Let Socialists not fail to raise their voices about 32,000 cotton textile operatives were reduced to-day. To-day's addi-tion brings the total number in New England who have had their pay cut down this fall to about 61,000, and the cut which takes effect in New Bed-ford next Monday will swell the total to about 75,000, and complete a generni reduction in Southern New England cotton mills. The cut-down in the misjority of factories averages 10 per cent., although in many Blackstone Valley towns, it is stated, it ranges from 6 to 18 per cent., accord-ing to the nature of the work.

To-day practically every cotton mill in Rhode Island, in which state there and about 2,200,000 spindles, adopted the new schedule. In that state nearly 20,000 operatives are affected, and the new order of things will mean a loss of fully $20,000 weekly in wages. The cut also became operative in milis in Massachusetts and Connecticut con-trolled by Rhode Island capital and mploying about 7,000 additional

According to the Board of Trade returns there is a considerable failing off in the general state of employment, ly in the cotton and shipparticularly in the cotton and ship-building industries, and the percentage of unemployed members of trade unions is higher than the mean pertrade unions, with an aggregate membership of 558,508 making returns, 32,179 (or 5.8 per cent.) were reported during the Presidential campaign and if every Socialist in the country will contribute we shall have enough money to begin publication in the near future. which returns were received for September, 1902. The mean percentage of unemployed returned at the end of September during the past decade was 4.5. This is an increase of one per cent. on the average of the last ten years. "LABOR PARTY" PLAN DROPPED

C. F. U. Decides Not to Make a Flasco.

Socialists Refuse to Serve on Proposed Three-Party Committee to Plan for "Independent Politics"-No Common Ground for Consistent Action Socialism versus Capitalism Is the Plain Issue.

Last Sunday's session of the Net York Central Federated Union demon-strated that there is no probability of an "independent labor party" being successfully launched in this city to divide the votes of the wage-workers who are learning to revolt against enpitalist exploitation and that the po litical lines will continue to be clearly drawn between the old parties, standing for the continuance of class rule and the Social Democratic Party, standing for the complete emancipa-tion of Labor. The resolution adopted in the previous meeting, providing for the appointment of a committee of fif-teen—five Democrats, five Republicans and five Social Democrats—to work out plans for independent political ac-tion, was apparently the product of a moment of thoughtless enthusiasm. A week's consideration had evidently convinced the majority of the dele-gates that there is no need and no place for another labor party, tha those who approve of capitalian ahould stick to their old parties, which give "the real thing," and that those who object to it are adequately repre sented by the Social Democratic Party and ought to support it. The President, at last Sunday's sea m, began by announcing the name of the Socialists whom he wished to appoint to the committee. Oherware-Kaufmann, Richards, Detleff, and Kl gus were named. Kligus at once de clined, briefly and clearly explaining that he stood for the whole Socialist program and would not stuitify him-self by going on a committee with men who believed in quite opposite prin-ciples to work out a plan that would be foredoomed to accomplish no good and only to confuse the issue. Kauf-man stated that he was not a member he supported it, and the others do clined in the same manner as had Kil-gus. The President then named Brey-er and Wolff, but both declined to serve. Turning then to the old parties the President proceeded with nomina-tions, but here, too, a large part of those named expressed unwillingness to take port in a project that was so evidently futile. Morris Brown struck the keynot when he declared that the delegate did not represent their unions in this matter, that they con.: act only as in-dividuals, and that it was impossible to make a labor party that would amount to anything by the mere achad considered the question and acted upon it, it might be a different propo-sition, but such was not the case. We knew what the two old parties were we knew what the Social Democrati Party was and what it stood for; but an "independent labor party" manu-factured in the way proposed would be an unknown quantity and would not command anyone's confidence. There was no basis for it and the attempt to bring it into existence would be a laughable fiasco. He thought it best to abandon the project at once, and by a large unjority the house so

WORCESTER, Mass.-Olof Boke lund wrote the following letter to the City Committee of the Socialist Party in acceptance of the nomination as candidate for Mayor:

"Gentlemen:-Having been notified that you have conferred upon me the great honor of selecting me as your standard-bearer, in this municipal campaign, I will make a few statements in acceptance of the nomination At no other stage of a movement is an active participation in its work fraught with so much peril or pregnant with so much lasting honor as in its early formative stage, or during the stage when its buttles are fought. It is during such periods that the truly great men of the world have been made and come to the surface.

Therefore, it is the aim of the Socialist Party to take pos session of the tools of production, to be owned collectively by the whol people, and to be operated by the whole people as they are now being operated by the working class. Such a change in the ownership of the tools of production would be la the interest of the working class which is now disnot specied of these tools, but would be against the interests of the capitalist chara which new, by virtue of its con-trol of these tools, is canbled to live in luxury on the product of the work

The Southbridge Lockout.

Last month in the neighboring city of Southbridge, to which Courade Bokelund refers, the American Optical Company and four other concerns, by joint agreement, locked out their en en to the number of nearly 1,000 It was announced in each case that the factory was closed "for the purpose of reorganization" and what this meant became clear when all who wanted work upon the re-opening of the factories were asked to sign the following statement: "I bareby affirm that I am a member of no labor union whatsoever, and agree that I will no join such union while in the employ of said company without giving it a week's notice, in writing, of my intention of doing so."

Bokelund's letter of acceptance threw the Worcester "Evening Post" into a spasm of horrified indignation which that paper gives vent to in a long, double column, leading editorial. The "Post" emits a shrick at the Socialist program of working class legis-lation, while admiring its "refreshing frankness," and meets it with an old quotation—"there must be classes, but no class shall rule," which, being trans-lated, means that class division must be maintained and that therefore no lass but the capitalist class must rule. At the municipal election the workingmen of Worcester will have a chance to choose between capitalist class rule and working class rule and if they wish proof of the fact that the nterests of the two classes are so allcolutely opposed that all legislation, as long as capitalism lasts, must be "class legislation" they have only to look to the Southbridge slave-pens where their brothers may not work save at a master's whim, CONTRACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

National Body to Be Organized at Chicago.

To Fight Labor Legislation and to Organize the Sympathetic Lockout and Blacklist on a National Scale the Main Objects.

A convention is to be held in Chleago next week to form a national associa tion of building contractors. Among the cities represented will be New York, Chicago, Pittsburg, San Proncisco, St. Louis, Minueapolis, Topeka, Cedar Rapida, Jackson (Mich.), Cincin-nati, Newark, Reading, East St. Louis, and Erie.

The objects of the proposed associa tion are stated as follows:
"To advance and protect the inter ests of the contractors. "To secure equitable treatment in their dealings with their employees, "To encourage organization and the formation of associations of contract-To regulate conditions among building contractors.

"To devise means for the better ad-nneement of the interests of the contractors.

"To maintain peace and harmony between the employer and the em ployee. "The basis of the settlement of al disputes should be conciliation and ar "The sympathetic strike should be absolutely prohibited.

"Where conditions are proper and employees' associations exist, agreements to be made with them. "A uniform form of agreement be adopted and used in making' joint agreements, wages being adjusted according to local conditions. "All agreements are to embody the following principles: There shall be no restriction of the use of machinery or tools. There shall be no restriction of the use of any manufactured material except prison-made. No person shall have the right to interfere with the working during working bours.

The use of apprentices shall not be prohibited. The foreman shall be the agent of the employer. All workmen are at liberty to work for whomsoever they see fit. All employers are at literty to employ and discharge whomse ever they see fit."

The Building Trades Employers' As sociation of New York City is to be represented. It is interesting to note that, while the scheme outlined above is a clear deciaration for the "open shop" idea, President Eidlits of the New York Employers' Association declares emphatically against that idea. The reason of this is, of course, that this association, by means of its lockout of last summer, has forced a good proportion of the local-building trades unions to sign agreements which make them practically powerless against the bosses. While this lasts, the New York bosses are very willing to "recognize the unions."

President Eidlitz also said: "Mucl can be done in the matter of legisla-tion. That is one lesson we have learn-ed from the labor unions. They are constantly in this state introducing bills ostensibly for the protection of life and limb, which when passed, and they often are passed, prove very bur demonie to the trade."

It is indeed "burdensome" to Brother Capital that he should be restrained from compelling Brother Labor to work with the most dangerous mi chinery in the most unhealthful workshops that it suits Brother Capital's pockethook to provide, of that he should ever be required to pay dam-ages when Brother Labor is mainted or killed for his profit. "Much can be done in the matter of legislation

The most striking thing, however, is the following passage from the interview with President Eidlitz, given in the "Times" last Sunday:

"In handling strikes a national armo clation can be useful in PREVENT ING THE MEN ON STRIKE PROM FLOCKING TO ANOTHER CITY AND OBTAINING EMPLOYMENT WHERE TRADE IS BRISK. Many strike has been lost by the employers in that way. The national association, immediately after a strike began, could send out a notice of it to all the affiliated local associations, with a list of the men on strike, and the members of the local associations would be pledged not to give employment to any of these men while the strike lasted."

That is to say, according to Eldlitz' idea, the great foundation of the new association will be to organise the lockout and blacklist-THE SYMPA-THETIC LOCKOUT AND BLACK-LIST, be it noted—on national lines. In this, he will certainly find himself at one with the other contractors.

The war grows fiercer. The lines are ever more sharply drawn sooner comes the day when the ers must use the all powerful weapon they have hitherto neglected—the Bo cialist hallot.

The capitalists realize, although they may fight over profits and power among themselves, that as against the working class their interests are common; they instinctively act as a class whenever their class interests are threatened. Just as, in time of strike interests are "every employer of labor in the state is interested, as it embraces a fundamental principle," so every working-man should realize that his interests are with every striker and with every attack upon the power of capital. If trade unionism and Socialism confront the capitalists with "dangerous condi-tions, demanding immediate action" upon their part; the workers, who have always suffered under mis conditions, are now confronted by still more dangerous conditions by the organization of capital. Let the working class follow the capitalists' ax ample of class action, and carry the battle to the ballot box, where united effort is easiest and most effective. MARRIAGE UNDER CAPITALISM.

THE EIGHT-HOUR DECISION.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court, affirming the constitutionality of the Kansas Eight-Hour Law, is as surprising to us as it undoubtedly is to the contractors. It goes without saying that the opinion in written by Justice Harian, the oldest and the most liberal-minded of the nine members of the Court. Practically every decision of the Supreme Court in recent years that has not been distinctly on the side of capitalist interests has come from his pen. He represents the older generation of jurists, who had still some respect for traditions of democracy and of humanity. Unfortunately be retires from the bench next year and his successor will probably be a man of the Fuller type.

It is too seen to say with any confidence what will be the effect of the decision. The proverb, "There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip." holds good nowhere so well as in the interpretation of the law. The Su preme Court of the United States is regarded by many with a degree of reverence approaching the superstitions. It is naively supposed to be a sacred and infailible repository of wisdom and abstract justice, above the influence of political considerations. When we remember, however, that not so very long.ago this wonder ful court reversed its own decision o the Income Tax Law-reversed it decision suggests two things: Piret, that laws are constitutional if the judges my they are and not constitutional if the judges say they are not, and that it is therefore of the greatest importance that the workingmen elect judges who are sure to say that labor laws are constitutional.

Second, that, as Dooley says, "the Supreme Court follows the election returns"-or, in a larger sense, that the courts are influenced by popular tenlencies and demonstrations of though and feeling. The increased aggressive ness of the working class, both on the political and on the industrial field, in recent years—as shown clearly in the rapid growth of the Socialist vote and vaguely in the organization of local "Independent inhor parties," and as shown also in the increase of the trade-union membership and the vigor of such demonstrations as the anthracite coal strike of last year and the lity to "make up lost time" in the present miners' strikes in the Westhas filled the capitalist mind with dark forebodings and inclined the master class, now to violent and stubborn resistance, now to partial concessions. it is not by humility and "sweet reasonableness" that the workers win even the smallest real concessions, but by emphatically demanding the whole for them.

Let us profit by the concessions, by all means; but lot us not make the this decision to moderate their deto be fulled into a mood of hopeful content, then it may be set down as ertain that even this small concession by victory in this little skirnish they press forward to a new attack on the capitalist lines, then new concessions and greater ones will follow.

THE RACE QUESTION IN THE

Ever since, some two or three years ago, the Socialist Party began to make considerable progress in the Bouth, it has been evident that, sooner or interand sooner rather than later, in proportion as our progress was rapidwe should be forced to meet the "race question" or "color question" as it exlats there and should be confronted with the alternative of making some concessions to opinion and feeling there prevalent in order to facilitate our propagaties or of setting ourselves to the difficult task of carrying on that propagands on uncompromising lines in the face of violent opposition on what is actually a side-issue. It is ratt. r surprising that the question did not arise in a definite form in Florida or Alabama or Texas many months ago, and not at all surprising that it has so arisen in Louisiana within the hast few weeks,

Our renders already know that the application of the Louisiana locals for a state charter has been held up by the National Secretary with the approval of the Quorum, pending decision by the National Committee, as to whether or not the provision of the proposed state constitution of the party for organization of white and black members into separate locals or branches and the plank declaring in favor of compulsory segregation of the black race in certain states, counties, or other geographical districts are violative of the provisions of the national platform and party constitution and of the accepted principles of inter notional Resistant

> The plank in the proposed Louisiana platform is, in our opinion, quite a difter. Such a plank has no place in a Socialist platform. If the Socialist without such a plank, then it is better that we should not gain votes there. Let it be granted that the black race are right and we have nothing tice Harian's opinion-remarkable, as in this country is, in general, as a consequence of its shorter acquaintance with civilization and its sad experionce of slavery, inferior to the white It should be remembered that the black race is not here of its own choice and that the white race therefore owes it a debt of forbearance and helpfulness that it will still take a good many renevations to liquidate. To itself also the white race owes the same duty. The negro is here and seems to be here to stay-so long, at least, as capitalism lasts. The idea of compulsorily remov ing him to a home in some other part of the world, which used to be advanced by some sentimentalists and sepentionalists, is as repugnant to principles of common honesty and humanity as it is difficult of execution and as impracticable as it unjust; in fact, it is nowhere seriously considered. Whether as a matter of duty, then, or as a matter of pure self-interest, it behooves the whites in this country to give their black fellow citisens every opportun march of progress; it behooves them not to leave such opportunities to be demanded by the negroes, but rather to co-operate energetically in securing them, that there may be the least you albie of friction in the process.

Does anyone seriously imagine that this end would be best served by serting aside two or three states excit of their rights and sturdily fighting sively for the negroes and expelling them from the other states? Would the black race advance in civilization more rapidly if so segregated? Such mistake of swallowing the hook with partial examples as we have do not the balt. If the workers are led by justify us in thinking so. And would discord be avoided? Impossible. We mands or the vigor with which they do not live within state lines nowaurge them, if they allow themselves days-not even within national lines. While capitalism lasts, such an arrangement would assuredly prove quite unworkable. To realize this will be taken away. If, encouraged simply imagine Mississippl as a negro state and ask whether the plantation owners and mining companies of Louisians and Alabama would not insist on having black laborers to do their work; or whether white capitalists would not hold stocks and bonds and mortgages in the negro state and maist on federal legislation to protect their interests there.

While canitalism lasts, the segrega tion plan is a futile attempt to shirk the issue-futile, because the forces of capitalism itself would oppose it, if for no other reason. While capitalisa lasts, it is the duty of the Socialist Party, so far as it deals with the negro question as such, to use its laftuen in farer of the educational and esp ially the economic uplifting of the blacks-not to try to treat it as a question apart from the labor question, for that it essentially is not, but to strive for its solution through the solution of the labor question, so far as it can be so solved.

And when capitalism is gone? If there still remains a negro question as we will not deny there may, though very far less acute and threatening than it now is, as being a matter of race difference only, not of race difference plus class conflict-why, then will be the time, in the light of knowledge we shall then have, to devise measures for its solution. Any present declaration on such a possible future problem is, in the strict sense of the word, pre posterous.

Our comrades. North or South should not be frightened or confused by the boger of "social courtity." No one proposes to sutte a law requiring white men to invite black men to their tables or vice versa. We do not find any white landlords or merchants or other capitalists refusing to accept black men's money or showing any scruples about making a profit on black men's labor. They do not hesttate even to employ black laborers to white ones at lower wares. when occasion offers. If economic intercourse of this sort is tolerable, then the relations involved in comradoship of the two races in the Co-operative Commonwealth need have no terrors Workingmen, white or black, have nothing to lose and all to gain by economic equality and solidarity; capitalists alone have reason to oppose itand they, not as white men or black men, but as capitalists.

The Socialist Party, therefore, has nothing to lose and all to gain by adhering strictly to its economic basis in the cines struggle between Labor and Capital, brushing saids all sophisms such as that of "social equality" and refusing to be led into entangling alliances or internal divisions on any other question, great or small, whatever temporary advantage may seem to be offered thereby.

The words used by National Com mitteeman Taibott of Minnesota-and it is susprising to hear them from that quarter-in moving to endorse the Louisiana negro plank, are sufficient in themselves to condemn the propos tion. He seems to argue that because the negroes of the flowis practically have no votes, we need pay no atten tion to their desires or their rights and he praises the framers of the pixuk as "Southern Socialist diplomats that know how to hedge in the Democratic party." For ne-and we believe we

P. Aloysius Molypeaux, New Orleans, Dear Comrade:--As I am respon afble, I suppose, for having the char-ter for the state organization, Socialist Party, for Louisiana held up, I thought best that I write you and present personally what it was that lead me to object. You will see from the editorial I enclose taken from the Dallas "News" of Sept. 26 what use can be made of this declaration of the Louisiana Socialists.

I also enclose you a slip that sets, forth the position of the party on the negro question. You will see from it that the party is not committed to race equality, Socialism stands only for economic equality. When you have examined the literature of Socialism dealing with the race problem, it will be clear to you that the so-called race problem, like so many others that worry humanity at this time, is simply an outgraveth of capitalism, an when private capital is transformed rigi capital under the Co-opera tive Commonwealth, such questions as the so-called race problem will adjust s time object to the negro on the public highways that we use, or the streets of our cities or the mercantile houses where we get our supplies, or the barber shops, or the hotels. Nor do we object to him handling our food as cooks, or washing our person and handling our bodies as attendants in lath rooms. You will notice that the only objection that is mised now is social equality and I think that when you have examined the Socialist posttion more critically you will find that would promise to the negro the right to force his society on these that objected to him, but on the contrary the independence that Socialism promises will make it absolutely the prerogative of every human being to associate with those only who are agreeable to him. Can this be said at this time? You know that capitalism never ex-numes the color of the skin when it buys labor-power and I have seen white men working in the streets of negroes when the best of summer, was such that if the negro could ever be offensive to a white man he must have been them hiereover. I have seen white and black working thus under a negro foreman. I have not the least New Orleans: More than this, I can show eron whites and blacks of the working class forced into being next deer neighbors. Why? Because capifulism has forced exactly the same omiltims of work and wages upon ben and they could not help them-elves, although I know personally that the black people objected to it as strongly as the white people, for they said the poor white trash was forever ungging them. I have been in the South for twentyfive years. Lycame here with a deep prejudice against the black man. My onle were so-called Northern conper heads. But I was not long in learning that the black man in the South corresponded in every economic detail with the poor white man in the North. The mennest and vilest portions of subsistence only was bls. I have talked with intelligent ne-groes on this subject. My business has brought me toto contact with scholo toxelers and others of that class, and it is the common sentiment among them that if there is any desireon the part of the negro to mingle with the whites it is because the con-ditions under which the white man lives is so much better than that of the black man." They all agreed that the black man had as good houses to live in, as good clothes to wear, and as good food to est, and as good opportunities to get education and recrustion, they would prefer to mingle only with black men, as they understood each other better and that subtle at-traction of race that makes Jewish quarters and Irish quarters and German quarters and Swedish quarters, etc., etc., in all our large cities would draw them together.

If they imitate and copy the white man now, it is because they are in the white man an ideal they long for, in living, dress and manners. Let him have those things, we Socialists say. they are his by right as is his portion of the highway or the street, then let him seak those to whom he is agreeable: Under Socialism he will have no power to force himself either in the economic or social field on those to whom he is not agreesble.

II -MOLYNEAUX'S REPLY.

John Kerrigan, Dallas Tex. Dear Comrade:—Through Comrade Mailly I am in receipt of yours of the 29th and beg leave to answer as fol-

I do not doubt for a moment that you acted according to your tions in protesting against the ing of our state charter and I want you to feel that it was not in a spirit of personsi resentment that our Local Quorum requested the names of the

The editorial you enclose is indeed a caustic and seemingly unanswerable bit of capitalistic-criticism, but it is only a rehash of an editorial which appeared in the "Picayone" of Sept. 20 and which has been copied by severa capitalistic dailies throughout the South. I beg to call your attenues the conclusive reply to the "Picayune" the conclusive reply to the "Picayune" editorial which silenced that journal and would, no doubt, put a quictus to such sheets as the Dallas "News" if only the trouble were taken to answe editorials. I enclose Committee Half's letter and commend it to your attention; it may have the effect of clearing up this matter in your mind and making our stand clear.

I can assure you, my dear comrade that the negro plank in our platform is on our part, but ou the contrary it is the result of months of oureful study of the subject; we realized that some and we took the only same one. If you doubt for a minute the neces rity of the plank, I refer you to tenth clause in our platform, which demands certain constitutional avesudments. These amendments, if passed, will practically entranchise the negro and it was absolutely necessary that we make our stand clear, that la clear that we are demanding the ballot for the negro with which to rule himself and secure his industrial independence. and not to rule white men with.

The criticisms of the "Picayune,

Pallas "News," and the other capitalistic sheets are indeed very harsh, but such as will do very little harm if properly answered, Such criticism will fool no one or at worst will fool only a few ignorant negroes who can do the larry no possible harm.

Now let me roint out clearly just what we had to decide. If we had not adopted the tenth clause in our platform, which domands the enfranchisement of the negro, the claim would have been set up that we were not Louest in our proposition for economic and political equality, which would lave been true.

If we bad adopted the tenth clause and had not adopted the plank declar-ing for the separation of the races, then the cry of "negro sepremacy" and "social equality," which has killed the Depublican party in the South and has been the cause of the "Solid South" since the Civil War, would have been buried at our heads and we would have been crushed in our infancy.

Now we claim that the negro must be organized into the Socialist Party, and that we have indicated the only lires along which all workers, both white and black, can be organized as Socialists. Your own expressions cover our views exactly, If the present capitalistic methods which compel negroes and whites to live in the same quarters of the city, and compet them to work, perhaps, under a negro foretinn, are strongly objected to by both negrees and whites, then when they are endowed with the absolute right of living as they like, they will unquestionably adopt the method deplatform.

I am still at a loss to know on what ground you objected to the granting of our charter. The sitp you enclose i have read time and time again during the past two years, and I am thoroughly familiar with the stand of the Socialist Party as regards the negro. You aptly state our position when you say: "Socialism atanda only for eco-nomic equality." Now, Comrade Ker-rigan, if you can show me anything in our negro plank which-he opposed to the economic equality of all men and women, whether they be white, black, or otherwise, I will say then that there is reason for the National Committee to refuse to grant us a ; private employment bureaus. protest. III .- TALBOTT'S COMMENT ON HIS MOTION.

Having lived in the South a numbe of years, and knowing bow astutely ready the Democratic party of the South has been to how! over the slight-cat hint of "race equality," it is easy to understand why the Louisiana comrades inserted the above mention clause in their proceedings. I do no know any of the comrades that drafted the Louisiana state proceedings, but do know that this single clause in the declaration of principles reflects credit Thon them, and proves con that they are Southern Socialist diple unts that know how to hedge in the Democratic party.

VL-ANOTHER SOUTHERN COM RADES VIEW.

To the Editor of The Worker:-I se by a late issue of your excellent paper that the National Committee has hele up the application of our Louisian comrades for a charter on account of the plank in their state platform call-ing for a separation of the races.

I am considerably puzzled to kno why this should be. Do not the con rades of the South know better the conditions that surround the work her and the wisdom needed to carry it on arades who have never bee here, and who can have no conception of the obstacles to be overcome? I myself am a Northern man, and yet Louisiana comrades,

There is not only no hardship or re this demand, but it will when carried out place them in a position of absoiute independence. If there is any reflection on either race by the decama, which is the race upon which the resection rests? You will say, the colored race. But why? The demand separates the whites from the blacks as well as the blacks from the wh tos. The thing is absolutely equal. Who is I have not heard any complaint from the National Committee on account of the Nebruska State Committee refusing to grant a charter to a local in that state because it was composed of gresses. Of such movements it may school teachers and farmers instead of almost be said that those who come to wage workers in other lines of employ-ment. In the South we are doing all we can to bring the negro to Secialism, and are loing some good among them, but we cannot advance any mere rapidly by bringing them into the white locals than by allowing them to have and manage locals for their selves. There is just as much aristocracy among the blacks as there is among the whitee, and they have not altogether ceased looking upon the "po' white trash" in a downward direction. It is just as well to let the comrades here work out this matter in the best way they can according to their light, and as a Northern man, I assure you they have a better conception of the difficulties in the way in this section than you, who have never begs here, can have. To explain the color problem would take much more space than you can give me, "The Grander Age" will shortly devote a full issue to this matter, and we then hope to make clear to the Northern comrades that all is not "race prejudice," as many of them think, from life-long rending of Northern papers of "The South Is Again in

The French workers have been deeply ouraged by the utterly unjusti-finite action of the police in attacking the Bourse de Travail, and assaulting the members: M. A QUESTION FOR THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS.

An important resolution has been et down by the combined Austrian and German Socialists in Switzerland, for the Amsterdam International Socinlist Congress, calling attention to the need for greater unity of action between the Socialists of various countries, especially in their stiltude towards the various international reform movements, that for example they may shun congresses which are ostentationally avoided by the Socialostentationally avoided by the ostentists of the country where they meet, such as the Inter-Parliamentary Conference in Vienna, which was ridiculed as a farce by the "Arbeiter Zeitung" and the meinters of the Amirian party, but in which Socialists from Switzerland, Belgium, and Denmark took part. The same thing may be observed at many such congresses. The subject is one of great interest. I think comrades might well be asked to consider the attitude of the memhere of their own party in the particu iar country before attending such con-gresses, and to act as for as possible in harmony with them. Moreover, those who acknowledge the class war must feel that it is a great waste of energy, for the mke of a few lectuals," whom we are able to draw into our ranks from these movements, 'o spend time going to these inck of knowledge, but lack of will which causes a certain number of people to hover round our movement a lifetime without joining, or who, when they do join it, hang only on to the fringe of it. It is to be hoped, anyway, that the appeal to the feelings of soli-darity between the Socialists of the various countries will not have been unde in vain. Such calls show the extreme value of the International Bo cialist Congresses, and more especially of the International Conferences, which, being smaller, are more adaptable for business; and it is to be hope that countries which have not been well represented at the latter will see their way to do so in the future. That must, however, he a matter of growth. -Loudon Justice.

The Turner case is revealing the anti-Anarchist law which Congress enacted last winter as a menace to personal liberty of the most extra ordinary character. The old "allen and sedition laws," which have been were very pearls of liberty in com purison with this so-called anti-An-orchist law. It is doubtful if even in Turkey, much less in Russis, the material for a story so significant of absolutism could be gathered.

described last week, we find this law a complete reversal of the American theory of arrests. Except in time of war, or when the writ of habeas corpus is suspended, the executive de-partment of the general government is supposed to have no power of arrest. Think of the anomaly of a Presidential order of arrest in time of peace! Or-ders of arrest are judicial writs, issued upon proof duly made, and subject to judicial investigation. But under this law the order of arrest is issued by a member of the President's cabinet. It may be issued by him against any alien who has not lived in this comtry more than three years. The person arrested can be immediately taken from any part of the country to Ellis Island; be there examined privately, without witnesses or counsel, by three men who are appointed and can be dismissed by the cabinet officer basing the warrant; and if two of them re port to this cabinet officer that they, believe the arrested man "disbelieves in all organized government" the cabi net officer can send him back to the country of his birth without allowing him to see friends or family or to settle his insiness offsirs. swamped? And in Masmchus etts, too; This is autonishing. In the Ray State the Socialists have been a more important political factor than in any other part of the Union. They said it was because the people of the oth cum-monwealth were more intelligent and moral than people of the other states. and that Socialism appealed norten vincingly to the best element. Has Massachusetts lost its morals, then, or has the standard of its schools relax ed? We fear there is another and it is this: The Socialists and in bor unionists are one. The inio unions may be composed of the mar intelligent and moral people in the community, but they have a might; queer way of showing it. One cannot shoot into street cars, and blow houses of free workmen, and boyestt shops and churches, and threaten the United States government, and outlaw members of the military force with mi getting himself disliked. The later, unions of Massachusetts have been ess rampageous than these in Pens sylvania and Connecticut, but the, have caused immense losses to manu-facturers and investors, they have d'a turbed the state's finances, they have shaken public confidence; in Hay they have held or important r data against capital, but because unions took to fighting with t selves.

CAUSES OF INDUSTRIAL PANICS.

By George D. Herren,

Comrade Herron to a symposium arranged by the Chicago Federation of Labor, and to that organization we owe acknowledgment for permission

The prophecy of financial and indus-trial collapse is becoming common-place. Whether that which is close upon us be a paule that will test and strain to the utmost our present finan-cial system; whether it brings the murmur and menace and hunger riots of some appalling and universal prob-lem of the unemployed; or whether it prove to be merely a long and paralyzing financial depression—whichever of these things be at hand, whatever the end of the approaching industrial crisis, it is but a prelude of the doom of the capitalist system of production and distribution. Whether a better or a worse world lies beyond the judge-ment day of capitalism, the present kind of a world is coming to its end. The present mode of production and into confusion; the machinery will not work much longer; there are enough broken belts, dislocated wheels, and burnt-out fires to testify to this. Furthermore, humanity will not continue to labor for the profits of the masters. Profits will not be a motive strong enough to keen the work, at work, The profit-making organization of so clety is increasingly incompetent. The collapse of capitalism, with something better or worse in its place, is as in-evitable as the succession of the seq-

Not because men have made un their any arrived or intelligent sense of justice revolts against the present; not because the working class has decided that capitalism is lad, and that Socialism is better; not because of anything yet developed or apparent in the will or purpose of the common life, will the end of capitalism come, but because it carries in itself the sources and seeds of its own destruction.
One of these is the relation it sustains to labor. The solidarity or organization it has forced upon labor by its own solidarity and organization is the enemy most hateful to capital. Trade unionism has blocked the capiallstic highway. The trade union is not by any means the solution of labor's problem, nor the goal of labor's struggle; it is merely a method of de-fense in a state of war; it is, indeed, an adaptation of capitalist methods by labor for its own protection against capitalism. No society can be same, or final, or anything but self-destructive which consumes human attention and energy in the conflicts of classes—an employed and exploited class forever defending itself against an employing or predatory class. There can be no rocial harmony in a state of industrial war. And trade unionism is merely the armed camp of one of the forces in a society based upon economic war. But, while organized labor is not the end of labor's problem, it has turned back the progress of capitalism from what we once thought to be its full and final development.

For this reason the unchecked and tully developed growth of the profitmaking system depends upon the un-resisting submission of labor to the evils and the chances of that system. Capitalism can grow only through having at its command a vast and help-iess mass of unemployed labor. Profits can feed to the full only on the products of hunger-wages. Capitalism can have its unbridled way only so far as labor is kept so unorganized and com-petitive that the inborer must work for allot as a sustenance-wage. The mo-ment the laborer begins to think; the life, as part of a providential or governing order; the moment he begins to inquire into the causes of the misery and uncertainty of his lot; the moment he begins to organize for the increase of wages and the improvement of conditions, that moment canitalism has brought forth that which ed labor is the capitalist-begotten child which will in turn devour its has wrested, from capitalists' is as inevitable as nature.

There are two ways by which the pushi-makers take the produce of labor: -first, by taking from the laborer as a producer; and, second, by taking from the meaning and the new world and the new life that is to grow out of it, will not come until the work from him as a consumer. In the first place, the laborer gets but a fraction of what he produces. He does not work for use, He has no nersonal in. the Secialism only if the Secialism only if the Secialism has no nersonal in. place, the laborer gets but a fraction own bands. Socialism will arrive of what he produces. He does not upon the collapse of capitalism only if work for use. He has no personal in... the Socialist has arrived. And the cerwork for use. He has no personal landerest in or relation to, the thing he rates in or relation to, the thing he rakes. He knows nothing about the value of the product or output of his labor-power. All he receives in his austenance-wage. The product of his labor over and above that, of which product his wage is but a small fraction, sees to the profit-makers. In the second place, the wage-worker takes his wage to market to buy the things that he cats and wears. Perhans it. cats and wears. Perhaps it may be the coat or the bread which he has helped to make. But what he that will not be long in following it may be the cost or the bread which he has helped to make. But what he pays for in the market is vastly more than what he receives. It is not merely the article of consumption that he pays for; that is merely a fraction of that for which he has given up his wags. He must pay for the support of atratum upon stratum of profitmakers, and their institutions, that hulid upon his back and live out of his laber-power. Among the things which full and free and good, and with long, his poor wage pays for, in the pound of sugar or the gallon of cit, or the which the beavens shall become as which the heavens shall become as swent-shop garment, or his ride to his work on the street-ear, are dividendle upon billions of deliurs of varored stock, millions of shire-badied fillers employed in standing armies, police systems, legislators and governments, churches and social institutions. [This paper was contributed by | The price of all the profits and all the institutions of capitalist civilization is included in what the worker pays for his pound of sugar or loaf of bread.

The thing that he buys is the mercet fraction of what he has peld for; the thing that he gets for his wage money is but the verient scrap of what he bought but does not get.

The result of this is, that, through the gradual intensification of the struggle for life, the purchasing power of the workers is gradually debauched and destroyed. The people who make the things upon which the world trades are becoming too poor to buy the things they make. The over-production which the capitalist eco-nomist talks about is nothing but this destruction of the power of the worker to buy or consume. This exploitation of labor on the one hand as a producer, and upon the other hand as a con sumer, so that he really gets but a frac tion of a fraction of what he produces steadily brings about this destruction of its own markets by capitalism. For a while, the evil is averted by the con-quest of new markets through the vulgar and bullying cowardice of the modern imperialism. But that is only a very temporary and not a saving ex-pedient. In the end the collapse is inevitable. The parasite that has fed upon the world-body of labor has be-come so monstrous that it is larger than the body it feeds upon. As labo is now organized under capitalism, there is not enough labor-blood or labor-power to feed the capitalist monster. The thing that feeds is larger than the thing it has fed upon. Capi talism will die through its own exlimustion of labor-profits, because it

One result of this is the increasing uncleasuess of capital. It would seem strange that there might come a time when a billion dollars would be of no more use to a man than yesterday's edition of a "yellow" journal. But, strange as it is, it is a fact that is not many years short of becoming tro . Capital is of no use unless it has profits to feed upon. And every day the opportunities and securities of empitulist investment are decreasing.

The battles of to-day upon Wall Street in New York, upon Lombard Street in London, upon the Bourse of Paris, and the Stock Exchange of Berlin, is the battle between the capitalist ginnts, between the concentrated or congested capitalist interests, for the control of the sources of profits. It is the anti-social struggle of the mon-sters of the capitalist deep. When they have destroyed each other, as destroy each other they will, there remains but the waste and void out of which some kind of a new system will be calle ! forth. Another result is the approaching universal problem of the unemployed. The uncleasuess of capital, of course, carries with it the unemployment of labor. In the capitalist mode of production, the employment of labor de-pends wholly upon the profits which capital may derive from it. If there are no more profits to be had; if capital becomes useless as a profit-making investment; if the profit-making sys-tem of g tting the work of the world done comes to an end, we are then face to face with the strange and Insane spectacle of a world out of work in the midst of a world of almost untouched resources waiting for the workers' hands and brains, and with millions of eager workers seeking work but find-What will happen when this col-

has grown so big that the labor profits

what will mappen when this cor-lapse of capital course no man can foresee. Althoug, I am a Focialist of the Socialists, although my life be-longs to that cause, although I can see no hope for all the hopes that trouble and beffie the human race except through the triumh and establishthrough the triumph and establishment of the Co-operative Common-wealth whic! Socialism proposes, yet I cannot agree with those who hold that Socialism is inevitable merely because the collapse of capital is inevitable be reckoned with in the processes of eve...tion. Increasingly, is man the evolver as well as the evolved; the maker as well as the made. And until child which will in turn devour its parent. The wage and the conditions world, make it with a set purpose and which organized labor will wrest, and after a delilierate pattern, he will not have a world that is worthy of himdo not leave sufficient labor-produce self—a world fit for free men and for the present monsters of canitalist communes, for workers and lovers, to concentration to feed upon. The end live in. The society that comes as the as inevitable as nature.

Another cause is this:—that copitalin is destroying its own markets.

THE PANAMA

REVOLUTION. Circumstances are strongly against President Roosevelt when he protests that he had nothing to do with bringing on the Panama revolution. Every fact thus far disclosed points to his omplicity. Why were American warships or dered to the isthmus before the revolt

Why did the American naval con mander forbid the use by the Colom-bian authorities of the railroad for the purpose of putting down the revolt and asserting the acknowledged sover eignty of Colombia?

Why did the American naval con mander advise the military representa-tive of the Colombian government to withdraw from Panama? Why did President Roosevelt forbid the landing of Colombian troops for the purpose of suppressing the revolt? Why did President Roosevelt recognize Punama as a new nation before Colombia had had any opportunity to act, when President McKinley had declared with reference to Cuba, in bia message of April 11, 1808, that "resignition of independent statehood is not due to a revolted dependency until the danger of its being subjugated by the parent state has entirely passed awny"?

Above all, why did President Roose velt threaten the Colombian govern-ment with some mysterious and dire disaster as early as July? Here is his instruction (made public September 1) to the American minister at Bogota, cabled late in July:

"If Colombia neglects to ratify the treaty unamended, the United States will be forced to take measures that will be a source of regret to all friends of Colombia."

If that threat meant that the United States would encourage Panama to secrete and would support its secession, then the circumstances are consistent. If the threat meant anything else, it needs explanation. • • • President Roosevelt is said to have had la contemplation a message to Congress recommending that Congress proceed with the construction of the Panama canal by force if Colombia would not accept the Hay-Herran treaty. • • •

Why is President Roosevelt so determined that—Colombia or no Colombia, Congress or no Congress, law or no law-the Isthmian canal shall be nstructed across Panama?

Is it because Nicaragua would be the poorer route? That is not for him to decide. The responsibility for choice of route is upon Congress, not upon the President. It is the President's duty to execute the law as he finds it, quite as much as it is the citizen's duty to obey the law as it is.

Is it because $40,000,000 is to be given to the influential gentlemen in Wall street who own most of the stock of the French company, provided the canal goes through Panama, and that there is no such "watermelon" to be cut in connection with the Nicaragua route? That is hardly probable. Roosevelt's weaknesses do not lead him toward mere plunder.

Is it, then, because the continental railroad ring prefers the Panama route as the best way of killing off the canal project? It is incredible that railroad passes should be so effective.

Perhans President Roosevelt, eage as a schoolboy in circus time for nom nation and election to the office he not holds only by accident, is influenced ing it. He may not trace to their sordil source the influences that are guiding him. However that may be the truth is that large stakes in that $40,000,000 have played no incon-apieuous part in strengthening the l'annua forces. And this influence has been reinforced by the railroad interests. They do not want any canal to compete with them; but since the demand for some canal is irresistible they advocate the Panama route as least likely to be successful enough to disturb their interests. Whatever the President's motive may be he has plainly violated the act of Congress which required him, when the Colombians rejected the American ultimatum as to the Panama route, to proceed with the Nicaragua route. United States in a position of ex-

tn-mely humiliating dishonor. It is a dishoner of deeper true than that of the British, which we con-uived at in South Africa, or that which we took upon ourselves in the Phillip-pines. Dishonorable as was our policy with reference to those black episodes in Angla-Saxon history, it was only morally so. Or, at least, the legal dishenor was not pronounced enough to remove it from the field of debate. And as for mere moral dishonor, what of it? What man could get rich, what mere morel considerations were al lowed to interfere? The day of moral philosophy, has it not passed? Aren's we living now in the day when every thing from forgery to benevolent as-similation is tested not by motive but by results? Moral dishonor, therefore, auch as we incurred in connection with the British conquest of South Af-rica and the Yankee conquest of the Philippines, may be forgotten in the glorious outcome of those buccancer-ing enterprises. But our dishonor in connection with the recognition of Panama is not only revolting to the moral sense; it is a consequence also of international bad faith on our part, and of our deliberate violation of the generally accepted law of nations in a transer so unambiguous as to admit of no defense.—The Public.

THE STORM BREAKS

very close and still. The omens gathered. It was bard to breathe in the atmosphere of the castes. Mos choked and gasped. Truth choked and gasped. Justice was faint and con-gested. Something had to occur. Oppression oppressed too much. Greed was too greedy. Our civilization looked about upon itself wondering what to do. The evers warned us. The old regime, they said, was about to end. End in storm, We were giad. Or we were incredulous. Or we were contemptuous. But all the while all of us were short of breath. The clouds closed everthead. What was on the wind? Civilization cried for life. There was finally one dead moment of lull and terror. Then we knew that the laste had been drawn.

The storm has come. The trees rock to their roots. The palaces are shaken. Fortunes go begging for owners. Estates are looking for their masters. The proudest king becomes the humblest subject. Money has turned beggar. The most certain has become the most uncertain. You were sure of money yesterday. But to-day money is not sure of itself. Riches knock at the door of poverty asking in vain to be let in. Called ransoms ath. I see that in the porm all are equal. All men are off the same piece of goods. We hurried away from each other yes-terday. To-day we hurry together, Nothing is spared. All your sacred properties are scattered. Your pieces of paper called stocks and bonds. You Your profits. Your rents. Proudly elected gods 'vesterday, Today dethroned. Yesterday's revellers to-day's penitents. The army out-armled in the massacre of this storm. The navy wrecked up the rockshores of its own dastardly seas. Priests lost to their religion. Statesmen damned in the perversity of office. God! how the wind blows. Did we reckon up our civilization in figures so easily dissinated? Was its foundation so frail that the first real attack takes it down? We had counted so much upon goods. So little upon men. Of what use are goods to-day? Men alone are bouldir is no use. Greed is no use. Profit and loss is no use. Men alone are of use. Love alone. In yester-day's delusion we paid court to foliages and forgot roots. To-day in the fury of this storm the roots have been exposed and we know where our worship must be bestowed. That worship so long squandered in churches and kept out of life. That worship so long lavished upon the things made by man and denied to man. That worship abundantly wasfed in a world without social unity. The storm is furious. It is singing values right and left. That which we thought eternal is gone. That which we have not thought much of has brought us strength. The millionaires are the first to go. And the rulers. And the scholars who know too much to know anything. They go with the first onslaught. And the paupers stay. The superior people are not superior to this storm. They are not even superior to their own in-feriority. The frutricidal institutions and women remain. The everyday nobodies are equal to the peril. The wholesome laborer stands still erect not shirked from his orbit. So the storm is raging. So strong is being sifted from weak. So ephemeral is being sifted from eternal. The storm has come. It is a clear ing house. The rich are paying their debt to the poor. Injustice is paying its balance to justice. Now only real ownerships are recognized. In the austerity of this crisis only justified claims are allowed. Dress counts for nothing. Courtesy counts for nothing. Your city house and your country house count for nothing. Your club Innguage of the common. It averages the vocabulary of the active. It adheres to no elect code of behavior. It just says the say of right. It just balances the balance of equity. It just talks straight out the talk of complete the general manager of the lines operated. just talks straight out the talk of command. I see you feint as it to qualify its decisions. Do you suppose this storm is not to do its work complete? Do you suppose it, will stop before its work is entirely done? It did not come in a hurry. It was prepared for by all the forces of oppression and of prophecy. Now that it has come it has come full of menace. It came not by catastro-he but by law. It will pregood the whipping is going to do you.

You only feel the whip. The storm is here. The storm is the whip. Tou shrink, sting, suffer, perhaps die. But the storm had to come. You perhaps have to die. But the storm comes by appointment. It is fulfalment. And you who have worked so lowe for your. you who have worked so long for your own greed alone were all the time without knowing it working for this atorm alone. I do not blame you. But I am trying to explain the storm. The storm is as necessary to you who have prospered as to those you have dispos-sessed. The storm. The clearing. Its How more than rich I am owning nothing in a world of lovers. How all my parchment fortune goes up in the first fire. How all my proud incomes are sfraid. How all my poyerties, are undaunted. How all the stolen cul-tures tremble for their life. How unleitered wisdom outlasts the recur-rent furies of assault. It is taking everything from me but myself. It is saying to me: You are yourself enough. It is showing me that only when I own myself alone and nothing else can other men own themselves alone and nothing else. And that only is a world in which this adjustment is reached is liberty finally safe. And that only with liberty safe is man safe. For man is liberty, And therefore, that only with liberty safe will the storm subside. That is what the storm is teaching me in the inveteracy of its anger. For it is now plainly to be seen that the storm does not come to violate a law but to remind us that we have broken a law. The law of hu-man comity. The law of life at the root. The law of social order at the root. The law of communal service. root. The law of communal service.

We have gone on piling up stone and complains of our neglect. Now the law asks: Meanwhile what have you done for me? We have done much for grandeur. Much for aristocracy. Much for rulership. Much for the authority of the great. What have we done for humility? For democracy For obedience? For those who re fuse to exercise authority? The law proclaims in this storm its resumption of the law. It does not make an in dictment. It does not reason. It does not browbeat. It comes in the storm You may die running away or die stay ing here. The storm will go on. For ever on. And still forever. We are in the midst of its trial scenes. All the mockerles of for tune and piace are swept away in the fury of the floods. The storm means to strip us here. The storm means that we have got to go naked into the future. That we have got to clothle ourselves in the righteoneses of a just regime. I am cowed and sorrowful. I am arrogant and jubilant. I am har-ried in the wild hour of the chase. The storm center is in me. In you. The tempests, the tides, the flames, drawn and flood-me, only me. You, only you. I stand in their midst without a weapon. I am cast unshielded into weapon. I am cast unshielded into the passion of this storm. It is pitch dark. I careen in the midst of shadows. I do not see a way out. But I know there is a way. And I know that somewhere on the way out I will meet my true comrade and that he will not deceive me in the beyond.

THE INDEPENDENT FARMER

By C. J. Lamb

I am personally acquainted with Mr. Independent Farmer. He is a near relative of the writer. The woods of Michigan are full of him. Yesterday I visited two of him.

They are partners in the renting of a two-hundred-acre farm whose owner lives in town-not an uncommon thing They are both honest men and take oride in paying their debta. Yesterday vas Sunday, but the debts were doubt less pressing, so they were both pressed into work on Bunday. They were hauling corn-stalks, and I felt as though in visiting them I was tres passing on the vested rights of som ssible creditor of these Independen Parmers, who, because of my visit, might perchauce not be paid in full.

My friends were pretty middling hard workers—they and their wives. One of them is about forty-five years old and since childhood has been a hard worker. His habit is to get up at four in the morning and work till eight or nine at night, beginning and ending with the innumerable "chores," the tending of horses, cattle, hors. sheep and chickens, the milking of a half-dozen or dozen cows. This he has kept up for years and each year found him on the same rung of the financial

Occasionally their landlord, a kindly man smooth spoken, visits the farm and casts his eagle eye over the premises, collects the butter and egg money of the wives, makes a few suggestion about fences or fields and passes back to town, thankful that he has such thankful over the possession of a good horse. And doubtless they feel good over the possession of so good a land-lord. He only gets half the product of the farm and is so very pleasant about it. This leaves the workers half the farm's product, and on that half they proceed to do business with the various trusts and business combinations. The railroad is duly incorporated to collect its share of interest and dividends and they must pay or let their products rot. They must divide with their blacksmith, their thresher man and their storekeeper. Their binding twine man collects for the trust he erves and Rockefeller religiously collects his tithes that he may endow a college or capture a steel or copper trust. The Sugar Trust takes its per-centage and divides with the Senate. The Leather Trust treads on his toes, and the Hat Trust slape his earn. LABOR LEADERS AT THE WHITE HOUSE. During this week a group of selfstyled representatives of the Butte labor movement will leave the city of smoke for Washington, where they will for a few days be given the sacred privilege of worshipping at the shrine of "Teddy the Terrible," while the workingmen they are alleged to represent will continue in idleness, with starration and hitter cold confronting themselves and dear ones as a feature of the capitalist system, of which "Theodore the Great" is so perfect a ambassadors from the Gibraltar of labor will doubtless treasure in their memories as long as they live the oc-casion when they were honored per-sonally with an interview with the grand sachem of the Americans—the ruler of a nation who signed a law making of the United States an abou lute military despotism; a president who directed the soldiers to shoot members of the Western Federation of Miners at Morenci, Aris., and who permitted the United Stries govern-ment to furnish one thousand Krag-Jorgensen rifles and 60,000 rowhds of nunition to the Crippie Creek Mine Owners' Association to shoot in cold blood strikers who might incur the displeasure of capitalism. After these men who have selected themselves as representatives of Butte labor have fawned their fill they will doubtless be permitted to return home for the pur-pose of boosting the rough rider for president next year.

These "union men" go to Washington as "union men" because Butte is a "union" city and Teddy needs a "union" boost since he made a scab shop of the government printing office.

The president says he wants to con-fer with the "labor leaders." Why don't he "confer" with President Moyer and the Executive Board of the Western Federation of Miners regarding the military atrocities in Colorado? Why didn't he "confer" before he sent the soldiers to break the strike at Morenci? Why didn't he ask the opinion of American labor before signing the Dick military law, reducing every American workingman to a condition of military servitude? It is related that in the early history of this country, upon the rumor of an approaching Indian outbreak the covment would invite the chiefs of the Labor. warriors to Washington, where they would first be regaled with wine dint ers and amusements to impress upor t. om the beauties of civilization, after which they would be shown the military strength and resources of the gov ernment to demonstrate to them the fruitlessness of rebellion. Now that labor troubles have succeeded Indian troubles, it is the "big chiefs" of labor who are invited to Washington.

MILLS' LESSON BOOK

When a comrade writes a book of 500 pages, said to embody dation Principles of Social Economy, it would seem that he would gladly use the press of the movement for the purpose of acquainting our courades with the work.

Where this is not done, where instead of coming into the open light in go to Washington "simply as individuals" and in no way representing the unions, but we will wager dollars to doughnuts they will be heraided in the daily papers from ocean to ocean as the representatives of unionism in the Gibraltar of labor in a pligrimage to pay tribute to the "labor" president. The "labor" president. The "labor" president. The man who holds a card in the Brotherhood of Locomolive Firemen and who never soiled his hands with a chunk of coqi; who was even made "neverous" because the sagine of his palace train whistled too loudy. Does anyone bethe book reviewer's columns of our

that the work is "the result of thirty problems at first hand."

In view of the self-admitted fact that Comrade Mills had his speech prepared for supporting the Bryan campaign of 1900, the fruits of "thirty years of constant study" very slow in ripening. The fact that Milis was "thirty years constantly studying" before he embraced Social-ism, should not and no doubt did not make his welcome into the movement any less ardent. When, however, a member of our party, whom it took thirty years of study to become a Socialist, brings out a work and claims for it the prestigeof being fundamental, that is something which demands analysis and dissection. Comrades should purchase the work and give it a careful perusal before attempting the wholesale distribution planned in the circulars being sent to secretaries of locals. -St. Louis

NEW YORK CITY'S

CAMPAIGN SURPLUS.

To the Editor of The Worker:- I understand that the Campaign Commit-tee of Greater New York has come out of the campaign with a surplus of veral hundred dollars in its hands, and that it is proposed that the committee dissolve and that this money be apportioned among the locals of the

It seems to me that such action would be more than a mistake, that it would be an act of bad faith to the contributors. This money was given to provide for a campaign, not to cover the expenses of the ordinary work of our locals nor to pay their debts. To campaign purposes only can it justly be applied. That a quarter or a third of the whole amount contributed for the city campaign remains unused when the campaign is closed is a fact that reflects little credit on the Campaign Committee. However, "there's no use crying over split milk." But since we have falled to do in the campaign of 1903 all that we had money to do for, we should make up for our fault by applying the surplus strictly to campaign work for 1904.

What is there to be done? Let me suggest two or three things. The lists of registered and enrolled voters will be published in a few steeks; money would be well spent schiling circulars to the voters calling their attention to our past progress and to the importance of next year's conflict, urging them to activity, and suggesting to them the ways in which they can best serve the cause. Again, we seem to be in for a period of hard times and unemployment; money would be well spent in the distribution of a special leafet explaining the causes of this trouble and the way out. Yet again, occasions are likely to arise which will make it desirable to hold large public meetings or demonstrations in all the boroughs, and the campaign fund surplus could very properly be drawn upon for such a purpose.

If none of these things are done then, the surplus from our city eamin trust until the opening of next year's campaign, and by no means applied to the ordinary work of the locais.

If the present Campaign Committee dissolves, as is proposed, then we should elect either a Preliminary Cam-paign Committee of 1964 to use the money on some such lines as I have indicated or a Campaign Fund Tr Committee to hold it intact till next rummer.

I would suggest that between now and Dec. 14 (when, I believe, the Campaign Committee contemplates winding up its affairs and committing harukari) each of the locals should consider this matter and should decline to receive any share of the surdus and indicate whether its proportionate share is to be held till pext summer or spent in preliminary cam-paign work—and, if the latter, under whose direction,

FOR THE DAILY.

Progress of the Work of Raising Funds.

The Importance of Having a Socialist Daily Newspaper Before the Presideatlel Compaign - Activity of the Daily Glabe Conforcace.

A. D., S. D. P., Brooklyn; Giger Makers No. 149, Brooklyn; Bushwick The work of raising the balance of the Daily Globe Fund is being taken hold of in earnest and before the end of this month it is hoped to have enlisted in this work every Socialist in Greater New York. The comrades in Brooklyn are especially active and have already made a good start. New York will follow this good example and do likewise, or better if Every cent that has been pledged collected this winter without fail, and comrades are urged to lend a beloing hand and see that it is done O. Wegener, 11 Cooper Square, New York, is taking charge of the pledges in Manhattan, Broux, and outside points, while Comrade Butscher will look after the pledges in Brooklyn, in addition to his many other duties for the party. Comrades in the respective boroughs are requested to give them generous support in the work they have attempted. Socialists and sym-pathizers out of the Greater City who have made pledges are requested to begin at once to make payments on acunt, forwarding the money to Comrade Wegener. Socialists who have as yet not pledged or contributed to the Daily Globe Fund should know that it is the intention of their comrades in New York to publish the Daily Globe during the Presidential campaign, if the bar-ance of the money necessary can be raised in time. The great assistance a daily paper would be in spreading the ideas of Socialism among the working class must be obvious. A new impetus and interest would be immediately centered in the movement with the publication of our Socialist daily. If you believe these statements true, if you want to see the movement grow.

If you want to reach the people and make them familiar with Socialist principles, help us to establish next year the first Socialist daily newspaper. Send in your contributions at nce, no matter how small-but the larger the better—to belp swell the fund, help push forward and strengthen the Socialist movement of

The proposition to remove the State Committee to Rochester was discussed at length by Comrades Phillips, Spargo, Hillquit, Belchenthal, Abrahams, Bernstein, and others. VIOLENCE IN STRIKES.

In a great street car strike ill ten per la inevitable on both sides. On the side of the corporation it finds vent in subtle ways. Professional "strikebreakers," the hired thurs of detective agencies, are imported to play in the role of "honest workingmen" seeking "honest work for an honest living" and being denied this natural right by "vicious strikers"—a trick of corpora-tions which furnishes material fo: platitudinous editoriais in plutocratic papers. Other tricks ever less excus-able and more subtle may be played by that party to a strike which fights with money instead of numbers. On the other side, strikers or their friends are apt to vent their temper with bricks and cobblestones. That these riolent attacks are expressions of momentary temper and not of malice or deliberate lawlessness, is evident enough 14 4. enough. If the strikers were deliberstely lawless, they could wreck our lines beyond possibility of restoration for weeks. That they confine their disorders to personal assaults and petty obstructions makes it clear that they are irritated rather than mali-cions. But the real point is that dis-orders of this kind are inevitable in a great strike, while human nature is as can prevent, betray such reckless defi suce of public rights as to be unwor

RAILWAY WORKERS' HEAVIER TASKS The tendency of the railroads-as of capitalist industry in general—to get more and more work out of a given number of men, is illustrated by figures of twenty important railways of the United States, showing the average freight-train load for the last four On all but five of the twenty the

The extent to which the state au-horities of Colorado have gone in United Mine Workers. helping the standard Oll interests and the Colorado Fuel and Iron, Company to break the strikes of the gold and confuniners, organized in the Western Federation of Miners and the United Mine Workers, respectively, outdoes even the records of Homestead, Pu'lman, and the Cour d'Alenes.

The proposition to treat even UN-ARMED "resistance" to the commands of a military despot as treason, nunishable by death, is comething new in American history. In the most critical moments of the Civil War no such construction of the law of treason was ever resorted to.

Equally outrageous is the setting up of a military consorable of the local press and even of the dispatches to be sent to outside papers. After cutting off the appeal to elected judges and civil officers, the military tools of capitalism propose to cut off also the appeal to public opinion.

THE SOCIALIST VOTE. The Socialist Party (the Social Democratic Party of New York) has passed through its account general election. Its growing power is indicated and its speedy victory for-shadowed by the great increase of its vote as shown in these figures:

SOCIALISTS AND THE TRADE UNIONS.

A correspondent finds serious fault with what he considers the too moderate action of the Socialist delegates in the recent convention of the American Federation of Latior and, in view of the defeat of their resolutions, urges "that the time has arrived for the members of the Socialist Party to stop fawning at the feet of the Federa-

The strictures upon the course idented by the Socialist trade unionists at Roston seem to us not well founded. They did not "diseard revo lutionary tactics and became pure and simple reformers." They made it perfactly clear that they stood for Socialism, unequivocal and unqualified, and that they wished the Federation to take such a stand. The battle was fought on that line against a well organized opposition and the clear test in the interest of the justice and reof strength which resulted seems to sultant barmony that ought to charus very satisfactory.

With the second part of our correnondent's argument, however, we north agree. We have for some years past attached too much importance to the adoption or the defeat of Socialist solutions in various unions or in the Federation. Such resolutions, M adopted, hind no one, and if they did bind anyone to act for Socialism against his own convictions, it would se very bad for the Socialist cause.

To our mind-and we have said it already three years ago-all that we as Socialists have a right to ask and all that we have reason to desire from the trade unions is a fair chance, an equal chance with our opponents, in carrying on the work of economic and political education in their midgt. The introducing of resolutions is worth while only as it gives an opportunity for discussion. The passing of such resolutions is important only in so far as it shows the effect of such discussion. If a Socialist resolution is passed on its own merits, that is an indication that we are making progress, and it is nothing more. The trade union movement has its legitiuate and important functions. Because the commissarint and the hospital brigade do not go to the front in battle and vould, by themselves, be powerless, it does not follow that an army can fight as well without those services at its back. The trade union cannot put an end to exploitation and class rule; it seems probable that it cannot even win for the working class as a whole any considerable increase receive. But, granting all this, its usefulness as a means of defense and of mutual aid in the daily fight is not to be underestimated; and infinitely more important yet is its service in training the workers in organized action on class lines and unconsciously develop-

The question is: Having a National Committee composed of state representatives, is it state organization be vested with power equal to that of the representational Committee be elected by and held responsible to the minority of the party membership? If this is a fair be defented. If it is unfair sind unwise, the amendment should be carried.

According to the dues payments for the last three months, the state or territorial organizations of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Idaho, Kaunas, Maine, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Ore gon, South Dakota, Texas, and Vermont, have less than 250 members each. Yet each of these has a voting strength equal to that of California, with its 1,000 members, or New York. with its 2,200. The six states of Mass achusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, and Celifornia have over 45 per cent, of the party membership; yet they have but one-fourth of the voting power in the National Committee. The seventeen smallest state organizations have altogether only about 22 per cent, of the membership; yet they have a clear majority in the National Committee.

It is not in the interest of any on state or any one geographical section, not in the interest of the large states any more than of the small ones, but in the interest of the party as a whole, acterize a Socialist organization, that we urgs every comrade to attend the meeting of his local and record his vote in favor of the proposed amendment.

THE SOCIALIST PARTY AND THE UNIONS.

To the Editor of The Worker:--What in the name of common sense was the matter with the Socialists who were delegates to the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor? Why did they discard revolutionary Socialist tartics, only to become full-fledged pure and simple reformers?

The press informs us that Comrad-Max Hayes introduced the following resolution as a substitute for the Committee on Resolutions' report to the Since wages can never be regarded as the full equivalent for labor's toll. this convention recommends that the workers use their political and economic power along the lines of their class interests to occure for labor the full product of its toil." Was Comrade Hayes ashamed to in-

wert the word Socialism in the resolu tion? Was be-hypnotized by Mr. Samuel Compers? After introducing such a milk and water resolution, f am not surprised that Mr. Gompers and his labor lieutenants started to "roast" the Socialist delegates. I was not in the least surprised to learn that the "Hayes resolution" was knowed under Why should the members of the So callist l'arty beg au endorsement from right to expect an endorsement from the American Federation of Labor than we have to expect an endorse ment from the Civic - Pederation through the recognized lenders of that organization—Mark Hanna and his fleutenant, Samuel Gompers. Why not try to get an endorsement from th Citizens' Industrial Alliance? Why not try to capture the National Asso-ciation of Manufacturers? Why should Socialists try to capture the American Federation of Labor?

The objects of the American Federation of Labor is to secure for its mem-bers a portion of what they produce. It holds that the capitalist is entitled to a portion of the wealth that the laborers produce. It holds that the capitalist is a necessary factor in our system of production and distribution. It aims to keep the capitalist system intact and thus aids to pernetual wage-playery.

It is my opinion that the time has arrived for the members of the Socialist Party to stop fawning at the feet of the American Federation of Labor.

The principles of the Socialist Party should never be trailed in the dust at the feet of Mr. Compers or any other man, he he trade uniquist or otherwise. The capitalist papers are unanimou in the statement that James F. Carev's defeat was largely attributable to the trade union quarrel which has torn the working class in Haverhill asunder during the past year. This quarrel was fomenfed by the capitalist emissaries in and out of the unions. What part did the President of the A. F. of L. play in the late campaign? The Social Democratic Herald" published the following bit of information in its issue of Nov. 14: "In connection with the labor union warfare which figured largely in the defeat of James F. Carey, it became known that the visit of Edward L. Dailey of Lynn to this city played an important part. He came to this city on a secret visit and interviewed many labor leaders. It was understood at the time that Mr. Dalley visited Haverbill, it was at the request of Provident Gompers of the A. F. of L., who wanted Carey defeated, as with the probability of the renewal of the fight over the recognition of Socialism at the national convention of that or-ganization in Boston, President Compers wished to see Carey shorn of his political honors rather than that he should attend the convention as a delegate with continued success in the political world."

Francisco? Francisco?
Suppose the convention had recommended the formation of a national union labor party, what a nice mean the Socialist delegates would be I To be consistent the Socialist delegates would have to support the action taken by the convention.

It is high time that Socialists begun o understand that the trade union novement can never be anything more thun a palliative, and can do no more good than a porous plaster can do by putting it on a wooden leg. The trade union movement cannot and does not propose to abolish the wage system of slavery. The trade union can only improve the condition of a fraction of the working class, and that can only be hed at the expanse of the other fraction.

Comrades, the time has arrived for us to concentrate our time and energy to propagating the principles of Social ism, rather than to divide it, in advo cating Socialism and pure and simple trade unionism in the one breath. Comrades, what is your opinion of

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION.

To the Editor of The Worker:-- Thus for but little has appeared in the So cialist press relative to the proposed smendment to our unitonal constitu-tion. This amendment is of so much importance that I cannot refrain from saying a word about it for publica-tion. Under the present constitution National Committeemen, so far as voting is concerned, stand in about the same relation to the party membership as l'uited States Semitors do 10 the people, except that there are two of the latter from each state and but one of the former. So matter what the membership in any state, the Committecnian's vote balances the vote of any other Committeeman-though one mar represent ten or twenty times as many disfranchisement of a percentage of the voting power of every state with a membership above the average; and, on the other hand, states with a mem-Lership below the average are enabled to pad their voting power far out of proportion to the membership of such state. Being opposed to both the principle of disfranchisement and "ballot-box stuffing." I want to register my protest against the continuation of a system that is foreign to the spirit of neerncy. If the Socialist movement stands for anything in party affairs it stands for democratic management and control-not management and control through a representative system which gives to some states ten or twenty or fifty times more voting power in proportion to party member ship than some other states.

I happen to have been one of the Committee on Constitution at the Inmember that this question of state representation and power in the National Committee was one that caured considerable perplexity—to myself at any rate. I resitsed that to give each state one vote regardless of party membership would be inequitable and unjust. But with the limitations in every direction which then hampered the movement, just what plan to offer as a substitute was the puzzling question. We were launching upon untried seas, and the only thing we could do was to adopt the plan which seemed best AT THE TIME, and trust to the value of experience to improve upon it. We have found from experience

I may be something of a crank on the subject of democracy, but unless I am badly mistaken the first great lesson Socialists must learn is the lesson of democracy. We can never have we understand how to democratically control party affairs, not to mention industry. So anything that tends to-ward democratic control in the party ought to be encouraged. But we must tate to change our systems in any respect whenever it is advisable to de

One mistake made by comrades is in thinking of the proposed system of voting in the National Committee as referendum at all. We are now about to take a referendum vote on a con stitutional amendment. If this amendment is adopted then each National Committeeman will vote according to the members of the party in go standing in the respective states the respective states which will still be a representative sys tem, but a long step nearer the demo-cratic ideal than the present plan of each state having one vote. Wipe out the state lines, and who for an instant would tolerate the present inequitable distribution of voting power! The sys test which brings into play propor-tional voting power in the National Committee is far more just than voting by states. And we shall continu to have the safeguard of the general

One argument I have heard against the proposed change is that if we rely too much upon the membership direct, opportunist movements may grow up in different sections which would compromise the whole movement. We are face to face with that danger now, it seems to me, just as much as we are ever likely to be. The membership must be made to understand its rebilities, and in no way can this be accomplished so effectively as by placing responsibilities upon it. But this is beside the issue. National Com-mitteemen will continue to vote, under the new system, according to their best judgment, just as they do now— unless individual states take a referenmiess individual states take a referendum on any given proposition for the control—in the direction of unjority rule—and it is a very lame docisilat movement that can't rely upon the principle of majority rule. When we depart from that we follow in the footsteps of the old parties, and everyone knows what that will lead to.

I have faith in the general member-ship to do the right thing. The allege,! "half-baked" in the party evidently are a small minority. The majority is all right. Let us not seek to keep that majority from being heard, or prevent them from acting., Most of the Sowill, I am satisfied, from this time on. largely outnumber the papers with an opportunist temiency. Therein lies our greatest safeguard. I can see no danger ahead from the adoption of the proposed change in the constitution. and it will save us from the rocks and quick ands of opportunism. Let us adopt the amendment "by a unautmous rising vote."

A LETTER TO MILLS. Mr. | Walter Thomas Mills, Kansas

Cay, Mo.: Dear Comrade:-In your circular letter of Nov. 19th to the comrades of Kaussa, I find a statement which I feel obliged to correct out of justice to others. It concerns subjects upon which you must have been inisinformed, and will doubtless gladly co-oper

I refer to the statement that Comudes Wentworth, Spargo, Mailly and others, are members of a "Fellowship" which is a special organization, and in no way answerable to the Socialist l'arty. Let me state that there is not and never has been, any organization known as the "Fellowship." The term was merely given to a fund set apart to enable a few young men to give their whole time to the Socialist movement for a certain period of time. The distinct and first condition of this fund was that each recipient should be answerable only and solely to the Socialist Party, or the branch of it with which he might be co The members of the so-called "Fellow-ship" are answerable to no organization or no person, and stand in exactly the same relation to the Socialis movement that every comrade stand or should stand.

In the second place, I think the im plication concerning Comrade Mailiy is especially unfortunate, as it suggests that he is receiving a salary from the fund in question and also his salary as National Secretary at the same time. Such a statement might be construed as a reflection upon ble integrity. The implication is absolutely incorrect. Mr. Mailly's membership in the so-called "Fellowship censed, and his meagre salary from the fund censed, when he because es tablished as National Secretary of the Secinist Party, nor has be received a dollar from the fund since then, nor would be receive such a second salary under any circumstances. I think this implication is especially to be regret-ted, for, if there lives a man on the planet of more sensitive or chivalrous integrity than William Mailly, I do not know where to find bim, nor do know where to find a man who is pouring out his life in greater idelity or unselfish devotion to the Socialist movement. I think the implication is also unfortunate, because of the fact that we have troubles enough in the Socialist movement without creating any new personal equations or dis-putes. I deplore all such and whin that the energy which is devoted to personal attack and defense might be converted to the service of the cause uto the subject matter of your letnd, indeed, my long absence copy of the capitalist system of representation—and the time has come when the Socialist movement of America demands the substitution of something better.

I may be tice to the comrades whom you name, and out of justice to the movement in which they work, and I am sure you come to you upon the subject.

As your letter to the Kansas rades is an open and published letter I feel that it is only proper and just that I should also make this correction an open and published letter, an I therefore send it to the Socialist as at the same time I send it to GEORGE D. HERRON.

HISTORY, OF SOCIALISM IN THE UNITED STATES. By Morris Hillquit. New York. Funk & Wagnalis Co. 1908. Cloth, 321 pp., with index. Price, $1.50.

The task of the historian of the So cialist movement in the United States, and especially of the first to undertake as any student would care to under-table. The ignorance or positive misconception among the general public odcerning the very nature of the novement, as well as concerning its other nocial movement might comparatively disregard; the two or three or more independent sources of the more-ment, involving different phases or who are active in its ranks to-day, and tain early and extremely interesting and important periods and episodes, the records and documents are incomplete and difficult of access, necessitations of the stringent "me fusions"

ing both dilipsuce and eareful judg-ment in the historian; linally, white no one outside of the movement can be expected to understand the spirit well caough to give even a tolerably intelli-gent account of its development, one who has long participated in its work is likely to latior under the proverbial disselvantage of being unable to see the ferest for the trees. No one could have been named more competent to neet and overcome these many and various difficulties than Morris Hillquit, and the success with which his labors have been crowned is occasion for congratulation both to the author and to his readers-may their name

The revolutionary press that it does not treat or treats but very briefly. Especially, it could undoub edly have been made more entertain-ing—and to be entertaining is a virtue in any book, though not by itself a anticient virtue-if the author had in cluded more quotations, personal de-tails, and anecdotes in the way of Illustration and had given himself freer rein in narration, description, and comment. But the desire for conciseness was evidently ever present it his mind and the dispreportion b tween the magnitude of his subject and the practical limitations on the size of a book in "these degenerate 'yn" quite justifies his course. We could wish for the expansion of the first part, dealing with the sectorion and utopian communities, into a vol-ume as large as the whole of this, and of the second part into perhaps two

But there he a very real connection between them, nevertheless, and the student of modern Socialism must know the utopian periodjust as the student of auatomy and physiology must investigate the emtryonic development and observe organs or characteristics that disappear

Our author's treatment of the sectarian and the utopian-Owenite, Fourierite, and Icarian-communities is far and away the best that we have. The facts of their establishment and their varying fortunes are narrated in due order and proportion, and the neasure of success—direct and tem-porary or indirect and leating—that they achieved is as justly estimated as the inevitability of their failure. viewed as experiments in practical communism, is clearly set forth in the pursage (pp. 140, 141) beginning: "The founders of all communities proceeded on the theory that they could build up a little society of their own, eliming! from it all features of modern civiliza-tion which seemed objectionable to them, fashion it wholly after their own views of proper social relations, and isolate themselves from the surrounding world and its corrupting influence But the times of Robinson Crusoes, in-dividual or social, have passed."

We are inclined to criticize, as some what too sweeping, the statement, in the introduction to the second part tp. 149, that, "on the whole, the early ntopian theories and communistic colonies had but little influence on the formation of the modern Socialist movement in the United States; the two movements are entirely different in nature and origin." The direct con nection between the utopian and the seen rather in the influence of utopian ism in its European home in the formation of modern Socialism in Europe especially through Weltling upp. 160 and following); but it seems to us that will be glad to join me in correcting and following); but it seems to us that our author has rather underestimated our author has rather underestimated the delivery to rightly the work of Relidegree to which the work of Bris hane, Greeley, Dana, the Brook Farm-ers and the mere existence, though in constant struggle and general failure. of the many communities has arouse intellectual or sentimental interest for men who would not otherwise so easily have been reached-men of such type that, though most of them have proved of very little service, a few have been very useful indeed. How ever, it is only on the question of degree that we would quarrel with the writer, and we recognize that, if he may somewhat unduly minimize this influence, it has generally been grossly exaggerated.

The introduction to the accord part is a masterpiece as a brief statement of the essential nature of the moder: Socialist movement and the conditions requisite to its development, as well as the reasons for its comparatively late and slow growth in this country The chapters on "The Ante-Bellum Period" and "The Period of Organiza-tion," extending down to 1877, treat of such a work, is about as difficult a one a subject very little known to the mi jority of the Socialists of to-day though we have a few courades stil active in our ranks who took part in those early struggles and helpedmake the experience by which defails, past and present, imposes upon him a sort of responsibility which the historian of the anti-slavery movement or of trade unionism or of almost any Weltling and the other German pio neers, the inducace of the International in America, the graduat divisi of the Socialist and the Anarchis wings (this carries us over into the aspects in its development, introduce complexities that make its history obscure, even to a large part of those of the party with the many sparadic ishor and reform parties of more o the historian has to clear up this observity; again, so far as concerns certified either as vaguely collectivist in know by hard experience, has not been without its strenuous conflicts, internal as well as against outside fors. The attitude of the party toward and its relations with the trade unions has been the subject of a great part of this conflict. The rise, power, and decline and fall of the Krights of Labor is an episode that cannot be understood apart from the history of the Socialist movement, and a most important one in its effects both on the party and on the unions. Closely connected with it is the history of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance, a shorter, sharper, and more conclusive recapitulation of the same experience. This experience brought us, on the one hand, to the division and reorganization of the Socialist political ingrement and the rise and the rapid and apparently solid growth of the Socialist for Securi Democratic) Party and the gradual decline of the S. L. P. suit, on the other, to the formulation of what promise to be lasting and mutually helpful relations between the political and the fudestrial organizations. It would be too much to say that the question of the relations of the Socialist Party 10 the unions is settled; but it is probably not too much to say that it seems well on the way to settlement and that the internal conflicts of the future in the party-for assuredly there will be internal conflicts in every living and wowing movement-will be chiefly on

In the last two chapters our author deals with events in which he has taken his part along with great numbers of those who will read his book. The latter can hardly fall to be finpressed with his success in maintainng an impersonal and judicial atti tude, for it is even harder to write con temporary history fairly than to write accurately of a period whose materials ire so scanty as those of the anteeilum days. All in all, we can only say that the book more than fullities the ex-pectations with which we took it up and that it is all but Indispensable to anyone who wishes to know the So-clalist movement in the United States as it exists to-day. In what we may call the mechanics of authorship, as well as of publica-tion, it is very satisfactory. But few typographical errors and but few instances of careless expression are to be found. Albert B. Parsons is referred to on page 208 as "R. A. Parsons." On page 235 as "R. Par-sons." On page 190, "War of the Rebellion" should surely be "War of the Revolution" to make some-but here the error may be in the document from which the passage is quoted. In the note on page 253, it would have been better to refer to the English transla-tion of Plechanon's "Anarchism and Socialism"than to thetierman. But the citing of such minor imperfections as these is itself a tribute to the carefulness with which the book has been prepared and carried through the the comrades elsewhere to know what work has been done and what the results in Allegheny County have been This county has been the stronghold of the S. L. P. and the Socialist Party pever made much beadway until the present year. But during the last year there have been five locals organ-lzed, all of which are flourishing, and five branches, one of which has about eventy members in good standing There have been light on the street about twenty mostings addressed by Comrades Kolowsky and Zamelo in Polish; about forty addressed by Comrade Mervis and others in Yhdish, and about two hundred by Eng. lish speakers, Controles Ada tohen, Wright, Williams, Newcon Delp, Swartz, and Wagenlander, and Taylor of Philadelphia and Knepf ungel of Peorin. About one hundred meetings were also held in halls.

Our veto in the county increased from 523 to 1,075 in the year, while that of the B. E. P. dorreased from 1,231 to 200, although they had a weekly organ.
This decrease in their vote brought from them the complaint that there had been "a lumping of herculean efforts in Allegheny County to bring about unity by destroying our militans and uncompromising class-conscious organization."

Last year the B. L. P. of Pennsylvaida secoded from the regular S. L. P., and not up a "National Executive Committee" of their own, believing that the money which goes to the N. E. C. in New York gets into the wrong Londo, and that the "logical center" for it is in Pittsburg. They are Anti-De Leon De Leonites; that is, they are of the De Leon school, but are posed to Daniel himself. They care more for the privilege of dominat-ing the movement than for the educa-tion of the working class; hence they spend their maney in baseless lawanits instead of in agitation; hence also their efforts to keep the Bucklist Farty spending money on invenits, so hs to keep our agitation in cheek. They contested our right to the sole use of the word "Socialist" on the state bullot, when the Socialist Perty was an official party and when many of them knew it was just throwing money away. One of them unwittingly explained why they forced this mit when he told the writer. "We will make it cost you something, anyhow." They made a frantic attempt to keep our county ticket of the official ballot, and this suit cost our County Consmittee $50. We won. They must have expected it to cost us much more, for one of them could not concent his disappointment when told the amount. They invoked the aid of the taw and then when defeated they hysterically denounced the law as "capitalist law" and "judge-made law."

The underhand tricks which capitalist politicious usually resort to any here resorted to by these people who claim it to be their function to guard the name of Socialism from being "dragged into the empiralist swamps." We know of at least one of our agin-tors to married man, at that) whom they tried to have discharged in the hope that he would leave the city. His suppleyer told our comrade that prominent members of the S. L. P. had an proached him, and tried to have this man discharged for his activity in the movement. Envy of the success of the Jewish branch caused them to make a systematic attempt to break it up. But they were always unswered to the satisfaction of the audience, which finally got tired of the daleful siren or parrots song that the and closed him up quite offertually.

A year ago, when these milliants (perhaps realizing the impotence of their organizations were ensuing about for something to unite with, they were greatly insulted because our State Committee told them they were walcome to join the same as other class conscious workingmen. They wanted to be admitted as an organization; to he received with a heating of drums and tom-toms, instead of quietly taking the place where they could do the as individuals they would be losing practige, and they seem to care more for their prestige than for the welfare of the working class.

If we believe them, the distinctive feature of the Socialist Party is the "mere bulk." But they were very anary when the Socialist Party refused to add more bulk to itself taking their whole organization. The Socialist Party knew that there was but not scrength to a Socialist organization.

However, the Socialist movement is making great progress in Allegheny County. It is a good thing that this movement does not have to depend on n few men in order to advance. Re-hind it are social forces which make its progress not only possible but in perative—the forces of sucial development. And this shows the Utopha character of those who think that any 'erook" or "fakir" can block its ad vaties, or that "good men" can custre itself equal to justice. Many of us saw only failure and death. Eaw only Did not see beyond th the storm. Did hot see beyond the storm. But he prophets were always there. Their faithful voices could always be heard above the cry of the wind and the crush of destruction. We knew that if the race could survive this storm it could survive anything. For this was not a storm up in the air. It was not a sephyred blow. It was not a fiash in the pan. It was a storm at the foundations. It was not a test of foliages. It was a test applied to the very root-stock of social It meant that you could hope for anything. It also meant that you might fear for everything. For it you night fear for everything. For it came after many questions as a final question. It came after questions had been shirted or answered wrong. It came as the question that had to be answered right. The storm of yesting. terday. The storm through which we have come to this beautiful morning.

CLEAR WEATHER AGAIN.

By Horace Traubel.

Clear weather again. Now I know how much the storm had to do with weather. How much the evil had to do with the good. How much the millionaire had to do with the unist. How much of my phan-l self I abandoned with the storm yesterdsy. How much of my real self I have brought over. Now I see what the storm was for. Why I had to starve. Why I had to be hated. Why I had to be misunderstood. Why my dreams were so slow coming true. Why my friends deserted me and why Why my release the my friends. Why the universe scened against me. Why as long as I was for myself the universe could not have been against me. Why the work always had to be everything and why the pay always had to be nothing. Why the people did not bear me. Why it was enough for me hear myself. Why religion was against the storm. And why art was against the storm. And why the state was against the storm. And why all the great and the powerful were everythe great and the powerful weter where against the storm. The editors.
And the legislators. And doctors who doctored the body.
And benks with vast treasures. Why all these were against the storm. And why only the weak were for the storm. The weak. The people without money. The peowithout power. The people with-The people in the courts The people. The children of perpetual hand threet. Not enough fed. Not ugh clothed. Not enough housed Why only the weak were for the Why only the weak armed only with storm. The weak armed only with sideas. With dreams. With suffering, sideas. Why ed only with only with starration. only the weak were for the storm. Why the powerful and the great were ngainst the storm and could not pre-vent the storm. Why the weak and the obscure were for the storm and brought the storm.

Clear weather again. Now I know what clear weather means. And that what clear weather means. And that is why I know what the storm meant. What the days before the storm meant. What it meant for people to be overfed and underfed. What the temporary victories of greed meant. Why the greedy were the first to suffer from greed. Why I sometimes wondered if love had not gone back on love. That is, that the universe had gone back on itself. For the sorof social wrong were so sharp they drove right into the soul. And the soul got to asking questions. And the questions of the soul were not ways cheerful. But they kept right on asking themselves in all sorts of ways. And the troubles grew. The were more and thicker. and that was what made the air so And that was why the morn came on. And that was why this superb morning has followed the storm. This morning of justice. All of which I did not know at the time. But all of which is now clear to me. Clear to me, and jubiliant and satisfying to me, in the miracle and law of a perfect result.

· Clear weather again. Well, we have We have got here with every thing and nothing. But we are safe. We are in good health. All the property has been brought along. But all owners are lost. The debris has en left behind. The musters have been left behind. The slaves have all been left behind. But all the men the roll. Nothing we need is missing. Not a thing. We are not one item whort. Most of the things we were udest of are left behind. They the other things proved themselves entable of the ordeal. And here we are, scirred but unburt. Scarred with the scars of love. With the scars of faith. Yet untouched.

Clear weather again. Think of it. You who still doubt always said could not produce the storm, ien the storm came you said we could not live through the storm. Now that we have lived through the storm about. See what you may see. Ask urself your questions over again, not this that you see worth living fur? You say you do not want to live in a world of angels. Neither do L. I. This is a world of men. It is a world in which frailty has a better chance to be taken care of and to which passion has a better chance to make peace with law. It is a world in which everything has a better chance to live out its own righteous mers and live down its own villainy. strong enough to strengthen but never Clear weather again. The crisis was You see property very small. You see that the owner net. Man proved equal to it. The Clear weather again. The timet. Man proved equal to it. The man very big. You see that the owner mac has come out of it unacathed, race has come out of it unacathed. Yes, glorified. The race has shown time to the first time sacred. You used to think that made property the only thing that made property sacred was ownership. Now you see that private property was always profane. Now you see the property of al that used to be the property of one be come the property of one by being the property of all. Is this an impossible world? Is justice impossible? In the old days you had to hold on to everything with both hands. But for that nothing was safe. You were always a drowning man. Now you may see that you need to hold on to nothing Everything is safe. You must hold on to yourself. That is all. Is this an impossible world? Did you think that men could always live on the line of peril? Did you think that man was always to be tied to a life preserver? That he was always to live on in fear? Going to hed not knowing but that a social cataclysm would before morning destroy him? Malevolent social forces laying for him in the dark? His sleep disturbed by dreams of ruin? His wake disturbed by facts of ruin?

See what you may see. Ask yourself whether this world does not offer you a superior suffrage. Clear weather again. Clear weather has brought a new kind of a man. Or the old kind of a man living out a new kind of life. I do not know just what it is. Nor how it is. But I know it is. Every man now sails his own ship. No alien is now at my rudder. Every man lives his own life. He lives n alien life. Now that the storm has cleared away we find that everybody has plenty of room. We find that every man knows there is enough room for all. That no man will now take more room than he needs. All that he needs. But not more. We find that the best way to induce men to live together is to give them a chance to live apart. In the new world of enough room the human spirit is learning how to live. We have got property rights out of the way. We have kept the property but abolished the rights. The storm unsettled wrong in order to settle right. It came out of dark days. It provoked all nature to inevitable fury. The elements raged. The ruln seemed complete. There was no visible way of escape. But the prophets still prophe sied. And when the destined work was done the sun came out again. We find in the revelation of this morning that no mistake was made. Every thing of real value has remained. Nothing has been lost that we cannot afford to lose. What we have gained is the one treasure to which all other must converge or be worth-have gained the chance to We betrayed ourselves to property. And property betrayed us to despair. Now we have seen that the man of millions with no chance to live was poor. That the man without cent with a chance to live is rich. And now that the storm has cleared we see that the social order never had but one task. The task to give people a chance to live. That when it was treacherous that task it was traitorous to the whole of life. That social order was not order but chaos. And that was why the air grew close upon chaos.

Comrade Stolanovitch, Secretary of Servia, reports to the International Bureau on the recent parliamentary elections in that country, the first in which our party has achieved success at the polls.

During the latter years especially of the reign of the late King Alexander the most brutal tyranny prevailed, all who did not how obsequiously to the criminal gang ti cialists were singled out for particuhad several narrow escapes in getting larly malevolent treatment. Whatever here. But we have strived. And we are all safe. Dead or alive we are the royal scoundrel was removed last June, the fact remains that a much greater degree of popular liberty has been enjoyed since then.

On Aug. 2 was held the first nation mensures were taken to participate actively in the September elections.
The results were highly encouraging, more than fulfilling all expectations.
At Kragonyevatz, our candidate, Dr. Mickel Ilitsch, one of the best Socialist scholars and propagandists, was elected by a large majority. In Leekovats, our candidate. Wladimir Savitz received so large a vote that a secon ond election the candidate of the united expitation parties won by a majority of only 00 votes. In Bel grade the contest was especially se-vere. Comrade Stois: ovitch claims that it was only by falsifying the list of voters that the capitalists were able to carry the day, Even so, the Socialist candidates were defeated by very small majorities.

Comrade Popovitch writes in th "Neue Zeit" that the party organization is making great progress, both among the industrial workers in the cities and towns and among the rural laborers, and that it is recognized by the propertied and ruling class as a formidable aliversary, whose power is sure to grow from day to day.

The results accomplished in the elec-tion are the more remarkable in view of the fact that the property qualifi-cation for voting excludes a large part of the working class.

Not One Attends the Court Reception.

Carry Out Instructions of Party Con gress in Claiming the First Vice Presidency - Effect of Increased Socialist Vote on Imporial Policy.

The Reichstag or Parliament of the German Empire was formally opened in the White Hall of the Emperor's palace on Thursday, Dec. 2. The press dispatches say:

"The assemblage was smaller than on the last occasion, twenty-five of the loyalists having been turned out by the Socialists, not one of whom ever attends the opening of the Reichstag, which is ementially a court function all the members present wearing a royal order. . . . After luncheon the members reassembled in the Reichstr for the preliminaries of organization All the Socialists were then present."

The Social Democratic members combated Paul Singer for First Vice President and also nominated candi-dates for some of the secretaryships. In the election, which took place of the following day, they received, of course, only Bocinlist votes.

The Vice-Presidency Discussion.

As the daily papers in this country have given 'very confusing accoun and made quite misicading comments upon this incident, treating the nomi nation of Singer as an unexpected de velopment and a violation of the reso adopted by the party convention in Dresden, it is necessary to give a correct statement.

By custom, the Social Democrati Party, being the second strongest party in the Reichstag and the strong sidered as entitled to the first vice presidency and one of the secretary ships. But, on the other hand, it is equally well established by custon that the members of the "bureau" the officers of the Reichstag-must be presented at court, and the Democrats have always refused to

During the past summer, especially after the parliamentary elections in June, certain elements in the party-the so-called "Revisionists," who dis the so-called "Revisionists," who dis-sent from the rigidly revolutionary ideas which prevail in the party-advocated the acceptance of these offices, with the condition of court presentation attached, "as a demonstration of the party's strength." A considerable element in the old parties, they said. would gladly yield this recognition to the Increased Social Democratic dele gation and would vote for whatever man, the Socialists might nominate This was certainly true. The capital-ist press loudly applicuded this evi-dence of "reasonableness" on the part of Bernstein and the other Revision ists, and Singer was suggested as the right man for the place-Singer, by the way, being a strict adherent of revolutionary ideas. The Bresden Congress.

This question, after being extensive discussed in the party press and ocal organizations, occupied a good part of the time of the party con held at Dreaden in September. In the debate upon it, the whole question of the proposals and the conduct of th Revisionists was threshed out. The debate was often acrimonious and the capitalist press on both sides of the water predicted a split in the party How little likelihood there was of a split, and how little support there was for the compromising tendencies out-side of a small group of "intellectuals," who did much more than their share of talking and writing, and so compelled public attention, was destrated by the vote cast on the two troversy. One of these resolutions was proposed by the party's Executive and was virtually a censure on the Revi tionists for their methods, especially in using the capitalist press for attack on the party's declared principles and policy and on many of its chosen lead eris. This was carried by a vote of 283 to 24. The text of this resolution printed in The Worker of Oct. 18,

"The Congress rejects in the most emphatic manner the revisionist efforts to change our tried and victorycrowned tactics, based upon the class struggle, by substituting for the conoverthrow of our opponents, a policy of conciliation with the existing order of things.

"The result of such revisionist tac tics would be that a party which works for the most rapid possible transformation of the existing bourgrois society into a Socialist society and which is in the best sense of the word revolutionary, would be changed into a party occupying itself with the reformation of hourgeois society. The Congress is therefore opposed to the revisionist movement now existing in the party, and is of the conviction that the class antagonisms do not decrease but rather grow sharper and clearer It accordingly declares:

The Congress expects that the 5ctal Democratic delegation in the Reichstag will use its increased in fluences gained through the efforts of the voting masses, for the enlightenment of the workers as to the aim of Social Democracy, to defend with all their power the interests of the working class and to strive for the extension and assurance of political lib-erty and equal rights for all and overgetically to oppose militarism and the colonial and expansionist policy and injustice, oppression, and exploitation in every form and to act energetically in favor of the enactment of laws to protect the workers and bring about their notifical and accial enumeries. their political and social emancipa

This declaration was carried by s vote of 282 to 11-those voting in the negative being Bernstein, Gertruc David, Elm, Grenz, Grünberg, Hering Hué. Loewe, Paul Müller, Gustav Müller of Breslau, and Karl Schwarz. It will be seen, therefore, that the

it is considered significant that the Government, as its policy for the couning session is outlined in the speech from the throne at the opening of the Reichstag, declares its intention not to ask for increased army appropriations within the next year and proposed further ameliorative social legislation There can be no doubt that this modes counsellors in due to the large increase of the Socialist rate, for the Socialist fraction has always been the head and front of the opposition to militarian and the labor and social legislation adopted in recent years is frankly avowed as a concession to Socialist

This is due to the electoral system—the unibers being chosen by electors, of whom one-third are elected by the verrich, one-third by the moderately rich, and one-third by the rest of the population. The Socialists refused to ente into, any conlitions and contented themselves with the moral effect of a straight vote, showing themselves no merically the largest party and thus demonstrating the position of the Landiag as a mon-representative govefning body.

A veritable reign of terror exists in Anaconda. Deliberately, secretly, in-sidiously, Amalgamated Copper Com-pany is weeding the Socialists out of the works, and had been doing so ever since the sintdown ceased. Each man has a brass identification cheek, which he carries while at work. At the end of the day he hange it up on the book which bears his number. Some fine morning, instead of his brass check, he finds a blank on the hook—a plain blue card. This means not only that he is "fired," but that he is unable to get work in any town in Montana get work in any town in Montana And in the worst case, when the af-thir goes over to the Railroad Commis-

A few instances will show to what extent the Copper Trust will go in its efforts to stamp out Socialism. A school girl in Anaconda heard a Socialist speaker on the street, became inter ested, bought some literature, and proceeded to talk Socialism to her school friends. Her father was "blue-carded." He protested that he was and always had been a Democrat, which was true. An interview followed between the father and one of the Motween the father and one of the Me guls at the works, and the unfortunate wage-slave was informed that his daughter was "talking Socialism around the school, and he would have to make her stop it if he wanted to resume work for the company." The resentment, bitter, violicitive, but silent among all the people, business men and gorkers, Republicans and Demo-lewish daily "Forward," translated for the Worker by I. E. Rabinovitch. During the six months, from the first to the thirtieth of September, the Manhattan elevated trains alone bave carried, in round numbers, about on: hundred and tweny-six millions of pas sengers. During the same months o year the number of massenger was only one hundred and eight millions. That is, the number of passen gers has increased by eighteen millions. This amounts to about 100,000 more passengers every day.

One hundred thousand passengers more means one hundred thousand nickels more for the company every day. The number of care and trips however, has remained about the The overcrowding on the elevated roads was already well high unbearable a year ago; it is easy to imagine how it is now, and how it will get be lafer on, in the winter months, when the overfilled trains become still more crowded.

A year ago the company did not run its business for mere charity: it was then making many millions. This year it intents to make more millions and to make them at the expense the stiffing public. That is the company's good luck, they say, to "earn" the hundred thousand daily added nickels. And as long as there is yet room for a pin left, the passenger is invited to pay a nickel and push him-

This is an old and standing custom with the companies—to pack in as many passengers in as few cars as possible. To rud thore cars involves extra expenses, but to make the public choks and sufficiente for lack of standng room costa nothing.

Helpiess atands the public against this custom which no law in the present state is strong enough to break. Helplessly do the millions of passen gers crowd and press one another daily in the morning and the evening rush. Impotent, they press forward, struggling in vain, to reach one of the hanging straps. Impotent, they scram-ble with all their might for the platforms.

Each year, about this time, when the season of the greatest rush begins, the daily press raises an alarm. This is also a long-established custom. But the companies do not get scared. They know that it will not harm them. Working men and momen are those that suffer most from this overcrowding-wage-corkers traveling simultar: county in these hours of rusts to and from work. In the law, be should not be put to any suffering that can be avoided.

"From these remarks it is apparent that this alien regards a 'general strike' as a means to an end, to wit: Even small strikes are usually accompanied by violence and a general strike would certainly involve great social disorder and confusion. If an archy ever comes about; even for a phort time, it will no doubt be through the disorder and violence of a general strike. A general strike, therefore, cannot be regarded as a penceful means of establishing anarchy."

This comment is given here to show attitude of the officials towards labor agitation, but it is not material to the case from a legal standpoint; the extract from Turner's speech was only introduced as a secondary argu-ment in case the court declared so much of section 38 as related to "per sons who dishelleves to be unconstitu-tional. But the court upheld the entire law.

Judge Lacombe, in deciding against ing alieus for imenity or contagious diseases or other physical causes had been declared constitutional, "it is not perceived why the principles laid down in a long line of decisons do not ally to a person who is difency of specific beliefs as to the con

As to the contention that the law violated the First Ameadment to the Constitution, Judge Lacombe held that the "exclusion of an alien who is an aharchist" is not a prohibition of the free exercise of religion, and "as to abridgment of the freedom of speech, that clause deals with the speech of persons in the United States and has no bearing upon the question of what person shall be allowed to enter therein."

From this decision to annual has that clause deals with the speech of persons in the United States and has no bearing upon the question of what person shall be allowed to enter therein."

First Case of Collective Penalty for Conspiracy.

Franklin Press Feeders' Union of Chicago Fined $4,000 for Allegad Conspiracy to Commit Unlawful Acts in Strike and Boycott,

CHICAGO, Dec. 12-A fine of S1.090 for illegal acts was imposed upon Franklin Union No. 4, Press Feeders, by Judge Holdom to-day. The Court found the union as a corporation guilty of contempt of court for violating an injunction restraining. it as an organisation from interfering with the business or employees of ten printing firms, members of the Chicago Typothetic.

Judge Holdom's action creates a precedent, it being the first time in the history of trudes unionism is this country that a court has fined a union as a corporation. With his decision Judge Holdom has handed down an opinion in which he severely condemns the acts of pickets and union members following the press feeders' strike.

"Such warfare cannot and will not be tolerated by the courts in a land of peace where people are governed by law," said Judge Holdom; "and the law would be lacking in one of its most necessary attributes if it was impotent to punish for such violation. The case will be carried to a higher

It was alleged that members of the union were guity of acts of violence against scabs, and Judge Holdom dwelt upon these in his opinion, but the significance of the case as a conviction of a union for "conspiracy" is shown by the following passage from the judge's opinion

"Bearing in mand that the charge in the bill is that of conspiracy and that the acts enjoined were those used in furtherance of such conspiracy, it would seem from the evidential facts that the actions of the union at the meeting of Sept. 27, in the establishment of the strike headquarters in Custom House Court, the assault and intimidation by Assistant Sergeaut-at-Arms Kavanaugh and by Visiting Committeeman Hagberg, the payment of strike benefits at the strike headquarters by the union treasurer with the union money, and the fact that no discrimination was made against the members of the union known to be guilty of acts in themselves criminal guilty of acts in themselves criminal, establish the union as a conspirator with its offending members, party and privy to the violations of the injunc-tion of which some of its members whend convicted, and therefore guilty of violation of the injunction and amenable to discipline of such viola-tion pervising it can be an discriminal tion, providing it can be so disciplined under the law."

FLEECING INVENTORS.

Federal Courts Sustain Contracts by Which Employers Gisim Sole Right to Inventions Made by Their Employees.

The United States courts have, by a recent decision (Thilsodean vs. Hilderth, 124 Fed. Rep. 892) held that a contract between employer and em ploree by which the latter, as a condition of getting employment, agrees that the employer shall have the bencfit and enjoyment of all those inventions and improvements relating to machines used in his business which the employee may make while there employed and agrees further, if he ceases to be employed thera, to keep secret forever all inventions he may have made during the term of such employment, leaving them to the sole use and profit of that employer, is not unconscionable agreement as against the employer nor contrary to public policy and that the employee is forever bound by it. The practise which the Federal in diciary thus endorses is a very com-mon one. In many large machine manufacturing, chemical and other sorts of works where inventions are there is a clause in the regular em ployment contract by which the man who is fortunate enough to get a job transfers to the proprietor in advance PITTSBURG, Dec. 11.—The special all rights in any invention or discorwell-known fact that men of inventive genius, like artista, are generally lack-ing in the selfish cunning that wins business success, that in their enthusiasm over their ideas they often deny themselves bodily comforts in order to study and develop those ideas. and that consequently such men are often in hard straits. In the eighteenth century some of he petty princes of Germany used to swell their revenues by hiring out reg-iments of their subjects to fight for Kugiand, for France, or whoever paid the best price. The state of Colorado has best the record of the Hossians. The Colorado militia is frankly hired out to wealthy citizens of that state, to help them in their conflict with the cities made them wealthy-to the min owning companies, to help them in their conflict with the striking miners. That we may not be anspected of drawing upon our imagination for this astonishing statement, we quote the words of the New York "sun," an un-impeachable capitalist authority. The Distress is no new thing, Not among the WORKING class. Winter always brings special distress. Of course. But this winter brings VERY special distress, as even Mr. Morgan knows. And why? Because Capitalism (perfect system, ordained by God for special benefit of God-fearing Christian sentlemen), is having one of its periodical breakdowns.

Morgan and his confederates owners, to live in luxury without work. The system which gives to a few moru the many wages insufficient to buy more than the bare necessities of life, ends inevitably to a periodic glut of the market, a production of more goods than can be sold at a profit to the canitalists. The capitalists then discharge a part of the workers (forbid them to use the means of production they have made) and reduce the wages of the rest-in order to save their own profits from being reduced. Then they sit down in their warm bomes, between a good dinner and an evening at the opera, and think about the sufferings of the poor and thank the Devil they are not as other men, hungry and cold, and write a touching appeal for charity.

THE SOCIALIST VOTE. The Secialist Party (the Secial Democratic rty of New Yorks has nessed Extrogratic result general election. He growing power indicated and its speedy victory for-adowed by the great increase of its vote shown in these figures:

PERHAPS TIMELY. We wish to say now and to say it with all possible emphasis that, realizing well the tecrible stress of the hard noting well the policy of reaction and bleed-and-iron repression that the capitalist class and its political agents seem received to follow, we yet hold that any man who, at this critical time, may commel the abandonment of the methods of education, organism tion, and political action followed by res of resistance or repriesi by physical force is to be regarded as an enemy of the Socialist movement and a dangerous misleader of the working class, even if he be not suspected as a secret agent of expitalism. This statement may prove timely or may not. In auticipation of things that may be done or said in the name of Socialism by pretended friends of the chuse, we make it now and events will show whether it was needful.

IN THE DAYS OF DEFEAT.

Had there been no election of 1902. with its unexampled Socialist mins in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, the vote cast six weeks are in those two states, as compared with that of 1901 or any preceding year, would have have had examples of such laxity. It rightly so-and the loss of our two made all over the country and especalways wavy or sig-sag, now rising slowly, now taking a sudden unward has been the experience of our party. From 125,000 votes in 1871, we rose to only did we begin to gain steadily as had received its death-blow in the German Empire; to-day, German capitalit has yet to fight a losing battle the Red Fing. Nor will it be different in the United States. Though Hanna prove as strong and as relentices as the Iron Chancellor, he has every likelibood of living to acknowledge his failure, as Bismarck did. Bocialism can survive a whole series of "deathblows" such as it has received in the than a party that should capture the have voting sewer projectioned by last two months in Massachusetts and White House he equivecation; and their countis

And profit by them, How to profit by them? That is the question. It is not enough that we assure each other that we are not much hurt by our little knock-down, not enough that we proclaim our faith in the destined victory of our cause. By faith it is said men have waxed valient in fight and turned to flight the armies of the aliens, but it was not without deeds to justify their faith. If we have the faith that avails anything, we will show it most in the days of temporary defeat. The same considerations that assure us of our ultimate victory will enable us to one and to remove the causes of our momentary failures. If those causes lie with no, and to see and use the means to evercome them, if they lie without our ranks.

After such extraordinary advance as we made last year-especially when, as then, they were partly by Local Butte, Mont., against the pro-"thrust upon" us rather then "achieved"-we are always likely to grow flushed with confidence and either by rashpess or by pegligence or both to throw away the opportunity of following up our victory and even to leave our own lines exposed. This is a common human fault, but it is a fault and should be guarded against.

Aside from mere neglect, mere fulling asleep on our laurels, the mistake we are most likely to make at such times is that of overestimating the importance of the political side of our work as compared with the work of education and organization-of so fixing our attention on quantitative reenits as to neglect the quality of our movement. Now in ours, as in every really great movement, quality is everything. The greatness of the German Social Democracy has been shown this year, not so much in its million added votes as in its sturdy refund to sweeve by the fraction of an inch from its strict line of policy in order to appears the ciamors of "revisionists" within or to meet the friendly advances of "radicals" without; and if the party had not been of the stalwart quality that it showed at Dreaden in September, it would hardly have enimed the million votes in June.

What we have ever to bear in mind.

in times of triumph and of defeat, is that our task is to make Socialists, not only to get votes for Socialism: that we cannot make Socialists by such means as suffice for old-party or "reform" or "independent labor" politics; that things which others may do with impunity or even with advantage it may be all but criminal for Socialists to do and that Socialists must do many things that seem utter folly in other eyes. To the Socialist who is worthy of the name the fidelity of the party so its rigid principles and high ideals in an sacred as to the virgin her maiden henor-not only a thing that must not be grossly sold, but that must not be suited by light words or equivocal manners or touched with the shadow of a doubt. We are false to "that high light whereby the world is saved" whenever and wherever we seek to please or to avoid displeasing that vague phantom called "the public" by any the least departure from the letter-or the spirit of our party law. Socialism is a law unto itself and we owe first and undivided alle giance to it: if our allegiance to other laws or customs conflict therewith, so much the worse for them. And well it is, as true it is, that whonever we for a moment are false to this imperious law, we are quickly and inexorably punished and set right.

what is more, that is the sort of 80 cialist party and the only sert that will make permanent gains even at tise polls.

When the Massachusetta Socialists cat this year eight thousand out of the twenty-two thousand new votes that they had gained last year, the capitalist press, Republican and Democratic alike, thought the news worthy of big headlines and wrote wise editorials about the great Socialist defeat. When the Socialists of New York made a gain this year of ten thousand on top of a gain of ten thousand last year the capitalist press, Republican and Democratic alike, said not a word about it, Comment is unnecessary.

Local Louisville, Ky., in a statement sent out to the Socialist press, makes an excellent reply to a circular issued posed amendment to the autional party constitution and in favor of another amendment, which Local Butte hopes to get to general vote, providing that "in all conventions, committees or other deliberations of the Socialist Party one vote for one member pres ent shall be the rule and proxies snall not be used nor permitted nor plural voting allowed."

The proposition now before the party provides that National Committeemen shall have a voting power proportionate to the membership they represent. The Butta circular, in some what confused innersage, attacks this proposed plan, as "proxy voting" or pluzal voting." The Louisville com rades point out that it is certainly not plural voting and can be described as proxy voting only in a very strained conse of the phrase.

In a certain sense, every representa tive or delegate may be described as holding a proxy for his constituents. But certainly the Butte comrades da not propose to sholish proxy voting in this sense, for that would be to abolish both committees and conventions.

Property speaking, a proxy is used poly when one person entitled under the rules to vote, whether in a primary body or as a delegate, temperarily en trusts his voting power to another member of the same primary or delegate body. It is a method that has its excuses, but is subject to great abuse.

Voting by representative or delegate is quite a different thing. Where many matters are to be taken up in a COHTER Of CONTIDUOUS action, and where a large number of persons are interested and entitled to participate in their decision, it is found advisable to have many of these things decided by the vote of certain chosen representatives of the primary ledy, rather than to have the trouble and delay of a primary or general vote on each. These representatives-in this case the National Committeemen are supposed to vote according to the will of their respective constituencies, or the majority thereof, as nearly as they know h and in this case, by annual elections and the power of recall (as well as of appeal to the general vote) we make it pretty certain that a National Committeeman cannot misrepresent his constituency if that constituency has any will or opinion on the matters he is called upon to help decide

A GROTESQUE JUMBLE GY PALERTHOODS

Our athustion is called to an article entitled "Socialism at Barre" in the Outober imme of "Blune," the trade paper of the shiployers of the quarrying and stone-cutting industry. The article is a grotesque jumble of inconsistent falseboods. The writer hegins by stating that Barre, Vt., next to Paterion, N. J., is the principal stronghold of Socialism in the United States follows this with a reference to the shooting after which occurred at the shooting after which occurred at the shooting after which occurred at the shooting after which occurred the same of the shoot of the same of the ers to unite to blacklist the "agitators" to "keep Anarchists and Socialisis from association with honest workingmen." and to "drive these vermin to their holes,"

If the motive were not so evident, we might put down to ignorance the ridiculous statement that Barre and Paterson are strongholds of Socialism -Barre with its two or three hundred and Paterson with its four or five hundred Socialist votes-as compared with the dozen or score of cities that have contributed from 1,600 to 20,000 each to the total of about 200,-000 cast in the whole country last year. Every one who knows anything about the movement in these Awo cities know that there is a constant and acute conflict there between Socialism and Aparchism and that this struggle has greatly handicapped the Socialist movement in both places. Further than this, it has been made clear by correspondence in The Worker that the Anarchist movement in Barre is disgraced by an alliance of at least some of its leaders with the middleclass business men and Republican politicians to drive out the Socialists. that the crime to which "Stone" refers was the direct outcome of this alliance, and that the actual victim, Certi, was himself an Anarchist, and the intended victim, Serrati, a Socialist.

We are not surprised at the complete misrepresentation of the facts in "Stone," and we are rather pleased than starmed by the threat of a blacklist; fee, if carried out, it will simply result in hastening the awakening of the working class from their condition of "honest" decility and unking them for the overthrow of capitalism. Bring on your blacklist, gentlemen.

Ommhn, Reb., Dec. 10. THE RACE QUESTION.

To the Editor of The Worker:-Very reluctantly. I feel compelled to criti-cine the general tenor of your editorial on the "itaco Question in the Party." You, of course, recognize the ing incongruify of such a plank in any Bocialist piatform as the Louisiana "Socialists" have proposed. So far, as good. But you immediately proceed to tuply, on a bails of racial or class dis tinction, first—that the negro is admit-tedly an "inferior race;" secondly, tediy an "inferior race;" secondly that being "inferior," it is desirable t helid up barriers against him, or, to time your more acade "to segregate him," but that this "segregation" cannot be obairabla "segregation" cannot be ob-tained under a capitalistic regime, bu-may be obtained under a Socialisti e; thirdly, that it is the duty of the "superior" race to adopt a benevo-ient policy toward the weaker race and charitably unlift it! Since when, may I ask, have you, a Socialist, be-come converted to the doctrine of "henevolence"as a working force to bring about the reign of truth and jus-

Not only as a Socialist, but simply as a fellow human being to the negro, do I maintain that no race can be classified as "inferior" that rises to the measure of its opportunties. The Anglo-Saxon race has done no more than this, and has done it only in spots and sections. Innumerable individuals. fortunately situated, have benefited by opportunities and have achieved great results and produced Shak spectres and Miltons-warriors and statesmen when the world is satisfied to call great. But vast masses of Abgle-Saxon population-having no faverable environment-have remain si ducing nothing but profits for their masters. Judged by the masses whom Jack Lepton describes as the "Pro-ple of the Abysa," the Angio-Saxon race in, indeed an "inferior race!

The ne-called "nerro race" of America-for the majority of its race are not "negroes" at all, but half breeds and other mixtures of various nationalities-can justly be said to have risen to the measure of its apportunities. Have we, as Socialists, any right to held out to the white Southerner the attractive balt of future "negre segregation" se an inducement to his acceptance of Socialism? THE STATE REFERENDUM.

To the Editor of The Worker -- In regard to the referentian vote on state headquarters, I will state a few reasons why Local Syracuse endorsed the proposal to remove headquarters. By this time it was plain to the mpaign Committee that, to be of turing a speaker, we must wait ti be was here. A few days before Labor Day we received notice that possibly Comrade Fieldman would be here during the Letter Carriers' convention but we have not seen him up to date.

THE BELGIAN CITY ELECTIONS.

American Press Reports of Socialis Defeats Highly Misleading - Local Reverses More than Balanced by Sanoral Sa us.

Beveral capitalist newspapers in the United States have given prominence to accounts of slieged reverses of the Socialists in the Heigian municipa elections, held on Oct. 18. The reader have been given to understand that those reverses have been general and crushing, and that they were due to the gross incompetence of the Social-ists who were in office. It is not to be donled that we have lost some impor tant sents; nor need it be denied that some of the Socialist officials may have proven incompetent, though this is not very clearly progen. But it is necessary to insist that rise general re-sult of the elections was a ducided victory for the Socialist forces, not a de-feat, the losses in some cities having been more than balanced by gains in others of which the explicit papers have not a wood to say; and further, that the actual losses are very easily p:plained by circumstances which brow no discredit upon our party, but rather demonstrate its fidelity to the working class.

cedently vigorous campaign againt fo-cialism waged by the capitalist class— especially by the owners of the coal mines and the factories, in which the larger part of the Belgian people are employed. In many places, during the week before election, the offices of the industrial companies were practically deserted, the superintendents, for-men, clerks, and other confidential employees being kept out electioneering for the bourgeois candidates: Socialists were openly threatened with di charge and in many cases the threat was carried out.

The motive for this extraordinary enumpaign is not far to geek. Socialist administrations had found it necessary to increase the municipal revenues in order to carry out their many projects for the improvement of the co of the workers. They had raised the needed funds by levying heavier taxes the corporation property, which had heretofore got off, vary lightly. Another cause for such losses as we sustained is to be found in the residence qualification for voting. It is necessary for a man to have lived three or sometimes even four years in the same city in order to vote in the city election. There, as here, working-men have to move oftener than do business and professional men, in search of employment or to escape the raising of rents. For some years there has been a steady advance of rents in the large cities, especially in Brussels, and a corresponding exodus of the workers into the faubourgs, or subbrhan towns, outside the city limits. This move ment has been hastened by thre causes: The enforced destruction of many of the poorest city tenements to make way for new streets, parks, etc.; the steady extension of trolley lines into the surrounding districts; and the action of the workingmen's co-operathemselves outside but near to the cities. Several thousand workingmen have neaved from Brussels into the neighboring faubourge-during the last three or four years and have thus spite of all this, the Socialists held their former strength, both in the popular vote and in the number of councillors elected in the city of Brussels, while gaining several hundred votes in the faubourgs.

At is to be remembered also that on-der the Relgian law, white practically every man has a vote (provided he has lived long enough in the town), the propertied and professional classes have plural votes; the holders of diplomas-including the lawyers, doctors, clergymen, and many teachers-have each an extra vote, and the possession of certain property entities the owner to one or two extra votes, so that men of the "upper classes" have generally from two to four votes each. . More over, in each city council, in addition to the members elected in the ordinary way, there are a number of "supple-mentary councillors," half of them elected by the employers and the other

ance with the Liberain; they learned their mistake when they saw that the Liberal candidates of the conlition went in and the Socialist candidates

In some twenty communes theatly in the mining district, where we had gained a majority in the last election (1890), we have just votes and kept only a minority in the councils. The charges of general incompetence seem to be based on two lustances—those of Quareguon and Heristal: at lengt those are the only cases that are definitely cited. In the former place it is said that the Socialist administration left the city treasury bankrupt. In Heristal it is alleged that eight of the nine Socialist councilors "did not possess the radiments of education." Conddof age and that popular education in Belgium is a thing of the last few years, wrested from the rul-ing class by the aggressive action of the Socialists, it is not surprising if locialists, it is not surprising if many of the Socialist councilors so Rocialist councilors, however ill edu-ented themselves, have used all their perpetual lease. power to extend and improve the twenty councils, these are but one-fifth of the hundred that we carried in 1890, and the loss is partly bananced by our conquest of several communes in the agricultural and heretofore over-whelmingly Clerical province of Lux-embourg. In still more places we have embourg. In still more parces we many elected one or more councillors where we were before altogether unrepres-ented. Four years ago we elected

STATE EXPERIMENTS IN AUS-TRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND. By William Pember Beeves. Two vols., 391 and 367 pp.; maps and index. New York: E. P. Dutton & Go. 1908, Price, $7.50.

It is to be regretted that the price of these volumes renders them com-paratively inaccessible to most read-ers, for Mr. Reeves has given us the clearest, fullest, fairest, and most readable account of what is one of the most interesting subjects in recent politico-economic history. His book. we feel, requires notice somewhat be youd the ordinary limit of reviews in this paper.

The development of the Australadan colonies cannot but be interesting on account of certain peculiar conditions-their geographical apartness their characteristics of soil and cli-mate, the almost exclusively British origin of this population, and, especinly, the recency of their settlement If the word "experiment" can ever be justly applied to new political or social institutions, it is applicable to these faraway lands, full of vast natural opportunities and even more remarkable natural difficulties, in which an "Anglo-Saxon" population has estab-lished itself, not by the slow process which prevailed in North America, but rapidly and with little opposition from aborigines, carrying with it into that new environment the arts and habits and thoughts of a highly developed capitalist state. If their contemporar, suggestive to us, on the other hand the greatest caution should be excremed in luferring from Australasian experience conclusions to be applied to the solution of American or European problems. The differences between Austra-lusia and America are far greater than those between America and Europe. Political methods and institutions might be very ill adapted to the others. We have still to see whether the measures adopted in Australia and New Zeniand will succeed in permanently and materially modifying the develop ment of the capitalist system there away from the, line of its normal development in other countries; and if they do, the question still remains whether similar methods and measures here would have similar effectsor, rather, the presumption remains that they would not, and the question, how far and in what way they would differ. Mr. Reeves devotes his first fifty eight pages to a vivid description of "A Continent and Some Islands," the field of the state experiments, and the forty-four following to a brief characterization of the methods and spirit of the Frogressive movement—a move-ment thoroughly English (or thorough-ly petit hourgeois) in its indefiniteness and its empiricism, setting up expe-diency as its chief ideal and uncompro-misingly adhering to the rule of com-promise. The reset of the work is even promise. The rest of the work is given to an account of the several "experi-ments" of the past quarter-century. Space compels us to pass over the chapters on Australian federation, wo-men's suffrage, preferential voting, liquor laws, and immigration laws, and devote our attention to the eco "experiments" which have attracted so much attention to the Antipodes and which fall mostly under three heads—the land laws, the old-age pensions, and the labor laws.

The seven colonies have an area of over 3,000,000 square miles and a population of less than 5,000,000. Considering only that third of the area which is not difficult to settle quare mile, hardly one-fifth as dense as that of the United States to-day. barely denser than that of the United States in 1780. Yet the land question is an old one, a source of strife almost from the earliest days of the colonies' growth. This seeming anomaly is accounted for by the fact that the raising of sheep and cattle was, owing to climatic conditions, the first great in-dustry to arise, together with the fact that before Australian history had got well under way-say by 1851, when gold was discovered and rapid immielected by the employers and the other haif by the wage-workers, in Schnerheck and some other towns our comrades, in their fear of a Cleron comrades, in the company compa lasian land were granted, freely or for nondual considerations, to whoever had influence with the governments. and equally vast tracts were usurped by "squatters" who, with the growth of the country, became ginat pastoral laudlords. The land so acquired was generally, of course, that of the best quality, and the gradually expanding agriculture of the country soon found itself hemmed in and oppressed, while the immigrants who had more strength and energy than money had little or no opportunity to establish themselves as independent proprietors.

The agrarian legislation, which has been called forth by this overwhelm ing land monopoly is not a consistent system, but a mass of various and often contradictory makeshifts. The details of the many regulations for the rale of government lands, limiting the amount to be taken by each purchaser and requiring some minimum of residence and improvement (regulations similar, in a general way, to those adopted in the United States—and far elected, being poor workingmen, evaded as persistently, need not concern us here. Of the methods adopted in dealing with the land question, however, some call for special mention

Land taxes are levied in all the coloules except Queensland and West-ern Australia, but those of New Bouth Wales and Tasmania are merely revenue measures, while in the other three colonies they have also the avowed purpose of breaking up the large estates. The Victorian law (1877) and that of South Australia (1884) are half-hearted measures, hou-ever, and have failed even to check in the pound, or about two-fifties of one per cent.; in addition, there is a graduated tax on all setates worth more than £5,000, ranging from one eighth of a penny up to two pence is the pound on estates worth over £210,a tetal of about one and one-fifth per cent, on the unimproved value of their land. Absentees pay 20 per cent, more than do residents. So far, the reduc-tion in the number and acreage of very large estates is slight, though noticeable. There is also a graduated income tax.

idopted in all the colonies except Tasmania, beginning with New Zealand in 1902 and South Wales coming last in 1901. The New Zealand law authorixes the Ministry of Lands to borrow up to £500,000 a year, at an interest rate not above 4 per cent., and spend it in repurchasing private lands; land may be bought by friendly arrangement or by compulsory process—com-pulsorily only in the case of large tracts. Lands purchased by the gov-ernment under this law must be cut up into allotmenta of not more than 340 acres of first-class land or 2,000 of inferior land and leased in perpetuity, preference being given to landless applicants, at an unchangeable yearly rental of 5 per cent, on an initial valu-ation, which must be high enough that the rental will cover the interest paid by the government on the money bor-rowed for the purchase and other ex-These leaseholds may be transferred or mortgaged, like other estatta. Under this law, in the nine years ending in March, 1902, one hunred and seven estates, aggregating 448,349 acres, had been bought, at a cost of £2,280,000; of this, 387,000 acres had been let to 2,038 tenants and the revenue was more than covering the cost to the government. The Australian repurchase laws are conservative compared with those of New Zealand In none of the Australian states ha the government the power of compul sory purchase; in Queensland, Wester Australia, and Victoria the repur chased lands are sold in small allot nents, under certain requirements as to residence and improvement: in South Australia they are lemed in perpetulty, as in New Zealand; in New South Wales they are leased for nine ty-nine years, with a revision of the rental every twenty years.

As we have said, there is little cor sistency in this whole body of agrarian legislation. Colonies that are yearly corrowing money for the repurch of large estates to be divided up and resold or lessed are simultaneously elling large tracts from the public lands in fee simple, without even ef-fectively limiting the amount to be held by one owner. The only cousistent purpose through it all has been o encourage subdivision and occupa-ion, and this has been effected only to a small extent. So far as the land legislation is concerned, it is ridiculous to polat to the Antipodes for examples of "practical Socialism." On the contrary, it is distinctly remodul legisla-tion, intended to modify the tendencies of capitalist development by maintaining or bringing into existence a middle class of independent individual pro-ducers and small capitalists. The one partial exception is the New South Wales law, which, we may note, is among the latest of the "experiments"

Remembering the smallness of the population of Australasia, we should expect the chapter on the laber question there to read like the far chapter on the snakes of Ireland. So far is this from being the case that almost the whole of Mr. Reeves' see ond volume is given to an account of the factory laws, minimum-wage and arbitration laws, and other labor legislation, with the connected subject of uld age pensions.

False as is the inference the Single Taxers draw from the fact, it is a facthat monopoly of land generally pre-cedes and gives birth to monopoly of other means of production and the capitalist antagonisms arising there from, and this has clearly been the case in Australasia. A fourth of the people of New Zealand live in four cities, nearly half the Victorians in three cities, a third of the people of New South Wales in one city, over a third of the South Australians in one, nearly a fourth of the Queenslanders In one; the sweatshop was quite in vogue aiready fifteen years ago; the army of the unemployed has for many as in the older countries; and there have been many strikes and lockouts as bitter and proportionately even more extensive than any the United States has seen.

The labor parties of the colonies (under various names) though time tured with Socialist ideas, have not until within very recent now only on a single scale), approached the definiteness of aim, the closeness of organization, or the intransicent policy of the working-class parties of the Continent, of the United States, or even of Great Britain. "One ster at a time" has generally been their motto and bargaining with other elements their method. Despite the rhapsodies of the late Mr. Lloyd, it may be seriously doubted whether, in the remarkable body of social and labor legislation in carrying which they have had a part, they have gained enough of good to make the game worth the candle and still more seriously doubted whether the good they have got is not closely combined with losses that they will have to struggle hard to recoup. Our author is an ayowed, though a very modest, champion of the legislation in question, having had a considerable hand in its making; but putting his account tooubts are rather strengthened than allayed.

The Old Age Pensions law of Net Zealand (1898) commands warm, if not unqualified, admiration as a measure for mitigating one of the most beinous evil effects of capitalism. Every needy person over sixty-five years old who has been living in the colony for elected one or more councillors where were were we were before altogether unrepresented. Four years ago we elected about 800 councillors in less than 200 municipalities. This year we have won about 1,200 seats in over 350 multipalities. This year we have won about 1,200 seats in over 350 multipalities. The year we have the state of the state other income over £84, a pound is de-ducted from the pension claimable. The rules in regard to examination of claims seem to be as free from redcannot seem to be an ever from red-tape and humiliating conditions as is consistent with the practical adminis-tration of any relief measures of the sort. During the first three years of the operation of the law, 14.412 pensions were granted; 2006 ceased, four fifths of them through death; at the end of that time, of the 840,000 people in New Zealand, 31,353 of whom were over sixty-five years old, 12,406 were receiving pensiona, over 10,000 the full £18 a year. That, even in a new country like New Zenland, two-fifths of the people should, on teaching the age of sixty-five, be in such poverty as to come within the provisions of this law is a terrible enough answer to the thrift-and-industry cant commonly preached to the working class. It cannot be doubted that in the United States the proportion is still greater. Within two years, New South Wales adopted a law modeled on that of New Zealand, but a little more liberal in some of its provisions. About the same time. Victoria adopted a similar plan.

We may now turn to the Australi cian labor laws, strictly so called-to us far the most interesting of all the "state experimenta." The laws regulating sanitary conditions and guarding of machinery and restricting the working hours of women and children are not very different in principle from those of our various states; nor, with some exceptions, are they more string-ent than the best of ours. The same may he said of the provisions for early closing of shops and the employer liability laws. In some of the colonie the state employment offices, the laws to prevent withholding of wages or payment in "truck" by contractors, and the limitation of working hours in the mines are a little better than anything in force in the United States though not abead of some laws exacted in some of our states and declared up constitutional by the courts—a trick the dulge in. The colonies have done more to provide work for the unemployed than has been done in the United States, but the unemployment problem still exists, even in prosperous times But all these are minor matters com-pared with the Wage Roard system of Victoria (1896) and South Australia (1900) and the Compulsory Arbitration system of New Zealand (1894), New South Wales (1901), and Western Aus. ralia (1902).

The enactment of the Victorian law oliowed upon an investigation of the sweating system, which had shown the existence of a large number of fright-fully overtasked and underpaid workers. It provided that for six specified trades—and for such other trades or industrial processes (with a few specified exceptions) as the executive the consent of one legislative branch, might see at subsequently to bring under the operations of the law-there should be set up permanent trade boards, each consisting of from two to five representatives elected for a term of two years by the employers of that trade and an equal number similarly elected by the employees, with a chairman agreed upon by them; if either of he refuses or falls to elect rep-resentatives or if the representatives fall to agree on a chairman, the Governor appoints. The board has power to fix minimum time wages (defining the standard work day and the rate for overtime) and piece rates and to fix the maximum proportion of ap-prentices to be allowed. Up to the time of Mr. Reeves' writing (September, 1902), some thirty-eight boards had been established for as many trades. The law does not forbid em-ployees to demand and strike for more than the wage specified in the determination of their Wage Board; it does forbid the employer to pay less, even by the consent of his employees. All the employers and employees of a regulated shop may participate in the election of their respective representa-tives, regardless whether or not they are organized. The government does not have to wait for an application from one side or the other nor even for a dispute, but may act on its own intiative in bringing any trade under the law. The South Australian law is a

The New Zealand law, the occasion which was a series of violent strikes and lockouts, differs considerably in its method and is more extended in scope, but is not dissimilar in its general effect. The colony is divided into districts in each of which a Board of Conciliation may, on petition, be set up, composed of equal numbers of representatives of employ-ers and employees, elected by the members of registered (virtually incornerated) employers' associat and trade unions in the district, with an impartial chairman. Any party to an industrial dispute may appeal to the Board, which has power similar to peases. The award of the Board of Conciliation has the force of law, our either party may within a mouth ap-peal from it to the Court of Arbitra-tion of the colony. This body consists of a Judge of the Sapreme Court Couciliation has the force of law, but designated by the Governor and two representatives elected by the employ-ers' associations and the workers' unions, respectively, all for a term of three years. This Court's award has the force of law for the district whence the case comes or for the whole colony, and there is no appeal. For violation of such an award the aggrieved party can recover damages from the employer or the trade union at fault, in no case of over 1500. Nonunion workers are individually responsible to the extent of f10. In practise, the award is binding on all employers of the trade and district affected whether organized or not, and on all trade unions, whether registered or not. Awards may deal with wages, hours of labor, proportion of appren-tices, holidays, the right of employer to refuse to employ unionists or of the latter to refuse to work with nor by statute law, on which an industrial dispute may arise, as well as enforce ment of union regulations, payment of dues, etc. In many cases the Court has ruled that misnish must be given preference in employment, if equally competent. When an award has been made, for an employer to institute a lockout or for a union to strike against it is a violation for which damages may be recovered. An employer is, of course, free to shut his works wholly or in part. An employer may pay higher wages or grant shorter etc., then those awarded, but the working may not concertedly demand and strike for them; he may not pay lower wages or require longer hours than are awarded, even though his em-ployees individually consent thereto, After three years, either party may apply for revision; otherwise, it remains in force. New South Wales and Western Australia have followed the New Ecaland law pretty closely.

As to the workings of the scheme it seems that in the majority of cases the law has been invoked by the em-players and that the majority of the one have been in their favor, and that it has pretty effectually prevented strikes and lockouts. It must be re-membered, however, that the experiment was begun at the end of a period of depression and the beginning of a period of prosperity which seems only now to be nearing its close. During this period, wages would certainly have risen and conditions of labor improved without Wage Boards or Courts of Arbitration, though it must be admitted that strikes and lockouts would have oun involved. It remains to be seen whether, in the hard times now ap parently impending, the Wage Boards and Boards of Arbitration will do much to prevent the reduction of wages; and that they can at all pre-vent the shutting down of works or the laying off of a portion of the work-

The compulsory arbitration or legal minimum wage system is not "is Socialisme sans doctrines" nor any kind of Socialism whatever. It is an absolute recognition of capitalism and an attempt to render it tolerable (and therefore, impliedly, to perpetuate it) by regulating it. It may be "a step toward Socialism"—but only in the sense that a victorious Bocialist party might use it for a purpose contrary to its present function-or it may not. In exactly the same sense, the power of idemning property now used principally to enable railway companies to acquire rights of way, might conceivfiscation for Socialist purposes; or the vagrancy laws, the conspiracy laws, and the power of injunction might prove very useful to a working-class administration in carrying out Social-

The advocates of the scheme franki abandon the free-contract theory which logically and historically belongs to capitalism. They recognize the disruptive tendencies of capital-ism, which, growing up by means of free contract, has ended by rendering free contract impossible. The Socialist agrees with them in repudiating the contract theory. But they hark back to a theory of status, belonging to earlier class societies, to find a means of checking these disruptive tenden-Alex." The Socialist, our the other hand holds that the disruptive forces gen erated in the mature development of any economic system are potentially the reconstructive forces that are to hulld up the succeeding system. The closest historic parallel that oc curs to us-and it is a close one-is that of the French situation in 1789 It was hoped, even by many of the bitterest critics of then existing conditions and most strenuous clamorers for change, that the States-General representing the privileged and the oppressed classes, would be able, by ef fecting certain compromises, to establish a workable modus vivendi be tween the classes and perpetuate the old system. It is easy to say that, if the choir. I am the resurrection and the nobles and the clergy had not been the life. You try to kill me. To stop quite so stubborn, this hope would my voice. And this is the greatest positive objection that the Socialist will raise against the plan of compulsory arbitration, that it tends to narrow the views and diminish the collective assertiveness and selfreliance of the working class.

"New Zealandism" is no longer the disturbing fad it was in the American Socialist movement two or three years ago. But it is not unlikely that simiiar plans will again come to the front in this country and that the Socialist Party will have to be prepared to them intelligently. Reeven' book will be of the greatest use in such preparation.

GRAPES OF WRATH.

By Norsco Traubal,

You are on top, dear masters. You are having a good time. You eat, drink, ciothe, travel, swagger, and, of course, die. I say: Have all the fun you can now. The time is soon com ing when no man will be able to steal his fun. When every man will have to pay value received for fun. Your extras will all be cut off. You will m longer live on bounties, margins or piracles. Tou are planting for the harvest. But the harvest will not be the harvest you expect. I am not a prophet of evil. I am a cryer of good. Of universal and eternal good. I do not backbite your surplus. I sympa thize with the other fellow's shortage But for his shortage your surplus would be secure. But for your plus his shortage would not exist. The law of the one is the law of the other. The repeal of the one law will wipe out the flood and the drought There will be plenty of fun left. But it will not be the sort of fun you experience over the prostrate body of labor. Eat yourself fat now while you can. Drink yourself drunk now while you may. Clothe yourself in the livery of the autocrat now while your rule continues. Palace yourself in arrogant luxury now while the bill re mains unreceipted. You have had the most of your allowance. The rest of your time is short. The current presses very strongly your way. You think the tide is fixed for you without turn. Walt till it sweeps back, Then see whose victory is paid mos for. See whose victory is most worth having. You are so strongly trenched you cannot concede doubt of your ability to stand the slege. And I admit that no casual assault could endanger your estate. But your enemy is no casual enemy. It is history. It is national law. It is the irresistible impetus of the awakened human spirit. Have you supposed things could keep on as they are? Is he tree to be conserved in the foliage instead of at the root? Can the cornice make faces at the foundation? Supget out from under? What will your cornice do? You have planted seeds of disintegration. Rebellion has not made itself. Rebellion is your own offspring. It is your most direct descendant. Every dollar of bandit income in your hand or mine is so much powder constituting the omit collateral of rebellion. Your deeds go to bed with reaction and get up in the norning with revolution. I do not try you by my tests. .I try you by your tests. I quote your own law against you. By your own laws you will be destroyed. I see that your time is near at hand. A few more victories. A few more years of feasts and feathers. You are blind, Appetite is always blind. So is greed. So are is always blind. So is greed. So are good clothes. So is a trip to Europe. So is your sideboard. I do not see how I can give you sight. You insist on keeping your eyes shut. I can only warn you in a loud voice. I can only strike an alarm for you to bear. I can only make you uncomfortable with my reiterated prophecies. And you can learn to hate me. You can send your sheriffs to levy on my property, can send the law with its gag. can loose your hounds on my track. But I am never so choked with warning as in the chase. And the more nearly you run me down the more ominous the chase becomes for you. And you take me home in your game-bag. You exhibit me to the ravished consciousness of your caste. And then am I more than ever dangerous to you I follow you now to your dinner, to your parlor, to your office, and sound the calm note of my quarrel. You can not go to worship in your church with-out hearing me dissonantly in the prayer of the priest and the hymn of my voice. To humble my will. But it is not me you can kill. It is you who are dead already. You walk about the earth a corpse left over from judgment? I am a sounder of alarm stubborn, the Revolution would have been less sudden and perhaps quite planted. You planted in all the innubloodless, but it would not have been cence of guilt. You planted interests expecting interests eternally to grow. You planted your own private glad-ness in return. You planted your children against the children of the world. And you expected the social compact to make itself whole in the result. But I tell you no one part of this world can be successfully planted against any other part of this world. That no harvest can be successfully the harvest of one man or a few men. That no man can successfully plan except no man can successfully plan except for the total good. Any other motive will poison the vineyard. And the crop of the nower who nows greed is the crop of anger and desolution. And bands that gather against the need of all will find their palms scorched with the sin of the aggressor. That is why I say your food does not feed you. That your clothes do not clothe you. That your houses do not house you. That while any man anywhere is without food or clothing or shelter your spirit starves and is naked and is shandoned. And that anything you do only in your own name is a charge made against the assets of all the rest And that the feeblest voice you raise for all goes straight to the throne.

THE CLASS WAR IN AUSTRALIA.

Employers' Federations Raise Funds to Fight Socialism in Federal Elections.

Australian capitalist papers describe n formidable movement by federated employers' associations of the Commonwealth to oppose Socialism in the Federal elections, which take place this month. The movement began with the Pastornlists' Union Queensland, ("Pastornlist," it may be explained, is the name given in Australia to the owners of the great cattle and sheep ranches.) At a meet ing held at Brishane in August the plan of uniting all capitalist interests in a campaign against Socialism wa commenced and £2,000 subscribed for the purpose. The fund was to be in-creased to £10,000 in Queensland alone. The Employers' Federation of New South Wales, the next state south of Queensland, immediately took up the plan and undertook to raise a fund o from £10,000 to £15,000. ers' Federation of Victoria, it was stated, would raise £20,000.

The Sydney (N. S. W.) "Daily Tele graph" says of the movement: "There is no secret about its objects. They are definite and downright. They are aggressive. The main point is the building up of a strong fund for fighting purposes-in short, for fighting the Socialist Labor Party at the polis when the Federal elections come on. The Employers' Federation of each state proposes to raise a large sům of money for the specific purpose of 'as-slating present political organizations to band together in opposition to the Socialist Labor Party. tails of the fighting platform have no yet been completed, but, roughly speaking, it is intended to assist can didates for the Federal Parliament who subscribe to the platform of this organization to secure election. Mr. R. S. Walpole, Secretary to the Em ployers' Federation of Victoria says. The Object of the defense fund is to assist present political organizations in banding together in opposition to the Socialist Labor Par ***

It is intimated that an attack will be made on the arbitration laws already in force in several states and on state interference with private enterprise in any shape or form."

Whatever the immediate result of this move, no doubt its altimate effect will be to strengthen the definitely conscious and independent So movement, which has been growing for some years, in spite of the concessions made in the way of arbitration laws, but which is still comparatively small.

It is not pretended, of course, that the figures given are more than ap-proximately correct, since in some cases a state organization may in one mouth buy dues-simups enough to last for several months and in other cases the state secretary may neglect his duties for some time and members 133 willing to pay dues may consequently have to wall some time for their strains. The shorter the period of time, the introduced would these accidental considerations have, since a state in which there is a real working organization would not allow the pay-ing of dues to be neglected for many mouths and, on the other hand, no state is likely to buy stamps for more than two or three mouths in advance, at the most. Carpenters No. 12 and 56, for P. Brog-lie, Jr., and A. B. Schliding, Bakers' Union No. 7, for C. H. Schnefer, and all were accepted. The Assistant Secretary reported on the agitation for the Brooklyn branch, and recommend ed that such a branch be opened on Dec. 1. The recommendation was accepted, and the Board given full power in the matter. Attorney J. Hillquit reported, among other mat-ters, that about ten members of United Carriage and Wagon Workers' .vos. 26 and 110 have a claim for wages against a bankrupt firm, and although it is true that wages are in such cases the first claims to be settled, it is also true that it takes a few months before a settlement can be effected, as all creditors must file proof of claim with the referee. A case where a mad dog bit a child of one of the members of the Carpenters' Union was brought to the attention of the counsel; a letter was written to the owner of the dog and the claim was settled. A claim for damages by a member of Butchers' Union No. 211 was taken under consideration. A member of Becr Drivers' Union No. 24 has a claim for wages against the Elm Brewing Co.; the action is pending. Baker Boss Harlem, who used the union label without the permission of Bakers Union No. 306, was notified by couns and the use of labels was discontin ued. A similar charge by Bakers' Union No. 25, against Boss Baker Seiss, is pending. Bakers' Union No. 320 brought several shops to the atten tion of counsel on account of unsani-tary condition; the inspectors of the various departments were notified to this effect, and, as in some cases n remedy was made, action was begun in court against the bosses. A mem-ber of Machinists' Union No. 335 had a claim for $10 for breach of contract against his boss; this was compro-mised for $7.50. Another member of the same union has a claim for $50. back wages; action was begun. A member of Bakers' Union No. 1, who left his position before his week was up, and then claimed for work done, has no cause of action; according to the laws of New York the boss does not need to pay a cent to an employee who leaves his job before the week is up. Not even sickness is a legal ex-No. 300 had a claim for $12.25, wages settled for $12. The case of Spengler, member of Carpenters' Union No. 56 who was killed while at work, and whose family brings a claim for dam-ages against the contractors, is in the hands of counsel. Bakers' Union No. 50 reported unaentary conditions in several shops; the inspector was noti-fied, and the union is requested to watch the shops in question, and if no change is made in thirty days to no-tify the Secretariat. H. E. Kintlein was re-elected as Assistant Becretary. Wils recticular Assistant Octuber 17.

FROM ROCHESTER.

Workingmen Have Abundant Practical Demonstration of the Class Struggle in That City.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 21.-Th working people of this city have had abundant lessons in the theory and practice of the class struggle during the present year and perhaps this goes far to account for the splendid increase Secial Democratic vote here last

There has been a carpenters' strike on since last May, a butcher' strike slace June, a machinists' strike for the same length of time, and now a strike of clothing cutters which has already

On Oct, 2 the Clothing Cutters Union asked for a conference with the local clothing manufacturers' combine to discuss the eight-hour question. The organized bosses refused to meet recognise them in any way. The union then immediately made a formal de-man! for the establishment of the eight-hour day and gave notice that if this was not conceded by Oct. 12 a strike would be declared. The demand was refused and the strike began. The eight-hour day prevails am ug the clothing cutters in most parts of the country and the Rochester cutters doermined not to remain longer behind in the movement. But the Rochester bosses were resolved to break up the union so that they could have an absolutely free hand and dictate hours, pay, and conditions at their pleasure, In this attempt they have been aided by all their brother capitalists of the clothing trade and by capitalists of all trades in the city. The local daily press has been completely on the sses' side in this, as in other strikes In this strike, as in those of the car-penters, machinists, and butchers, the power of the law has also been used against the workingmen. Infunctions of a sweeping nature have been freely issued against the unions, orderly "pickets" have been brutally handled by the police, and union men arbi-trarily arrested on trumped-up charges and dragged off to jail like thieves or

now here and now there, wherever the workers try to better their condition or to aspire to freedom.

The conduct of the local daily press both toward the strikers and toward the Social Democratic movement has been shameful. Every act of the unions and of the Social Democratic Party has been either ignored or misrepresented and maligned. Especially since election, the results of which seem to have been to the capitalists like a red rag to a bull, they have been carefully and diligently lying about Socialism—and not only lying about our principles, but stooping to petty meanuesses to hamper our for Friday, they will announce it as for Saturday, or else name the wrong hall, in order to mist ad people and make them think that we have failed to hold the meeting. In the reports of the Sunday Labor Lyceum lectures and discussions every socialist. and discussions, every Socialist speaker is faisely reported, while care is taken to report fully and even to "fix up" and improve the speeches of those who oppose Socialism. It is this which has decided the local comrades to try to start a weekly Socialist paper here, to offset such misrepresentations.

NO FREE SPEECH IN PATERSON.

have taken one more step well adapted to lower the repute of their city and well adapted to foster the growth of Anarchism in its most extreme form. The Free Speech League, an organi nation composed principally of very moderate "reformers" and "radicals," had arranged for a mass meeting to be held in the Institute Hull at Pater son last Friday evening, for the pur-pose of presenting to the public the facts in the case of John Turner and protesting against the arbitrary action of the United States government in ordering him deported, without trial, ostensibly for mere "discellef in government"-actually for belief in the class struggle and working-class soli-darity. Arthur Pleydell, Bolton Hall, and Moses Oppenheiner were to be the speakers.

Chief of Police Graul, at the last mo ment, notified the proprietor of the hall that the meeting must not be held. Large numbers of people came to the half, but were turned away by a squad of policemen who stood at the doors forbid entrance. * No Anarchist meeting here; that's orders,' was their reply to all questions.

Mr. Hall protested, saying that the hall had been hired, the meeting all arranged, that it would be orderly and had been advertised. The policeman in charge said he had orders from the Chief of Police not to allow any meet-ing and that the Chief had his orders from Mayor Hinchliffe.

Mr. Hall said he and his party went o see the Chief of Police at headquarters. He told them no meeting should take place and that the Mayor had ordered it stopped. The Mayor was appealed to and roughly refused to onsider his decision.

Mr. Hall wrote a letter to the Pater son "Guardian" protesting against this new infringement on the right of free speech. Whether the Lengue will take any further action we are not in-formed.

TO REACH THE RANK AND FILE.

That is the Principal Thing in the View of Barnes and Other Speakers at Sunday's Discussion Meeting.

In spite of the rain, the public meeting called by the 30th A. D. at the Clubbouse in East Eighty-sixth street last Sunday afternoon for the discus-sion of the late A. F. of L. convention was very successful, being the largest meeting of the sort held there for at least two years. J. Mahlon Barnes of Philadelphia was the speaker and his account of the convention was listened to with close attention. He showed that the comparative vote for Socialist resolutions in this and previous conventions was not a safe criterion of the actual strength of Socialism in those bodies or in the affiliated unions, as at New Orleans, for instance, certain delegates with heavy voting power, as Mitchell and Shaffer, supported the amended Socialist resolution while at Boston the same men strongly opposed such a measure. Mit-chell's vote in New Orleans did not ean that all the miners were then Socialists nor did his vote in Boston mean that they were opposed to Socialism. The delegates were not generally elected or instructed upon this issue and they voted on it rather as individuals and often for ulterior reathat Socialism has made great progress among the rank and file of the unions since the New Orleans convention, and by Gompers and his active supporters to down the Socialists at the Boston convention showed that they also rec-ognized and dreaded its growth. The Socialist resolution was defeated. What of that? The Democratic national convention just before the Civil War resolved that the slavery question should not be discussed. We know what followed, what happened to the institution of slavery and to the Democratic party. The present economic conditions are opening the minds of the rank and file of the working class, the real workingmen, to So-cialist ideas. This being so, we need not be disturbed at the opposition of the conservative "leaders," who cannot accept the new truth till it is forced upon them.

An extended discussion followed, in which many comrades took part, with a general agreement that the import-ant thing is to carry on a campaign of intelligent argument among the rank

Organized Workingmen of Cincinnati Are Sued.

Injunction, Damago Suits, and Arrest of Active Members Form Part of Organized Employers' Plan of Campaign.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 19.—The Master Plumbers' Association and the Contractors' Association of Cincinnati have begun a campaign of legal perse-cution against the local Pinmbing Workmen's Union and the Central Trades Council.

Three suits or sets of suits were entered to day.

The obvious intention of the organized employers is to use the full power of the law in every way to crush, dis-organize, and intimidate the workingmea. Unfortunately for the latter, the majority of them have been voting for the "full dinner-pail" (which they did not get thereby) or something else equally clusive and have failed to real-ise, when they went to the ballot-box, that their class interests as workingmen had something to do with politics. Consequently the judges, state's attorneys, and executive officials are, with few exceptions, men belonging to the capitalist class or bound to it by interest and association. The workingmen will have to meet the employers' at tack in courts prejudiced in favor of the employers.

AUSTRALIAN ELECTION.

The Labor Party is Now Stronger than Either of Old Parties in Both Houses,

MELBOURNE, Victoria, Dec. 16 .-The first of the Commonwealth generai elections at which women exer-cised the right of suffrage was held to-day. The struggle was chiefly over the fiscal question. The Government party favored protection and the Oppo-sition supported free trade, while the Labor Party agreed to sluk all fiscal differences with a view to securing the balance of power, which they virtually held in the last parliament. The women voters were excellently organized and cast a heavy vote in support of the Labor ticket. A feature of the result is the remarkable success of the Labor Party in Victoria, where at the last election they were badly beaten. The new parliament is constituted as follows: In the Senate the Labor Party has 17 members, the Ministry has 6 supporters, and the Opposition has 13. In the House the Labor Party has 29, the Ministry has 27, and the Opposition has 26. The Labor Party is not a Socialist party but it has grown more compact and aggres ive in recent years, especially through the pressure of the smaller Socialist Labor Party, which is the uncompromising revol body in Australia.

THE SOCIALIST PRESS IN GERMANY.

We know, as a matter of fact, of 78,500, the "Leipziger Volkszeltung over 30,000, and the "Hamburger Echo" 37,400. These being our three leading dailies, it is very satisfactory to note that they bold their own de-spite the universal beyout of them on all the rallways, bookstalls, etc. The Socialist daily press all over Germany shows a most satisfactory state of af-fairs. Even the weekly "Neue Zeit," which on account of its scientific char-acter could hardly hope to achieve popularity, has increased its circulation from 3,100 to 3,810. Kautsky is to be congratulated, since no one has better deserved success. No journal in the whole European movement holds such a deserved reputation as Kautsky's, or is so universally quoted and translated.

Socialist Party (the Social Democrati of New Yorks has passed through it d general election. Its growing power strated and its speedy victory for weak by the great faccuses of its vol-own in these figures:

The Syracuse "Herald" is one of the few capitalist papers in the state of New York that has the courage and onesty to inform its readers of the strength and the increasing strength of the Socialist vote in the state a shown in the last election. The "Her ald" thinks it likely, in view of the 23,300 votes cast in this "off year," that the Social Democratic Party will pell a vote of 50,000 in the state in 1904. Comrades, now is the time to begin work to fulfill that prediction or even, as is possible, to surpass it. Work now to make intelligent Sociallsts and we shall be sure of the vote eleven mouths hence.

Several of the Massachusetts papers It may be noted, are frankly recognising the fact that the failing off of the Socialist vote in that state from 201 (190) in 1002 to 25 251 this year, was not a "crushing defeat" for Socialism nor a very brilliant result of the vigor outs and ansermonlous campaign wager against our cause. They note that the vote of 1903 is considerable more than double that of 1961, and is more than 150 per cent above that of 1900, and that there is every probability of its going next year far above the high record of 1902. Their recognition of this fact means that the campaign against Socialism will not be dropped; and that means that the Massachu setts comrades must spare no efforts in the line of thorough economic and po-"tical education and solid party organaction in preparation for the contest at the polis next fall.

The police of Paterson, N. J., have, in violation of all common and statute law, United States and state constitucency, forbidden the holding of a pu'-He meeting to discuss and protest against the lawiess and tyrannical conduct of the government in the Turber deportation case. In our jr ... ment, it is "up to" Local Paterson and the New Jersey State Committee of the Socialist Party to act in this mat-Socialists have established the right of free speech in practise in many places where moderate "reformers" of all stripes falled. Let us add Paterson to the list.

"CAPITAL" AND "MEANS OF PRODUCTION."

"What is the distinction between 'capital' and 'means of production'? Jute what is capital?" asks a reader. Since a right understanding of the significance of these terms goes far toward making clear the whole theory of Socialism, we attempt an answer.

The school textbooks of political econonly and many of those who attempt to argue against Socialism in the pres or on the platform have not studied beyond these elementary and very superticial compilations-treat the terms "capital" and "means of production" as synonymous and use them indiscriminately for any product of labor used in further production of permission from anyone else) in all remaining days, it will undon wealth from the rough club which the primitive savage uses to kill game to a modern railway or steel mill. They also introduce a distinction-a barren one, as will appear later-between "land," including all the resources of nature, and "capital," which, according to their usage, includes only artificial means of production.

Of course, it is idle to quarrel over definitions, for their own sake. But it is necessary to have clear definitions if we are to think and express our thoughts clearly. The usage of the Crusce does not and cannot exist in word "capital" established by Marx and his successors is so well adapted for drawing clearly certain necessary distinctions and is coming to be so generally recognized that it is well that we adhere closely to it. The principal question at issue in these terms are used is the distribution of wealth, as the economists say-that is its division among or appropriation by the various persons concerned, helpfully or otherwise, in its production, So far as concerns this appropriation of the product, it should be evident that the question who owns and controls the means of production used (and how he controls it) is of more importance than the question whether that means of production is itself a piece of land or a bed of coal or an artificial product, such as a steamengine. It is with reference to ownership and control, that we make our special definition of the term "capital."

The term "means of production" we apply to any or all of the things which nen use in producing wealth-the club of the primitive savage, the plow and oven of the old-fashloned farmer, the steam-plow of the great Western wheat farms of to-day, the land that is plowed, the ore-bed, the tools and machinery for getting the ore out, the railway and engines and cars for auling it, and so on to the end of the chapter.

The means of production-the mas terial things necessary in any given age and country to carry on industry in the then prevalent manner-may be owned and controlled in several differont wave with a corresponding differegee in the division of the product and the economic relations of classes in soclety. Roughly, we may distignuish ive forms of ownership:

First, the means of production may be the individual property of the man who uses them. Then, owning also his own labor power, the worker individually owns the whole product, as a matter of course. To a considerable extent, this is the case in savage and barbarous society. In modern times, among civilized peoples, it has often been the general rule in new and sparsely settled countries, such as America a century ago.

Second, the means of production may be the collective or joint property of the men who use them. Then, as a matter of course, the workers collectively own the product. In primitive society this is the case to a very great extent. We believe that it will again be the rule in the society of the future.

Third, the means of production and the man who uses them may both beng absolutely to another man. Then, gain as a matter of course, the whole product belongs absolutely to the master; but out of it he must provide the slave's living, else the slave dies and produces no more for him. This was the rule in the civilization of antioulty, such as Egypt, Greece, and Rome.

Fourth, the means of production may belong conditionally to a man who does not use them-the worker having a right to use them and being obliged to render certain payments and services, fixed by law or custom to to require that the worker shall use them and render those dues, but havtex no right to exact heavier dues nor to debar the worker from using the means of production. Then, obviously, the owner receives a fixed income out of the product and the residue goes to the worker. This relation of feudal lord and serf was the dominant one in medieval Europe.

Fifth, the means of production may holong absolutely to a man who does not use them and the worker own only his own labor power and own that absolutely. Then the worker must sell is labor power-that is, hire himselfto the man who owns the needfu means of production. The latter, own ing already the means of weoduction and having purchased the labor power, owns the product, as a matter of course; but out of it he must pay wages to the worker, else the latte will not work. The worker, then, getthe market price of his labor powerfixed, roughly, by the cost of sub alstence-and the residue remains to the owner. This relation of employer and wage-worker is the dominant on all over the civilized world to-day and In many countries for a century or tw past. Whichever of these forms may be the rule in any given age and coun try, one or all of the others may exist at the same time. Thus, there are some independent workers (that is, workers individually or collectively owning means of production sufficient to carry on their industries without civilized countries to-day, hough dominant system with which the economist should chiefly concern himself. not the exceptions. The man who, in discussing current economic problem to-day, constantly logs in Robinson Crusoe with his ax and the primitive man with his rude club-as, for instance, most Single Taxers do-is like one claiming to be a biologist who should argue from the premise that man is a six-tood animal, because a few six-tood men exist. Hobinson modern society, except as a mon strosity.

Evidently, then, we need a special term to designate means of production owned and controlled in the special way which is characteristic of and dominant in modern society, the last the economic discussions in which of the five ways enumerated. This term we have in "capital," as used by Socialists.

Wehn a Socialist speaks of capital, he is not speaking of the harpoon which the Eskimo both owns and use and by means of which the Eskimo in dependently gets his living. He is speaking of means of production whether natural or artificial, operated by wage-labor, and yielding an income to the owner by virtue of his owner

"Even Socialists sometimes use the cinlism "the state will be the sole capitalist." This is, perhaps, allowable as a figure of speech-just as we talk of "railroad kings" and "coal barons," knowing well that Vanderbilt's or Carnegie's position is ementially different from that of Louis XI or Front d Boeuf. In the Socialist state there will be no capital, no capitalist, no wage-worker, no profit, and no wages: there will be associated workers collectively owning the means of produc tion they use. It were well that Sc cialists should stick close to the strict use of the word "capital." for much confusion follows a misunderstanding of it.

An appropriate way to see the "Old Year out and the New Year in"-make a New Year's gift to the Socialist movement of the United States in the form of a contribution to the Nations Organizing Fund. If you can spare only ten cents, send that; If you can spare a dollar or two or five, all the better. Send it to William Mailly, National Secretary, McCague Building Omaha, Neb., without delay and make the last week of 1903 a good one to round out the figures in the annua report.

COMRADE MASSEY'S ASTONISH-ING MOTION.

Seven mouths ago, the rank and file of our party decided by a general vote of 3,747 to 2,965, to change the membership of the National Quorum, National Committeeman Mills of Kansas immediately moved to set aside the result of the general vote on the ground that it was "unintelligible." This cool proposition was heard with astonishment by the membership and was most decisively rejected by the National Committee only Richardson of California and Lovett of South Dakota supporting Mills in the plan to overrule the plainly expressed will of the party, and sixteen National Committeemen recording themselves

We did not suppose that anything of the nort would be proposed againfor a few years at least, until we had time to forget that experience. We were mistaken. This time it is National Committeeman Massey of North Dakota who astonishes us.

About two months ago a sufficient number of locals moved for a general vote on a proposition to amend the constitution so as to give the organized states representation in the National Committee proportionate to their membership. The National Secretary drew up a form for the submission of the question, following exactly the wording used by the locals moving it, as he was in duty bound to do. This form he laid before the National Committee for approval. The members of that body, including Comrade Massey, had three full weeks th which to consider 1: Not one of them objected to its submission to the membership. On November 10 it was so submitted and the voting begun, to close on January 4/-1904.

Now, five weeks after the question was laid before the party for genera vote, while the vote is going on and when it is probably nearly completed Comrade Massey comes up with a proposition that the National Committee declare the whole proceeding ou of order and nullify the action of the rank and file, whatever that may prove to have been.

We have no fear that the Nationa Committee will arrogate to itself any such power, but the fact that there should be even one member capable of making such a proposal is regret table enough-regrettable because, un der all the circumstances, it is guite impossible for us to attribute the act any but a factious motive.

If the news of Comrade Massay's motion has any effect upon the action of the membership in the very few ing ones to vote for the am opposed by such methods. That the amendment ought to be carried seems to us clear. That it will be carried seems to us probable. If carried, it will materially reduce the power in the national organization of half-s-dozen men, representing very small and in some cases delinque state organisations, whose principal vocation for the past ten months has seemed to be that of obstructing the work in which our present National Secretary has so splendidly borne his part.

wit. Burrowes is a master of words; as marshalled by his magic pen they urge and inspire, thrill and caress, oothe and exalt .- In this book the eader will find many laughs, and great upleapings of the heart and far of unexpectedness is great. The nutbor's mind is like a kaleido-scope. He is always seeing things sogial action rather than by individual perception. In his own words: "Truth them in a new way, ever shifting, from raillery to reverence, from sarcasm to sublimity, yet with a constant assion and purpose underlying all.

But far greater in value than any possible merit of style, is the emphas-is which the author places on the social nature of everything human. To durrowes Socialism is a religion, in the case of a passionate relation to life that is, to the social body. All his thought is based on the organic con-ception of society, and guided by the scial spirit, and hot with the social The fact that the individual nd all his works is a social product and inconceivable apart from society. he never forgets and never lots his readers forget. Such a writer is sorely needed while so many Socialists are still proclaiming the abstractions of in of thought. Too many avowed, active, and sincere Socialists are individualis-tic in the general spirit of their thought and conception of life; in every department of thought exe economics their minds are under the sway of individualism, which is per haps natural while the economic basis of things remains as it is. Burrowes, on the other hand, is a social Socialist, and it is to be hoped that his work will be a wholesome corrective to in-dividualistic Socialists. A realization of the social nature of thought and of all human activity is one of the things ment itself, and this basic principle of Socialism, which is the key to Socialsocialism, which is the key to socialist thought from economics to ethics, is profoundly and suggestively expressed throughout these "Revolutionary Essays." The following quota-

nake up the physical have a habit of coming to, gathering and staying around, a point which we call the cen-ter of gravity. The thoughts of men do cluster to the collective thought. and men themselves have ever been gravitating to the social man. The habit when acquired by matter is called a law. That law is the habit of matter, and this habit is the law of man. The social thinking of to-day is an energy coming from within the race, begotten during the age clashings of matter, even as electron, that spark indomitable, was born. In this way, mankind flashing back upon such other each one's sense of each, and in the mighty human effort of verybody to help himself by giving leasure to others, a reciprocity ced, of intent, of effort and will at last produced a co ast produced a common potency—a octency preduced—first between two and depending altogether upon them at one time; then continued by many, and lepending less upon any one or any few, and then exercised by very many, and depending little, depending less, depending least, and finally not at all depending upon persons, it became an ndependent social force, peculiar to nankind, An original force, though it creasable, and is still the product of reciprocity as to its intenseness and power—the social arge, which will in time give place to the immense tran-quility of the social babit. This great oliective paycho fulfills all the cer tials of a universal human soul or law, because it is itself at once a product and a producer. . The product of L. ing together, it is also the producer of more togetherness. The product of early physical association, it was forth of human brains: the spark of mental association, the light and heat of social habitarianism, it passed from brain to brain. Like the electric spark, it could not dwell in any single brain. It runs and lives. It must have a circuit through many; it must have no isolate lives in its circuit; it abhors insula-tion. The product of organization, it has in turn an action like that of certain window-catch I have seen, which not only holds together but draws together as it closed. The product of the organization habit, it beomes itself in turn an organi ower, and thus reciprocates until the redemption of man from egoism and private mastership. The product of a private mastership. The product of a physical necessity out of some tremenous physical peril that once struck a dous physical perti that once struck a few of the early men, was this power to put two brain-impressions on one vi-tal cgrd, on one common interest, and from that day forth it was created the creator. * * * The law that ob-tains among us does not think by itself nor do by itself. If the dog does not go himself, the dog's orbit goes, fust as the stars in their orbits go round the sun; the satellites travel-ing more than the planets because they maintain their own orbit while als orbitally moving."

Notwithstanding the brilliance an soundnes of the essay on "What Is Truth" and other passages of similar purport, when they are properly under stood the author does not make clean enough that he is speaking of social trath, of truth in regard to ciety. On the other hand, he often speaks with an unfortunate disrespect for the method by which knowledge of facts is gained in the physical sc ences. He appears to forget that selence does not rest upon mere indivi-dual perception but that it has its own socialness in the comparison and averaging of observed facts, in its gradually perfected instruments, and the continuity of its progress. Disgusted with the manipulation of science into a de-fense of individualism, he seems, on the surface, to fall into the error of repudiating the methods of science in-stead of exposing the fallacies of in-dividual scientists and showing that their conclusions are really un tific. He makes the mistake of under valuing Darwinism and ridiculing Spencer's philosophy of evolution be-cause the principle of natural selec-tion has been used against Socialism and because Spencer's social and polit-ted ablicable. cal philosophy was the extreme of in rowes misses the importance of biology; he does not seem to see that the biological evolution of Darwin and the social evolution of Marx are kindred theories, applications of the same prin-ciple in different fields. Biology, indeed, underlies economics—for what is economics but social biology? Our au-thor speaks of "the so-called struggle for self-existence." but us a matter fact the struggle for existence between whole species, between different sorts of organisms, is just as much a part o. the Darwinian theory; and he comes very near to the social application of this point in the wonderful essay on "The Struggle for a Substitute," while evidently thinking that the theory there set forth is something very dif-ferent from Darwinism. Again be propounds his theory of "involution" (a reversal of the Spencerian formula of development from the homogen-cous to the heterogeneous, and a theory that the individual is flowing into society instead of evolving out of it) as if it were some thing opposite to the theory of evolu-tion, whereas it is really an essential part of it and almost identical with the "integration" of Spencer, of which it is a social application. Evolution and involution, or development from the sociality of everything, is not all of his philosophy. He also ver two interacting forces of one process "Even Socialists sometimes use the word loosely, and speak of the "collective ownership of capital" in the Socialist state or say that under Socialist state or say that under Socialist state will be the sole capital in the word involution."

"Even Socialists sometimes use the word involution and passages on "truthing," and "adjecting the interacting recess to use process. The word involution in the following passage in his "first Principles": "Evolution has been in the word involution."

"First Principles": "Evolution has other meanings, some of which are incomprised to the meanings, some of which are incomprised to the congruous with, and some even distinct the congruous with, and some even distinct the meanings. rectly opposed to, the meaning here given to it. . . . As ordinarily un-derstood, to evolve is to unfold, to open and expand, to throw out, to emit; whereas as we understand it, the act of evolving . . . implies that its component matter has passed from a more diffused to a more concentrated state-has contracted. The antithetitruly express the nature of the pro-

Burrowes' philosophical ideas are reaching suggestions, but they suffer from disorderly arrangement and ocexpression. His book impresses one as being the work of a powerful and original mind thinking out things for itself, after much desultory reading every philosopher, of the systemati study and comparison of the ideas of other great thinkers. In his insistence upon the sociality of everything he is sure, and sound, and vital. To appreciate this the reader should co sider the direction of his thought, the thing that he is getting at, rather than his verbal accuracy. The general and detail err in spots and sometin soem to slip back into the abstractions of idealism (using the word herein its individualistic philosophical meaning), especially in some miscon-ceptions of materialism. In occasiona phrases he seems to take it for granted that in the beginning man lived by himself alone; more biology would hav lead him to believe that before ma became man he was a social anima that there was an unbroken continuit of social evolution from the livin and doing together of our spe-man at cestors to the organized state of to day; and that by his superior social ness as a pre-human species, man be came man.

Burrowes is also a colner of words -words that are not now in any die tionary but will ultimately enrich ther all. And this is high praise, for a man must know how to use the old words well before he can venture to make. one. Oftenest he makes words the addition of unexpected prefixes and suffixes, words which are of mere literary merit; or, sometimes, of no merit. But in the word "adjectivism"-which be uses to affect a reconciliation between objectivism and subjectivism, and to express the interaction of objective and subjective, th idea that the universe we know is no something inside or outside of man but something he is in and part of, qualifying it like an adjective-Burrowes has made a real addition to the vocab-ulary of philosophy which no reviewer should pass without appreciative no

The saunder works on sthics in English are by non-Socialists who wrote from the social standpoint and all that Socialist literature can show of any scientific valu says. The subject is in chaos. rowes does not bring order out of this chaos either, but he does give some illuminating suggestions, which clear the air and start thought in the right direction. Here is a sample

"What is odious among friends fo me to do, is lawful and right for an organized multitude to do to anoth enemy organised for murderous rec procity. The selfishness of one be comes the virtue of the larger socia unit, when opposed by an armed coun terpart. When a comrade Socialist says that ego's search for its own pleasureable sensations is the activity which ultimately redeems society, I mistakes the ego sensation hunting of the private debanches, and the ego property hunting of the private gamber, for their multiple by which they are modified as the pleasure and need of a class. Having this distinction clearly in view, we may use the sel-fishness terms of the individualist with propriety and reason. One man should not deprive another; but a nation may deprive any one man. One man is enpable of robbing another one; but a nation cannot rob one of its men. In general ral terms, it may be said that the imp ality of one person may be the mornity of many in one class. My self-pres My self-pre erration at all costs cannot be cou-ceded to the single person; but it must be conceded to the nation, or class, containing him. Wrong becomes right when it is turned over from the per sonal to the public life. There are no when it has found its true external substitute, when it has found its class and carried it into the nation.

Burrowes' book is threefold in na Burrowes book is threaton in as-ture; it is a book of prose poetry, of propaganda, and of philosophy. This roview has been principally taken up with its philosophy, but the majority of readers will probably enjoy the book more on account of the author's real literary genius, his wit, and the imaginative and poetic quality of his mind. It is noticeable at least, that the reviewers have almost all taken the book from this standpoint, and seemed rather wary of grappling with its philosophy. This is not surprising, as Socialists are usually too dusy to undertake such hard thinking as a critical study of Burrowes necessitates The mixture of primary propaganda and difficult philosophy is an odd one and perhaps it would have been better to have made two books of it. But let us he thankful that Burrowes has written even one and live in anticipation that the hope raised by the paren-thetical words "First Series," on the title-page, will soon be fulfilled. Instend of a "Finis." Burrowss closes his 'Move On," and not a few appreclative ones are hoping that he will move on to the writing of many more of the myriad books that are in him. Parts of the present "Essays" were origin-ally published in The Worker and other Socialist periodicals, but the bulk of the book is new, and those who have followed the author's previous work closely can doubtless remember many fine passages which they would like to have seen included in this permanent form.

A Poet's View.

After reading Eugels and a few other Socialist writers. I was left with an intellectual conviction of the inevtil I read Burrowes' "Revolutionary Essays" that I became animated by the social passion, the social conscious-ness, which had before lain dormant It is an unusual mind, I believe, that can stand; as he does, at the balancing point between dry economies and so cial metaphysics, fusing the two in one. He might be called the "missing link" between ontology and economic In Peter Burrowes the Socialist movement has a literary power; and in his "Revolutionary Essays" we have, I believe that rare thing in modern lit-erature a book that will live. erature a book that will live.

Whether it will become immediately popular is another question and one of relatively little imperiance. It is not a book to be skimmed over, to be read in an afternoon. There is no denying that to the average person Burrowes will seem an obscure writer; but in that very obscurity lies his greatest source of power-his indirection, his infinite suggestiveness. There are som things that can only be expressed by indirection, as all poets know. Burrowes is a philosopher; but he is, above all other things, a poet, and he is most a poet when he writes prose.

The limitations of metrical form seem to encumber him. In this book of prose essays there is more poetry than I have found in any book of poems in a long time.

I know little of the past history of turrowes; but from his book I judge that he has steeped himself in all religions and all philosophies, from the Orient to the setting sun. That is an ideal preparation for modern social philosophy, which, as Burrowes so well understands, is but the latest step in the process of "truthing," to use his own luminous expression for the tendency of race evolution. If he has not had this culture preparation, then he is all the more remarkable His originality is unique.

Much as Burrowes is honored in the Socialist movement, I do not think that the majority of Socialists yet realize what manner of man they have among them. An original, creative mind like his is are in this or any other age, in this or any other movement. He has what Dr. Bjerregaard calls "a seminal mind."

It gives me pleasure to say—speak-ing now only for myself—that no mod-ern book, with the exception of Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" and on other which I need not discuss here, has given me so much that is suggest sowers. It to these southing to a brace any one who can put himself en desired to do so. But it is as a maker of phrases and epigrams that Burrowe's genius is the book anywhere, one finds them: "The 'ungrowing, ungracious, self-completing ego." "The race throb," Truth is a war on finalities . . . choice of that way which abhors ival." "The little glowworm ego arrival." lamp." "The footsore, ragged, emptystomached meandering of ego's mobs through the unsocial wilderness." "Great gold-tailed comets of plutoeracy swept unheralded across the so-cial sky.". "Labor comes to the front and the State becomes his bride, "Social rebirth," attitude to God, "prostrate before cloud cartoons of themselves." Of priests, "fat by the fees of repent-ance," "Murderous reciprocity." "Turn ance," "Murderous reciprocity." Turn sweat into a sairnment," "Deceiv-ed into personal virtue." "A man "A - man with a hundred horses in his stable, what can he do but look at them and he were more men." Of the clergy. of the hypocrite, "who "to superintend the praying of the slaves." Of the hypocrite, "who morality is but the butterfly hunting of the child who is going the wrong way to school." "Voluptuaries in way to school." "Voluptuaries in words; men who think only by the friction of their own "Grave-clothes of self-contemplation."

The sin against the universe." "From loneliness to Socialism." "Collective loneliness to Socialism." "Collective determinism which holds the stars together." "Nothing is enlarged by more Committee abould appoint a committee should appoint a committee fortress of ego against everything class on earth." "Bocks mothernood." A day and not exhaust the casket.

I shall not attempt to give an outline of Barrowes' philosophy; though such a skeleton-lacking a joint here and there—could be made from these es-says. He has said that "Truth is a flowing." So I think that he, and only he, should prescribe the banks of his own special river. His use of the "motograph," as the moving symbol of progress, is infinitely suggestive; and his theory that

revolutionary and stimulating as his title. I wonder if he is familiar with the Hindoo Narayana. Many a minor religion has been founded on a less stable basis than his scheme of the concentric and reflecting circles from social macrocosm to ego microcosm, While this may be remotely related to or even subconsciously suggested by the l'arabrahmic theory, the working out of the idea is quite different, and absolutely original so far as I can see, I wish Burrowes could be induced to systematize his philosophy; to write a book with a beginning, a mid dle and an end, that should present to the world in orderly sequence his own orderly thought. That he has a definite and original system of philos only is evidenced on almost every of his book. But a collection of essays written at different times and under isolated impulses, however or-derly their final arrangement, cannot present to the ordinary reader a clear and systematic impression. That Burrowes could write such a book I know, and should be do so, I believe that he would thus secure to his name the in dividual immortality that is very much more than dimly presaged in these essays. He has proven himself a poet by writing a prose book. Will he now seal himself as a philosopher? To be the first to formulate the Socialist philosophy from metaphysics to psychology would be what a certain over of phrases has called "a prophylactic to oblivion " This could be done I believe, without in any way disturb ing his "motograph" or his conception of the relativity of truth, they being a part of the system itself. who should express what, for the lack of a better term. Of course the social poet, the social philosopher and the social student, will carich themselves from this gold mine whether or not the discoverer stakes out his claim. HERBERT SPENCER The death of Herbert Spencer deerves a few words from us. It is very doubtful whether the next generation will rate bim nearly so high as his contemporaries. That he did a great deal of good work, and was one of the pioneers in the field of evolution in modern times, cannot be disputed; that also he gathered together an enorm amount of useful material in many branches of human knowledge is undoubted. But as a thinker and philosopher he was singularly deficient in oirginality, and his limitations, regard being had to the wide area he strove to cover, were amazing. Though it would Tre, so much that is formative. After having declared in his "Social Statics" practically in favor of nationalism of land, he wound up by desonneing collectivism of every kind, In fact, the sociology of his own time was a closed book to him from sheer inability to see. That the individual in production had become the mertool of the machine; that the tendency of competition was inevitably towards monopoly; and that the slavery of the existing system could unly come and the wage-earners commerwhich evolution itself was bringing about-these were obvious truths that either never occurred to him or were Of men's preshed contemptuously aside, as not fitting in with his foregone sions. The comrades of Local Rochester have for some time had under con-sideration the question of establishing a weekly paper in that city to serve as an organ of Socialist propagance for the city and for Western New York. They have at last decided to undertake the task. They have formed the Rochester Socialist Publishing the Bochester Socialist Publishing Company for the purpose, an incor-porated body, with $5,000 stock in $5 shares, payable 10 per cent down and 10 per cent a month thereafter till paid up. The name of the paper will be the "Social Democrat." chester courades ask locals and com races in the state to aid them in the undertaking. Correspondence on the matter should be addressed to Geo. W. Mische, 159 8. Fitzhugh street or Joel Moses, 58% Woodword street. Courage Gottschalk of Chatham

Columbia County, N. Y., writes, anent the increase of the Social Democratic vole there from 19 to 06: "We have polled a good vote in this and other counties where there are no local organizations w. stever. I know of but one other Socialist in Chatham, Com rade Willis, who is very earnest and enthusiastic. Of course, there are a number here whom we have succeeded in getting more or less interested, but they are not yet Socialists. The cam-paign of 1904 is upon us. There is a good deal of work to be done before pagunda can always be done in the early part of the campaign before mea's minds become too much inflam-ed with the old ideas and prejudices, fanned to a white heat by the old party press and speakers. Therefore it seems to me of prime importance that the party, through the State Comnilttee or otherwise, should take immediate steps to get in touch with as many as possible of the comrades in the unorganised counties and also with those who are not dues-paying members, but have voted our ticket, and should have a special organizer or two go through those counties and try to organize a local in each. If there are any weak locals they could also be strengthened, but where the movement has already developed locally to the extent of being on a solid basis and self-sustaining it seems to me the comrades of those localities could be left to their own resources, while those countries which return us a number of votes but have not been organised could be brought into line. and a systematic propaganda be inangurated in every part of the state Even if we could not effect an organization in every county within the next year, still some one could undoubted-ly be found in each county who would tribute literature, arrange public meet ings for speakers, put up posters, and also get addresses of others as they come into the movement. All this seems to me very important. The class struggie is now in evidence al most everywhere, in every village and hamlet, and at this stage of the movement it seems to me that we need not time and money to the cities and industrial centers, where the movement has, already taken strong root, but should reach out and even at the risk of seeming neglect of the already well organized localities, devote most of our time, energy, and money to extending our organization and the pro-paganda of our doctrines to the re-motest parts of our state."

Mational Secretary Will Not Issue Na tional Organizor's Commission fo Work in an Organized State to Any Man Not Approved by State Organiza

By instruction of the Quorum, Na tional Secretary Maily has submitted to the National Committee the ques-"Shall Carl D. Thompson be given a commission as National Organ-izer for the Socialist Party, dating from Nov. 20, inclusive of engagements filled in South Dakota and Nebraska? The decision of the National Commit tee is to be given by Jan. 2.

Briefly, the occasion for this action is as follows: Comrade Thompson ap-piled for a commission as National Or-He had already made some dates in Nebraska by private arrange ment without consulting the Stat nittee and wished the commission from national headquarters to cover these dates. Secretary Mailly hold that he could not commission any comrade as National Organizer for work in an organized state without the approval of the state organization concerned. The Nebraska state organiza-tion, being asked, disapproved of Thompson's working in that state and on for such work was acthe National Secretary. At Thomp son's desire, the matter is referred to the full National Committee in such a form as to make Thompson's application a test case on the rule laid down by the National Secretary and Quo-

With the question is submitted a voluminous correspondence, parts of whi a we are obliged to condense or arize, for lack of space. It seems advisable, however, to give pretty full extracts, not only for its bearing on this case, but for the general information gives on the National Secretary's method of routing organizers, etc. We omit nothing essential. The words in large type were underlined in the orig

"As to publishing reports of my work, your plan is quite satisfactory to me if it is to you. I only wanted you to know that I was willing to re-

Several propositions are before me for my work next year in the Socialist field. I would like to inquire, that I may decide more wisely, whether you still desire to have me work as a National Organizer under direction of headquarters, and if so, upon what terms, conditions, limitations, etc. and would inquire whether you would care to arrange a lecture four for me through the Eastern states. I trus you will write me frankly. I want to do the best thing. * * * I will work in Nebraska and South Dakota will write me frankly. I want to until the holidays,"

IV.-National Secretary to Thomp son, Oct. 12.—"I am perfectly willing that you should work under the direction of the national headquarters, and I believe the Quorum will also be agreeable if you should desire me to will also be submit your name to it for you to be added to our list of lecturers or organ

"Your letter regarding my working under the national headquarters re-ceived ami contents carefully noted, and will say that I am pleased with the letter and very favorably impress ed with the proposition. I feel of course that the only logical course for all of us who work in the general field to work from headquarters. mitting to the Quorum some proposi-tion of my own, I do not feel that I ild do that. I realise that the Con mittee must put some limit, and L also realize the difficulty that would imme diately arise if one man were paid more or differently than another. So if I work under direction of the Naon Committee and Secretary, I shall do so on the terms they offer.

"I feel, of course, that my services are worth more to the party than $3 per day and expenses. So far, how-ever, I have felt that they were unable to offer more than that, and I have never asked nor received from my So-cialist lecturing and organizing even as much as that. From now on, how ever, the ability of the party to do better by its servants increases, and I have certainly had a part in the bringing about of that condition. I natur ally feel, therefore, that the party should do better by me—and others, too—as its ability to do so arises. I feel that we ought to maintain as high a standard of platform and field work as it is possible for us to do. And we cannot expect our workers to main-tain the highest type of public service unless we support them well. I feel that there has been considerable ex-cessive charging for Socialist lectures. I have felt that in order to get the movement opened and organized, we public speakers and organizers should all make all the sacrifice we could. I mean that we should take just as little or our own personal affair as possible, I have carried out this principle in my work, and my services so far have not cost the party membership over $500 or $600 per year. The rest of my income I have earned by singing and outside effort. And in all, of course, my wage has been a bare subsistence. however, as the movement grows. I feel that the party ought, as a matter of wisdom, to select able and efficient men, with especial powers of usefulness to the party, and then pay them enough to enable them to main-

"However, I do not demand that the party officials should agree with me upon this matter. If they do not of their own accord choose to do this— it is for them to decide. And on the other hand, it is for me to do all I can to equip myself for this service. If the party officials do not open the way for me to do it, and other ways do open, I shall expect to take advantage of them. And I believe all will agree tain the highest possible type of service. I hope to make invself of some that this is wise. "I therefore feel like leaving the whole matter to the wisdom of the clals.

"Would also inquire whether you would care to assume management of part of my time in case I should engage with state committee for other part. So far each summer I spend a month or more under my own management with a male quartet, singing at Chautauquas. This is now in a post affords a vacation as well. Would that be satisfactory?"

Asks further about charges to locals for services of national organizers and lecturers and about advertising. VI.—National Secretary to Thompson, Oct. 20.—Encloses list of National Committeemen. "Referring to your mestions, I will state:

First, That the rate of $3 a day for each day out, with hotel and traveling expenses additional, means $1,005 a year salary, or $547.50 for six months the liotel and traveling expenses are usually as much more, so that the re-muneration * * * would be more than you have been receiving

"Second, Would you prefer to accept $5 per day for each day out, with trav eling expenses additional, leaving you to provide board or hotel? These are the terms Comrade Hanford is now working under. "Third As the office socks only to

to fl! more than five or six dates week-

"Fourth, In the event that special arrangements are made with state organizations for the services of a national organizer or lecturer, a time limit to the engagement is set, and th state organization assumes financial responsibility. Recently John W. Brown, National Organizer, worked for ten weeks for the Connecticut State Committee, making his financial arrangements with that committee, while his name was retained upon the list of national organizers. Brown is now working at the expense of this office for a month in the state cam-paign in Massachusetts. In the case of Goebel, for instance, he is working in Texas under the direction comrades there, while the national of-fice bears the financial responsibility. On lecture tours this office is responslble, and the dates are arranged either directly by me or the various state secretaries, according to agreement with the latter.

"Fifth, I have been charging a flat rate of ten dollars for Hanford. In some cases I have reduced this figure where I thought be could do good and the comrades were unable to guarantee the sum stated. However, I shall try not to reduce the figure. I find when the office pays salary and traveling ex-penses, printing circulars, correspond-ence, cuts, etc., the margin is too small to admit of any reduction. This figure holds only for continuous lecture tours.

For special engagements, requiring the additional expense consequent upon extra preparation, long distance, time involved, etc., a special figure is made, agreeable to the speaker and those engaging him."

"Sixth, * * * (details of adver-

inder the direction of the nation besignariers only when you are working directly for it. Chase has been working in Maine and Massachusetts by special arrangements with the state committees, since August, but his re leaves his state he always consult the national office as to its wishes be the national emce as to its wisnes be-fore making other arrangements.

"I think all the points have been fully covered, and I hope they will meet with your approval. I have tried to be plain, and if there is any point not clear do not besitate to say do not attempt to exercise a censor ship over the actions of our lecturers and organizers. I trust them and rely upon their fealty to the party to de their duty."

VII .- Note by National Secretary .-"On Saturday, Nov. 7, Comrade Thompson visited the national headquarters and stated that the corresp regarding the mational organ was satisfactory and that he was wil ing for his name to be placed on the list of national lecturers and organia ers, under the conditions I had stated but that he was engaged to work for three months in Wisconsin beginning three months in Wisconsin beginning in January next, and his further movements at the conclusion of that engage ment would be considered later. I told him that as my term as National Secretary might end before that three months was up, and the National Committee might see fit to select some one else as my successor, he would under stand that I could not dennitely suy what disposition could be made of his services three months hence. He acquiesced in this and said this was un derstood. This is written in explana-tion of the mention by Thompson in the following correspondence of my re-election as National Secretary. Later on in the same day I address the following note to Thompson:

VIII.-National Secretary to Thompson, Nov. 7.-"I should like you to write me a formal zute accepting the commission as National Organizer un der the conditions specified in my last letter, so that I can place same on file for purposes of record. I neglected to ask you for this this afternoon.'

IX.—Thompson to National Secretary, Aberdeen, S. D., Nov. 17.—"I have your letters relative to appointment as National Organizer and the arrangement you suggest is satisfac tory to me. However in view of the fact that I am to work in Wise for three months, and considering the fact which you suggested to me, that an election of National Secretary is to take place soon, I had thought that perhaps we better let the matter rest for the present. However, if you care to appoint me AT ONCE and assist me in the work I have to do up to Christ mas, I shall be glad to accept, and have you appoint me.
"I had thought that I would not ask for this until I got out of Nebraska in view of the controversy here. But since your appointment of Hyland and the criticism that has resulted, it oc curs to me that you might appoint m and assist me to complete the work have to do, remove all doubt as to your impartiality, and at the sam time help along the work of organiing which I am doing, and back me up financially "I therefore request immediate ap pointment upon the following conditions:

"1-Fifteen days in South Dakota up to Dec. 1, under direction of state officials here who have the arrange ments made

"2-Fifteen to eighteen days in No brasks at the following places * (list omitted). My secretary at Lin-coln has the arrangements for these dates in hand and, as I understand, nearly completed. Many of these points have had requests f. me in for some time and other points, I hope will arrange for me on the way. A to finances, I have proposed the sam arrangement with these places as have everywhere—they do the very best they can and I take what the braska trip organize at least five new locals. Last two months my incom was a little over $65 per month above expenses. If appointed I will get al I can out of the work, as usual, and count to you as per your sugge-

"8-As to terms, would like to hav you allow me not less than $6 per day beginning, say, Nov. 20, to the end of the contemplated trip, in NO CASE LATER THAN DEC. 10, AND I PAY ALL EXPENSES, both railway, liv ery, and hotel, and furnish all 'ad' matter, which is already partly out. which is already partly I suggest this, as I reckon it to be the same proposition as you made, put upon the basis of my paying all ex-penses. Perhaps $6 is a little low, but I figure that my expenses will be mod-erate on this trip and will let it go at that for this short arrangement, if it is satisfactory to you. If your instruc tions would allow you to allow me something more, of course, it would be a favor no doubt due me-but if not, will accept it as I state.

"This trip, if appointment/ is mad will require practically no work from the national office unless, perhaps, you cared to address letters to the points I am to visit, stimulating the con rades to the work. Most of the place I have arranged for personally on my former trip, and my secretary is now attending to the final arrafigements. Is this satisfactory? If so, you may appoint me at once. And if not, better walf until your re-election."

X.-National Secretary to Thompson, Nov. 20.-"As I shall have to sub mit your letter to the Quorum for its consideration before I can give you a definite answer, I shall be obliged if definite answer, I shall be conject it you will inform me whether your Nebraska dates have been arranged by or with the consent of the State Committee. Under the state autonomy law of the national organization, the National Committee cannot have any of its speakers fill engagements in or-ganised states without the consent or approval of the regular state organisation. I ask this question because you state in your letter that your secretary at Lincoln has the arrangements for the Neurasia dates in hand ments for the Netraska dates in hand "At the meeting of the Quorum, held the 14th, 15th and 16th inst., the state "I am going to talk this question of the Lecture Bureau work over thoroughly with the Quorum when it meets sext month and get things on a firmer or two off in the summer. You are in future than ever before. In view of your Nebraska dates, so that the Que rum can act upon your letter with full information on the subject.

"Of course, your suggestion that you be appointed because Comrade Hyland was, and in order to show impartiality, has no bearing upon this matter at all. Comrade Hyland's posi-tion on any question was not considered when he was appointed, and the National Committee by a very decisive vote of 20 to 3 endorsed Comrade Hyatment, on the grounds of fitness and ability. Your appointmen will be made on the same grounds. I would be showing a very limited con-ception of my duties as National Sec-retary if I suggested or proposed any comrade for appointment as lectures or organizer because he expressed cer-tain views upon any subject what-

"Perhaps it may not be out of the way for me to state that the criticism upon my proposing Comrade Hyland was significant for its scarcity. Comrade Richardson's letter was the only one I received which criticized me, while, on the other hand, I received a shoal of letters from comrades in every section of the country, North, East, South, and West, endorsing my position. I may also say that the letters I have received from Wyoming about Comrade Hyland more than justify his selection on the score of ability."
XI.—Thompson to National Secretary, en route, S. D., Nov. 24.—"You ask if my dates in Nebraska are ar ranged by or with the consent of the State Committee. In reply will say State Committee. In reply will say that my work in Nebraska was undertaken at the suggestion of a member of the State Committee and at the earnest solicitation of members of the party. After deciding to make the dates. I wrote to the State Secretary about the matter before arranging the dates, and asked him to take charge. He replied that the Quorum could not undertake to arrange my dates. He made no objection, however, to the dates being arranged, and being a member of the party in the state. I do not see how any pot see how any objection could have been reasonably-raised. And even if objection had been raised, as was the case later, I do not understand that the State Committee has any constitutional or moral right to prevent a member of the organization in the state and a local of the party arranging togethe; for a meeting. Such a position would amount to a very serious restriction of the personal and local rights of the memberships. I do not understand this to be guaranteed by the constitution of the party nor to have been as sumed by the Quorum or the National Committee. I do not see, therefore, that any valid objection can be raised, as you attempt to do, to my appoint ent as National Organizer on the ound that the State Committee has not given its consent to my work.

"You state that 'the National Com liftee cannot have any of its speakers fill engagements in organized states without the consent or approval of the ocal in the United States knows, the OFFICIALS of the Nebraska organization at Omaha have pro-against my work, have denounce as a traitor and disruptionist. Nebraska officials, it is safe to ERY, have done everything in their power to prevent my work and to destroy the ffect of it.

THE OFFICIALS AT OMAHA ARE BY NO MEANS THE SOCIALIST PARTY OF NEBRAS-KA. The dates I have filled, and am to fill, in Nebraska have had not only the consent and the approval but also the active co-operation and financial assitance of practically every live and active local outside of Omaha. And I feel reasonably certain that the organization of a half-dozen new locals in addition to those I have already organized, together with the results of th work I have done, would, if submitted to a referendum, be unqualifiedly en-dorsed by at least 90 per cent. of the membership in the state. Indeed, it was by reason of the earnest solicitation of members and locals and state officials that I undertook the work in the state. It will therefore be seen that the failure of my work to receive the endorsement of the Omaha OFFI-CIALS does not mean that my work has not the consent and approval of the state organization. AS A MATTER OF FACT IT HAS, and moreover, I insist that this attitude of the state officials in Nebraska towards me is unreasonable and unjustified. The charges they make are absolutely false and I have, as yet, been given no chance to reply or to explain, statement will be in the hands of the National Committeemen in a few days. To assume that because some OFFI-CLULS have raised a protest upon grounds entirely unproven, without submitting satisfactory evidence, without a referendum, and above all without giving the accused even the oppor-tunity to plead 'not gulity,' to say nothing of giving no opportunity to mbmit evidence—to assume under such circumstances that one is disqualified to act as National Organizer simply becircumstances that one is disquamed to act as National Organizer simply because some officials laye attacked his character, and to act upon that assumption would, it seem to me, establish a bad precedent. For in such a case anyone who wished to become a National Organizer, or who was acting as such, could be made the victim of petty jealousies or dislikes by ungenerous and narrow-minded officials. All that would be necessary would be to get a majority of a Local Quorum to issue a protest, no matter whether the grounds were true and reasonable of

"I therefore raise this question Should not the protest of state officials be accompanied by at least some good and sufficient reasons and verified evi-dence before that protest shall dismalify an individ al to set as Naquality an individual to act as National Organizer in the state? It seems to me that it should. Otherwise we who are in the field may any or all of its become the victims of immature and unwarranted action.

"The objection, therefore, that you "The objection, therefore, that you raise to appointing me as National Organizer is, I - believe, not valid. I therefore renew my application that I be appointed National Organizer, beginning with Nov. 20, and be permitted to if the dates already arranged to Dec. I in South Dakota and to Dec. 16 in Nebraniza more the forms agreement. in Nobraska upon the terms suggested in my letter to you of recent data. "I agree with you, upon second "I agree with you, upon se thought, that the appointment

Comrade Hyland should have no consideration in the matter. And I assure sideration in the matter. And I assure you and the National Committee that I have no inclination to press the matter of my application to the point of any issue among the comrades. I have made the application and will let it stand until I am informed of the decision of the Quorum and National Committee upon the above points. Kindly submit this also to the Quorum and

National Committee."

XII.—National Secretary to Thompson, Nov. 27.—"You do not seem quite to understand the position occupied by the National Committee toward the separate state organisations. In organ-ized states the regular state organisased by the National Com mitee and paying dues to the national office has 'sole jurisdiction of the mem bers residing in their respective terri-tories, and the sole control of all matters pertaining to the propaganda, or ation, and financial affairs within uch state or territory, and the National Committee and sub-committee or officers thereof shall have no right to interfere in such matters without ent of the respective state or territorial organization.' (See Section 4. Article 6, National Constitution.

"Under this law the national office cannot send or route speakers or or ganizers in or through any organized state without the consent or co-operation of the state organization in that state. This is as true of Nebraska as of California or New York. Your relations as a member in Nebraska with your State Quorum have nothing to do with the relations of this office with your State Quorum. So long as the State Quorum compose the officials of the regular party organization in Nobraska and that party organization maintains its standing in the national rganization, then this office must, under the law, recognize the State rum as the representatives of the Ne-

"The reasons why or how the State
Quorum refused to arrange dates for on in Nebraska have nothing to do with the case. The fact that you have made the dates you say in Nebraska on your own responsibility does not imply that this office, acting for the National Committee, shall assume that National Committee, shall assume that responsibility. The National Committee deals with state organizations or with locals in unorganized states, and with individuals only where no local or state organizations exist. What you do in your individual capacity as a ember in Nebruska is no concern of this office, but when you become a Na-tiona: Organizer this office is responsible for your actions in connection with any state.
"A perusal of all my former letters will show you that I have never made any objections to your appointment as you state. As an executive of the National Committee I made an inquiry hased upon your own statement that our Nebraska dates were being made by your secretary at Lincoln."

XIII.—National Secretary braska State Secretary Roe, Dec. 7 .-"Comrade Carl D. Thompson has been corresponding with me relative to his being appointed National Organizer, dission to date from Nov. 20 which would include dates in South Dakota and Nebraska. Comrade Thompson stated in his correspondence that the dates in Nebraska were ar ranged by his secretary at Lincoln, and I inquired if the state organization of Nebraska had approved of these dates, as, under the law of state autonomy, no person working under the direction of the National Committee can fill engagements in any organ iged state without the consent or approval of the organization in that state.

"Comrade Thompson has admitted that the State Quorum of Nebraska has not consented and has objected to his work. Under these circumstances and inasmuch as Comrade Thompsor requested it, I submitted the entire cor respondence to the Quorum, of which not all the members have yet acted upon the matter.

"In acting upon it, however, Comrade Reynolds of Indiana suggests that the State Quorum be requested to en dorse Comrade Thompson's work so that he can be appointed National Organizer. I therefore lay this sugges tion before you for action as the quick-est and best way in which to settle

XIV .- Action of Quorum, accompanying report to National Committee, Dec. 11.—Work says: "We of course cannot bill a speaker through Nebraska without the consent of the State Comnittee, nor through any other state." If Thompson does not recognize this, "the correspondence should go to the National Committee. If he does "Thompson should be appointed a Na-tional Organizer, to take effect when he finishes his other engagements and can go to work under the auspices of tional office in the us ner. I do not imply any criticism of Comrade Thompson for his recent work under exceptional circumstances in Nebruska, although under all ordinary circumstances I am entirely op med to free lancing.

Berlyn says: "I not only approve of the position taken by the National Sec retary, but think he has not gone far enough. The constitution is explicit, and the Quorum and National Secretary can only take into consideration tary can only take into consideration the regular organization of a state and could not route a National Organizer without consulting the state organiza-tion, nor would I consent to have any National Organizer route himself and ask the national office to assume the responsibility, financial of otherwise. * * I favor submission of the whole ence to the National Com-

Reynolds "unhesitatingly approves" the National Secretary's position, but hopes the Nebraska state organization will withdraw its objection.

Dobba says: "I do not like the tone Thompson takes and I am against employing him as National Organiser. He shows a strange obtuseness in failing to grasp the points of file work if he were employed as National Organiser."

Berger approves the position taken by the National Secretary.

XV.—Nebraska State Secretary to National Secretary, Dec. 10.—State Quorum has considered National Secretary's letter of Dec. 7 and directs following reply: Dobbs says: "I do not like the tone cept the suggestion and will not ap-prove of Thompson's dates, for that would carry with it an endorsement of him and of his actions. This the prove of Thompson's dates, for that to 're-organise' the state he is willing would carry with it as endorsement of him and of his actions. Thi' the party, even capitalist office-helders State Quorum is not prepared to give

"Ever since the state convention of the Socialist Party of Nebraska, last July, Thompson has done his atmost to discredit the state organization of Nebraska and to disrupt, under the name of re-organization, the Secialist Party in this state. From the time of that convention be has persistently and maliciously, in and vention, slandered the comrades at tending it and ridiculed the party officials. More than that, he has a sulted and conspired with men aire proven guilty of treason to the party and of attempting to gain control of it for corrupt ends. He has shamelessly proclaimed his intention of 'reorganizing the state so that the pres-ent officials could be ousted and the ring of boodlers, whose headquarters are in Omaha, obtain control.

"Thompson went forth from the state convention last July and stated in public print that the State Quorum had withheld a charter from Maywood because the new local there wa composed of farmers and merchants, a falsehood which has obtained wide circulation throughout the country and placed the state organization of Ne braska in a false and

And we have more conson than ever for refusing to recognize or endorse him as a field worker since having an opportunity mate the kind of work he has been dotne in Nebraska lately, and which work he asks the national office to be responsible for.

"On Oct. 14, Thompson, spoke at Chadron. The meeting was arranged by him through L. J. F. Ineger of that place. Our State Secretary afterward received from Ineger, as temporary secretary, under dat Oct. 15, an appl cation for a local with seventeen m bers, which was organized on Oct. 14, the application was made out in the handwriting of Carl D. Thompson and was one of the kind used by him. The local was reported in the press as one organized by him. Among the names on the application for charter were ose of L. J. F. Ineger and D. serling. The occupation of Sperling. former was given as 'merchant' and the latter as 'Chief of Police.'

Following our usual rule, the charte was withheld pending investigation by State Organizer Schiermeyer, wherenched Chadron Nov. 1. "Organizer Schiermeyer reported o

Nov. 2 that I. J. F. Ineger, with who Thompson had corresponded to arrange the meeting, was a member of the accratic County Committee and that Sperling was Chief of Police, ap-pointed by a Democratic Mayor. Comrade schiermeyer succeeded in having larger and Sperling withdraw their names, as the following correspondence will show:

That he should consider Democratic committeemen and chiefs of police fit to be members of the party, shows him unworthy of trust and incapable of holding th sponsible position of organizer for the Socialist Party.

THE STATE REFERENDUM.

To the Editor of The Worker:-A few remarks about changing the seat of the State Committe from New York City to Rochester may not be amiss When Local Yonkers discussed th matter of removing the State Commit tee it was because their delegate had brought back very unsatisfactory rep-orts of service rendered. I remember pecifically that Highland Falls was mentioned among other places as hav-ing failed to receive the attention our delegates thought they should have re ceived at the hands of the State Com natee. It was then proposed that it would perhaps be conducive to more thorough work by the State Committee if a change was made. Knowing the activity of Local Rochester and the ability of its members, we pro-posed that place, and we feel assured that if the change is made Local Roch-ester will do its full duty in the matter. Personally, I have since ascer tained that the present State Commit tee has done a great deal of very energetic work during the past campaign and that the Secretary has made son considerable sacrifice in the performance of his duty, but I am also of the opinion that a paid State Secretary should be elected so that his whol time may be devoted to the movement I suppose that matter will lay over til the next state convention, nents on the motion I made to the National Committee regarding the race question in Lousiana. In another col umn you appear to make a mountain out of a molehill because I chanced to speak favorably of the Lousiana com-rades as "Socialist diplomats" in drafting their state proceedings. Permit me o say that, notwithstanding "we do not wish to be led by 'diplomats,' " we have already been and in the future will be compelled to use the highest diplomacy that can be brought for-ward in the Socialist Party to crush the capitalist parties. For more than ess of our party in this and oth countries, and in no country where it has developed into a power for indus trial emancipation for the workers has zealous efforts of Socialist diplomats. It is always well to discuss these ques tions for ...e benefit of the whole party nembership, and while a representa tive of the party I have no dread of any criticism that may be made by any one—for the Socialists stand pre-emi-nent in the criticism of each other.

"SOCIALIST DIPLOMATS." To the Editor of The Worker:-In your issue of Dec. 6 you print the com

I wish to state that perhaps you drew my motion on the race question some time ago, and voted in favor of Comrade Work's motion. I withdrew my motion on the grounds of unconstitutionality, and the chief clause on which my withdrawal is based is to be found in the resolution adopted by the Socialist Party in National Convention at Indianafolis, July 31, 1901. At the beginning of the fifth paragraph it reads: "Resolved, That we declare to the negro worker the identity of his interests and struggles with the interand struggles of the workers of all lands, without regard to race or color or sectional lines. * * * That the only line of division which exists in fact is that between the producers and the owners of the world:

I have made my remarks as brief as possible in order to clear any doubt in your mind as to my position on the race question. Whatever may come, or whatever question may arise, I shall always stand by the Socialist constitution, platform, and anti-fusion resolutions, and any other resolution that has or may be adopted by the party in national convention or con

Minneapolis, Dec. 7. CICERO C. TALBOTT,

National Committeeman for Minnesota, [If by "Socialist diplomats," Comrade Talbott means to describe men of the type of August Bebel, for instance, we cheerfully withdraw the editorial re-marks to which he takes exception. In that case we have, however, to add that we never heard the word "dip lomat" used in such a sense. We understood the word as commonly used and based our objection to his expression on that understanding.

GOEBEL NOT A CANDIDATE.

To the Editor of The Worker:-Will a kindly inform the comrades of New Jersey that I am not a candidate for National Committeeman this year. i arrived home too late to keep my name from appearing on the ballof. appreciate the good will conveyed in the nomination, but as National Organizer I would not be sufficiently in touch with state affairs to act intelligently as the state might desire. I believe also that, other things being equal, there should only be one term to any comrade in positions of this kind. We need experienced workers. The way to develop them is to divide positions such as National Committee nan among as many comrades as pas I accept re-election.
